Appendix 6. Graphical forms of verbal lemmas

The following appendix consists of all the lemmas studied for chapter 5, expanding beyond the lemmas in which some meaningful regionally conditioned variation occurred in the graphical form. Therefore, note that some of the sections in this appendix are identical to those included in chapter 5. However, the list of lemmas which only provided substantives or adjectives, or which were problematic, discussed in chapter 5.2, are excluded from this appendix. as well.

The tables are based exclusively on the material from the database, in a manner similar to the one used for the lemmas in chapter 5. Although the material outside the database is included in the discussion, they are not included in the tables, or used for the number of attestations.

Appendix 6.1. $\text{z}w\dot{i}$ (to extend)<sup>42</sup>

In the database, this lemma is only attested twice, both of which occur in Meir.<sup>43</sup> Therefore, the database does not inform any regional preference. Moreover, the two graphical forms (see table 6.1) are quite distinct, which suggests that this verb form is extremely varied in Meir. However, outside the database, a variant of form 2 without the Z1 (ⲓ) classifier is attested in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>44</sup> Moreover, outside the database it is possible in Deir el-Bersha and the Theban area to include the Y2 (ⲓ) classifier.<sup>45</sup> Nonetheless, the phonetic spelling of form 1 is only attested in Meir.

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Meir	1
	2	Meir	1 <sup>46</sup>

Table 6.1 Graphical forms of the stem of  $\text{z}w\dot{i}$ .

Appendix 6.2. $\text{z}wh$ (to drive out, to drive away)

This lemma is attested only once,<sup>47</sup> in Sq7Sq, a witness from Saqqara, which consists of a fragmentary variant of spell 335, which is partly in a different order. To make matters worse, the graphical form (see figure 6.1) is a reconstruction, as the G1 (ⲓ) is not visible, and the A24 (ⲓ) is damaged. Thus, other spellings and/or readings of this verb are possible. However, the lemma used in the other witnesses ( $\text{ii}$ ) is unlikely here, as according to de Buck the V28 (ⲓ) is clearly visible.

Appendix 6.3. $\text{z}wh$ (to serve)<sup>48</sup>

The lemma  $\text{z}wh$  only occurs three times in the database,<sup>49</sup> and all attestations occur in Meir, in the same phrase. It is not unlikely that the use of this form represents a corruption, as G1T and A1C use  $\text{z}h$  (to be/become a spirit; see appendix 6.7), and M46C and M4C use  $hw\dot{i}$  (to protect; see appendix 6.183) instead. In general, this section of the text is badly damaged for all witnesses from Meir, which compounds the issues. As one can see in table 6.2, the graphical forms are varied. Based on the additional attestations outside the database,<sup>50</sup> form 2 and 3 are only attested in Meir, while form 1 is attested in Deir el-Bersha as well. However, it is possible outside the database to use a F40 (𐤔) instead of the G1 (𐤂) in Asyut and Deir el-Bersha. Moreover, the A24 (𐤀) classifier can be used in Deir el-Bersha as addition to the D40 (𐤌) classifier.

Appendix 6.4. ʔfi (to gorge)<sup>52</sup>

In the database the lemma ʔfi occurs in one phrase only,<sup>53</sup> although it is attested in ten witnesses. As one can see in table 6.3, the variation lies mostly in the use of a different classifier, or in a duplication of the ʔf section. Note that in van der Molen ʔfʔf (form 3) is considered a separate lemma,<sup>54</sup> although still unique to this phrase. Form 4 should be considered a corruption, in which the I9 (𐤓) and G1 (𐤂) switched position.<sup>55</sup>

<sup>55</sup> Even though it would be possible to read it as fʔi (to lift, to carry) here, the G38 (𐤔) classifier would be unusual.

Table 6.3 Graphical forms of the stem of zfi.

Although it is based on a single attestation, it could be suggested that Beni Hasan prefers to use a humanoid classifier over the bird here. However, the additional attestations outside the database show that the use of a humanoid classifier occurs in P.Gard.2 as well, which is suggested to originate from Asyut.<sup>56</sup> Therefore, it cannot be assumed to be a local preference.

