

Contents

Special issue: "Minor" Genres in Postcolonial Literatures

Guest editors: Bénédicte Ledent and Delphine Munos

Introduction

- 1 "Minor" genres in postcolonial literatures: New webs of meaning
Delphine Munos and Bénédicte Ledent

Articles

- 6 "The advent of a genre": Crime fiction and the state of the nation in South Africa
Geoffrey V. Davis
- 19 From Jay to Bee to Daughter Buffalo: Outlining ekphrasis in the work of Janet Frame
Marc Delrez
- 32 Radio drama and its avatars in the work of Caryl Phillips
Bénédicte Ledent
- 43 The tremors of genre in G.J. Resink's poetry
Kris Steyaert
- 56 "Keeping my slave side well versed": Fred D'Aguiar's use of ottava rima in Bloodlines
Kathie Birat
- 69 The danger of a single short story: Reality, fiction and metafiction in Chimamanda Ngozi Adichie's "Jumping Monkey Hill"
Daria Tunca
- 83 Twisting the Australian realist short story: Murray Bail's "Camouflage"
Marie Herbillon
- 95 Minor genres and marginal realities: Kei Miller's blog posts and Facebook notes
Rebecca Romdhani
- 108 Claiming a hybrid language, seeking a hybrid form: From the vernacular to digital media in Robert Antoni's As Flies to Whatless Boys (2013)
Robert Antoni

- 129 Book Reviews

- x Erratum