Call for Papers—Instructions to Authors

The Editorial Board of the Annals of Public and Cooperative Economics welcomes articles, in French or in English, dealing with broadly defined public, nonprofit or cooperative economics (non-profit organizations, cooperatives, social enterprises, public enterprises, public-private enterprises, employee participation, public services provision and regulation, both in developed and developing countries.)

The selection criteria are the originality and scientific quality of the article, and the interest it offers in terms of information exchange between experts and academics in the field of public, cooperative or nonprofit economics. Survey articles are also welcome which review relevant literature and address the key topical issues/developments within the fields mentioned above. All papers should be accessible to the non-specialist reader and are subject to anonymous peer review.

1. Footnotes should be kept to a minimum and not consist of bibliographical references.
2. Mathematical presentation of the methodology (theoretical or statistical models) should be put in appendix.
3. Each reference should be mentioned in the text with the name of the author and the year of publication. Please set references out as follows:

FLEISHMAN J., 1983, ed., The Future of the Postal Service, New York: Praeger.

PELTZMAN S., 1976, "Toward a More General Theory of Regulation", Journal of Law and Economics, 211–40.

Propositions d'articles—Instructions aux auteurs

Le Comité de rédaction des Annales de l'économie publique, sociale et coopérative examine toute proposition d'article, en français ou en anglais, sur un sujet lié soit à l'économie publique, soit à l'économie sociale et coopérative (organisations sans but lucratif, coopératives, entreprises sociales, entreprises publiques, entreprises mixtes, participation des travailleurs, provision et régulation des services publics, à la fois dans les pays développés et en développement.)

Les critères de sélection sont l'originalité et la qualité scientifique de l'article et la contribution qu'il représente pour l'échange d'informations entre le monde de la recherche et celui des experts de l'économie publique, sociale et coopérative. La revue accepte aussi les "surveys" faisant état de la littérature ou examinant des thèmes/développements importants ou d'actualité dans les domaines mentionnés ci-dessus. Tous les articles doivent être accessibles au lecteur non spécialisé et sont soumis à un processus d'évaluation anonyme par des pairs.

1. Les notes doivent être limitées au minimum et ne pas consister en références bibliographiques.
2. La présentation formalisée de la méthodologie (modèles théoriques ou statistiques) sera de préférence reportée en annexe.
3. Bibliographie: toute référence est indiquée dans le texte par le nom des auteurs suivi de l'année de publication. Les références seront présentées comme suit:

FLEISHMAN J., 1983, ed., The Future of the Postal Service, New York: Praeger.

PELTZMAN S., 1976, "Toward a More General Theory of Regulation", Journal of Law and Economics, 211–40.