The use of the zʒf does present an interesting feature. Even though the attestations come from the Theban area and Gebelein, there seems to be some distinction, as T3C and G1T both considered represent the same southern Egyptian school of artist which seemed to exist in the First Intermediate Period.<sup>57</sup> Thus, the duplication of zʒf could suggest a regional preference, even if it only occurred during the First Intermediate Period.

Appendix 6.5. zmm (to seize, to grasp)<sup>58</sup>

The lemma zmm is attested thirteen times in the database. However, only eleven attestations are from verbal forms.<sup>59</sup> The majority of the attestations are from spell 75, while one attestation comes from spell 313, a unique spell which only occurs in B5C. The attestations per region are set out in table 6.4, for every graphical form of the stem. Note that as this is a 2ae gem. lemma and gemination occurs in the database, the table has been divided in gemination and no gemination.

	3	Asyut	2		5	Asyut	1

Table 6.4 Graphical forms of the stem of zmm.

Note that form 5 represents an error by the artist, as the second G1 () should be read as a G17 (). The use of a classifier seems to be the preference in most regions. It is remarkable that form 3 and 5 both use a D36 () as classifier, where the D49 () and D40 () seems more preferable for this verb. Moreover, it has to be a choice by the artist, as the script used in the witnesses (S1C and S2C) is a nearly hieroglyphic form of cursive. This type of script would differentiate between the different signs of the arm, which can become indistinguishable in hieratic and near hieratic cursive script.<sup>60</sup> Thus, it could be argued that Asyut prefers to use the D36 as classifier with zmm. However, as S1C and S2C belong to the same owner, it might be a feature of these two supports instead.

Based on the sole attestation from the Theban area, one could suggest that the Theban area prefers not to add a classifier. However, in the original support (T3C) the verb is written together with ndr as a double column,<sup>61</sup> which could have been the reason why there is no classifier. Outside the database there are no other attestations from the Theban area which use this lemma, although the absence of a classifier is attested in Asyut as well.<sup>62</sup> Thus, although the absence of a classifier might be a feature of the Theban area, it can be left out in other regions.

Appendix 6.6. zr (to drive away)<sup>63</sup>

This lemma is attested 28 times in the database,<sup>64</sup> although the majority of its attestations come from the name of a divinity in spell 335.<sup>65</sup> Note that the first vowel of this lemma is varied, as it can be written as iz or iz̄ as well. This is most likely a visual representation of the conflation of the z phoneme with the i

<sup>61</sup> It sometimes occurs in the Coffin Texts that the text has repeated features in the text, where for example the subject of a verb is written once in the column, and the two verbs forms are written above it as two columns next to each other, both using the subject that is only written once. Thus, it does not mean that two columns are written in one column, but rather that sections of the phrase in recurrent constructions are written as two columns, instead of repeating parts of the phrase that do not change twice.

in this lemma.<sup>66</sup> In the following table the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem (table 6.5):

Table 6.5 Graphical forms of the stem of ʒr.

Based on these attestations, it seems that in Deir el-Bersha there is the preference to not add a M17 (𓄿) to the word. Although the form ʒʒr is attested once in the Theban area as well, it occurs more often in Meir. In el-Lisht and Beni Hasan there seems to be a preference for writing ʒʒr in a compact format (form 4). Beyond these points, there does not seem to be any clear regional preferences in the spelling of the stem of ʒr, and especially Meir can be extremely varied in its graphical form.

Appendix 6.7. ʒḥ (to be/become a spirit, to be potent, to be well)<sup>68</sup>

In the database, the lemma ʒḥ is attested 63 times. However, some of these are substantives,<sup>69</sup> and only 52 attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>70</sup> In table 6.6, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>67</sup> Note that the V4 (𓄿) is assumed to be a corruption of the T12 (𓄿) due to their similar form.

<sup>69</sup> For example, in Buck (1935) CT I, p. 4,a (B1P), ʒḥ.w (the potent ones) is used, even though it could be argued that it is technically a participle.

Table 6.6 Graphical forms of the stem of ʾḥ.

In this lemma, there are only scant signs of regional preference. The graphical form used in Meir is highly varied, but it seems that the G25 () is never written with a curl or stroke at its claws. The attestations from the Theban area suggest that the Y2 () classifier is always written. However, as this is based on one witness only (T3L), it might be a personal preference of the artist responsible for this witness. Moreover, outside the database the Theban area occurs without an Y2 classifier.<sup>71</sup> Asyut seems to have a preference for using the interpretant Aa1 () and the Y2 classifier, although the interpretant is not always there. Alternative forms occur in Asyut, but are rare in comparison to form 10 and 11.

Appendix 6.8. ʾḥ (to flourish)<sup>72</sup>

This lemma is attested 13 times in the database.<sup>73</sup> Note that the distinction between this lemma and 0 can only be clearly seen in the in the classifier M15 ().<sup>74</sup> As one can see in table 6.7, the graphical form of the lemma is remarkably stable, with only one exception (B1Be), which used a Y2 () classifier instead of a M15 as classifier.

<sup>73</sup> Buck (1938) CT II, p. 394,a; Buck (1947) CT III, p. 6,b. For additional attestations outside the database, see Plas & Borghouts (1998), p. 5.

<sup>74</sup> It could be argued that this lemma is actually part of 0, as it is related in meaning, although specifically for growth.

	2	Saqqara	1
		Deir el-Bersha	8
		Meir	1
		Asyut	2

Table 6.7 Graphical forms of the stem of šḥ (to flourish).

Due to the stability of the stem of the lemma, there does not seem to be any sign of regional preferences. Even when the additional attestations of van der Molen are included, the only variation from form 2 is due to errors or corruptions, rather than any intentional change.

Appendix 6.9. šsb (to burn, to singe, to glow)<sup>75</sup>

The lemma šsb occurs 13 times in the database,<sup>76</sup> all in spell 335, and all as a participle in the name of a divinity, used in the nfr-ḥr construction. Table 6.8 shows the attestations per region for every graphical form:

	2	Deir el-Bersha	1		5	Meir	1
		Meir	1
	3	Theban area	1 <sup>77</sup>

Table 6.8 Graphical forms of the stem of šsb.

For this lemma, there are no clear signs of regional preference, although it is clear that form 4 is the most common. A classifier is only used in Meir in the database, but is more common in the attestations of van der Molen, although that is due to the fact that most of his attestations are actually substantives.<sup>78</sup>

<sup>77</sup> Note that šbs is assumed to be a graphical form variation of šsb, instead of a lemma variation.

<sup>78</sup> For example, Buck (1938) CT II, p. 135,b, which uses šsb.w (the glowing ones), which uses an A40 () classifier. Note however that it is possible to still consider this a participle (those that glow).

Appendix 6.10. ꜣsh (to reap, to harvest)<sup>79</sup>

In the database, this lemma is attested seven times, all from the same phrase of spell 398.<sup>80</sup> The graphical forms are extremely varied, see table 6.9:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Gebelein	1		5	Meir	1
	2	Gebelein	1		6	Theban area	1
	3	Aswan	1		7	Meir	1
	4	Meir	1

Table 6.9 Graphical forms of the stem of ꜣsh.

Although every attestation of this lemma has its own form, there is some variation of note between Meir and the other regions. Meir uses classifiers representing force and effort (A24 (𓂏)), D37 (𓂏) and D40 (𓂏)), where Gebelein and the Theban area use a sign representing a tool, U1 (𓂏) or V24 (𓂏). This could suggest that there is some pattern based on the north south axis in Egypt. Deir el-Bersha uses D40 classifiers as well,<sup>81</sup> but in Asyut only the tool is used. Thus, it could be argued that from Meir and northwards this lemma can receive a classifier representing force and effort, but from Asyut to the south the preference lies in only using a classifier representing a tool, most commonly the U1. However, outside the database this is not true, as the D40 is attested in the Theban area as well, although with a U1 classifier as well, and in Saqqara a form with only a U1 classifier is attested as well.<sup>82</sup> Thus, it seems unlikely that there is a regional preference for this lemma, even though the absence of any classifier is only attested in Aswan.

<sup>81</sup> Although the absence of a classifier or the use of a U1 (𓂏) occurs as well.

Appendix 6.11. ꜣꜣ (to nurse, to bring up)<sup>83</sup>

This lemma is attested 21 times in the database, although ten of these attestations are substantives, as ꜣꜣ.yꜣ (nurse) was encoded as part of this lemma.<sup>84</sup> Note that all attestations, including the substantives, all occur in the same phrase.<sup>85</sup> Additionally, the use of the B5 () represents a standardisation, as the scripts used by the witnesses rarely provide the all the specific details of this complex sign. In table 6.10, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form:

	1	Deir el-Bersha	4		4	Deir el-Bersha	1
	2	Deir el-Bersha	1		5	Deir el-Bersha	1 <sup>86</sup>
	3	Beni Hasan	1

Table 6.10 Graphical forms of the stem of ꜣꜣ.

In this lemma, there are no clear signs of regional preferences for the graphical form of the stem.

However, one interesting feature stands out. The addition of a M17*M17 () group only occurs in Deir el-Bersha, and more specifically in the witnesses that are dated to Amenemhat II – Sesostri III (B15C and B1P).<sup>87</sup> The other attestations of Deir el-Bersha (B2Bo, B3Bo, B4Bo and B6C) are all dated to the period of the late 11th dynasty until the early 12th dynasty,<sup>88</sup> thus it could be suggested that the addition of the M17*M17 is based on the date of coffin creation. However, outside the database, the addition of this group seems to be unique to this phrase, as it is not repeated in the other attestations from the Coffin Texts.

<sup>86</sup> Note that this form represents a special case, as it only occurs with this witness (B6C). It might be simply a dittography of the ꜣꜣ.wꜣ before it in the phrase, but due to the duplication of the V13 () with a 2-lit verb, I took it as a ꜣꜣmm=f instead here.

Appendix 6.12. i (to say, to speak)<sup>89</sup>

In the database, this lemma has 225 attestations. However, only 79 attestations represent verb forms,<sup>90</sup> the other attestations are interjections. In table 6.11, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

	1	el-Lisht Deir el-Bersha Meir Asyut	3 25 1 2		7	Deir el-Bersha	3

	5	Theban area	1		11	Theban area	1
	6	Meir Theban area	1 1

Table 6.11 Graphical forms of the stem of i.

For this lemma, some regional preferences can be distinguished. The addition of a G1 () is only attested in the Theban area, although both form 5 and 11 come from the same witness (T1L).<sup>91</sup> The use of the Y2 () classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha, likewise from one witness (B1P). In el-Lisht, there is either no classifier, or a Z1 () which suggest that this region prefers to avoid the humanoid classifiers. Gebelein is only attested with form 2. Even though this is only a single attestation, the same form is used for the interjection as well,<sup>92</sup> which suggests that form 2 represents the preferred form for Gebelein.

<sup>90</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 32,a, 94,c, 102,a, 107,b, 121,b, 141,b, 145,a, 145,d, 397,a; Buck (1938) CT II, p. 79,a, 79,b; Buck (1947) CT III, p. 223,f; Buck (1951) CT IV, p. 87,b, 92,b. For additional attestations outside the database, see Plas & Borghouts (1998), p. 9.

<sup>91</sup> Context and the other witnesses make it unlikely that this should be read as iṣ (to stride) instead, see appendix 6.13.

Appendix 6.13. i3 (to stride)<sup>93</sup>

There are seventeen attestations of this lemma in the database.<sup>94</sup> Table 6.12 shows the attestations per region for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha Asyut	3 1		4	Asyut	1 <sup>95</sup>
	2	Deir el-Bersha	2 <sup>96</sup>		5	Asyut	1 <sup>97</sup>

Table 6.12 Graphical forms of the stem of i3.

For the attestations in the database, there is a clear difference between the attestations from Asyut and Deir el-Bersha, as the long format of form 3 is only attested in Asyut. For the attestations outside the database this is true as well, although there are hardly any other attestations of this lemma in the Coffin Texts.

Appendix 6.14. i3wi (to be aged)<sup>98</sup>

There are eighteen attestations of this lemma in the database, although only sixteen attestations from the same phrase in spell 75 are verbal forms.<sup>99</sup> As one can see in table 6.13, there are only two forms used for the stem:

<sup>96</sup> From the same witness (B3L), see Buck (1938) CT II, p. 71,a, 77,c. Due to the A28 (𓆎) classifier is it uncertain if it even is this lemma, the reading is based on S2C which has this lemma in the same phrases. However, it is possible that this represents a corruption of k3i (to be tall, to be high), see appendix 6.317, where the use of the A28 makes more sense.

The only variation occurs in Deir el-Bersha, where form 2 is used in addition to form 1. However, as the other attestations of this lemma in the Coffin Texts outside this lemma only feature witnesses from Deir el-Bersha, it cannot be said if the other regions might use form 2 as well.

Appendix 6.15. i3hi (to overflow, to be flooded)<sup>100</sup>

In the database there is only one attestation of this lemma,<sup>101</sup> in a phrase where the other witnesses use 3h (to flourish; see 0) instead. However, as this lemma is functional in this phrase, it was not adjusted into 3h. Based on the other attestations of this lemma outside the database,<sup>102</sup> it is clear that the form used (figure 6.2) does not represent a regional preference, but rather a common form for this lemma.

Appendix 6.16. i3t (to injure, to be injured, to be missing)<sup>103</sup>

This lemma has a total of seventeen attestations in the database, from the same phrase in spell 154.<sup>104</sup> In the following table, the attestations per regions are shown for every graphical form of the stem (table 6.14):

Table 6.14 Graphical forms of the stem of iszl.

For this lemma, there are some signs of regional preferences, without clear borders. Although the use of X1 (.) instead of V13 (=) occurs in Deir el-Bersha as well, it is more common in Asyut. Inversely, Deir el-Bersha is more likely to use the V13 instead of the X1. If a classifier is written, Asyut is more likely to use the D57 (𐎠) than the G37 (𐎡), where Deir el-Bersha uses both classifiers at more or less the same rate. The use of other classifiers seems to only occur in Deir el-Bersha. Outside the database there is only one additional attestation of this lemma,<sup>105</sup> and the only visible attestations are from the Theban area and Saqqara, which use either form 2 or form 8.<sup>106</sup>

Appendix 6.17. iyi<sup>107</sup> and iwi<sup>108</sup> (to come)

These two lemmas are treated as if they belong to one single lemma, following Winand.<sup>109</sup> These lemmas occur relatively frequent, with 305 attestations for iyi and 190 for iwi.<sup>110</sup> Note however, that due to the separate encodings of these lemmas, there are some cases where one sub-lemma is preferred over the other in the Coffin Texts. For example, there are 160 attestations of the sdm.n=f using the sub-lemma iyi, where there are only nine attestations of the sub-lemma iwi. On the other hand, there are only six attestations of the sub-lemma iyi for the sdm=f, where the sub-lemma iwi has 80 attestations. For the stative, the preference seems to lie with sub-lemma iyi, which has 82 attestations, where sub-lemma iwi only has 26. Moreover, in the database there are no attestations from Saqqara, el-Lisht and Beni Hasan which use the sub-lemma iwi with the stative, while Asyut is only attested in the stative using iwi.<sup>111</sup> All the attestations for the imperative have been encoded under the sub-lemma iwi, but as this lemma is irregular, this is rather an aspect of the encoding, than regional preference.

In table 6.15, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the lemma. Note that this table consist of the attestations of both iyi and iwi.

<sup>111</sup> However, this might be the result of the encoding of the database, rather than a regional preference. Moreover, the preference of one sub-lemma over the other in a single region does not seem to be true for the sdm=f or sdm.n=f forms.

Table 6.15 Graphical forms of the stem of iyi and iwi.

As one can see in the table above, the usual form of this lemma group is either form 2, 10 or 22, which occurs in nearly every region. Therefore, there does not seem to be any distinct regional preference, as nearly every form is attested in more than one region, or represents a single attestation.

Some of the forms of el-Lisht stand out (form 1, 12, 23, 31) due to the use of partial forms of hieroglyphs of animates, but as these come from the same witness (L2Li), it should not be considered a regional feature. For the forms of the imperative (form 6-13), it seems that there is the preference in Gebelein to use a compact format (form 6). Form 3 is only attested in Asyut, but as these attestations all come from the same witness (S1C), it is assumed to represent a preference of the artist, rather than a regional variant.

Appendix 6.18. iʿi (to wash)<sup>114</sup>

The lemma iʿi has 26 attestations in the database, although only 21 attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>115</sup> In table 6.16, the attestations per region are shown for every graphical form of the stem:

	3	Papyrus (P.Gard.2)	2

Table 6.16 Graphical forms of the stem of iʿi.

From the attestations in the database, one could make the suggestion that Asyut prefers to use a long format (form 5) for this lemma. However, form 1 is attested outside the database in Asyut as well.<sup>116</sup> In Meir there seems to be a preference for the compact format (form 1). However, the long format occurs outside the database as well.<sup>117</sup> However, the use of the Y2 (𓏏) seems to only occur in Meir for this lemma. Note that this lemma does not serve as evidence that P.Gard.2 originates from Asyut,<sup>118</sup> as Asyut usually adds the N35A (𓏏) as classifier, which was not added in P.Gard.2.

Appendix 6.19. iʿb (to unite, to be united, to hand over)<sup>119</sup>

In the database, this lemma has a total of 30 attestations.<sup>120</sup> In table 6.17, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Based on the database, it could be suggested that the attestations from Asyut never add the M17 (𐎎) to the lemma. However, this does occur in Asyut outside the database.<sup>121</sup> In Gebelein, the F18 (𐎎) is always added to the spelling, even in attestations outside the database. There do not seem to be any other additional regional preferences, as the graphical form can be remarkably varied.

Appendix 6.20. iʕr (to ascend, to draw near)<sup>122</sup>

The lemma iʕr is only attested nine times in the database.<sup>123</sup> Note that this lemma overlaps with the lemma ʕr (see appendix 6.45), as they function in a similar manner. In table 6.18, the attestations in the regions are set out to the different graphical forms:

	1	Deir el-Bersha	1 <sup>124</sup>		4	Theban area	2
	2	Theban area	1		5	Asyut Theban area	2 2
	3	Gebelein	1 <sup>125</sup>

Table 6.18 Graphical forms of the stem of iʕr.

As there is only one attestation of iʕr in Deir el-Bersha, in a dubious source, it could be suggested that this lemma does not occur in Deir el-Bersha. However, this is not the case as this lemma occurs outside the database in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>126</sup> Thus, this lemma is most likely used in all regions. In the Theban area, the N31 (≡) classifier can be used or left out. The attestations from Asyut are from the same witness (S2C), and both occur in the same phrase,<sup>127</sup> which can only be considered a feature of the support, rather than a regional preference. Moreover, outside the database form 2 is attested in Asyut as well.<sup>128</sup> Gebelein seem to only use a form without a classifier, but form 2 is attested in Gebelein as well.<sup>129</sup> Thus, there does not seem to be a regional preference for this lemma.

Appendix 6.21. iwi (to be boatless, to leave stranded)<sup>130</sup>

In the database, there are only six attestations of this lemma.<sup>131</sup> As one can see in table 6.19, the graphical form is remarkably stable, and only varies in form 2, which represents the use of partial <sup>124</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 44,d (B15C). Note that this witness was not seen by de Buck itself, and it is possible that it was incorrectly transcribed (which would explain the unusual classifier as well).

<sup>125</sup> Buck (1938) CT II, p. 56,d (G2T). Note that no D21 (≡) was written, and based on the other witnesses, it is possible that the M17 (l) should be read as iyi, and the D36 (—) as di, written as a double column above the N35 (—) which can be read for both (making iy.n and di.n).

This lemma is relatively common in the database, with 107 attestations. However, only 51 attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>133</sup> In table 6.20, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

In general, there does not seem to be a regional preference, although some regional features do seem to exist. The absence of the E9 (𐤊) for this lemma (form 10, 11 and 12) is rare, but it is only attested in Deir el-Bersha and Meir. However, outside the database, the absence is attested in the Theban area as well.<sup>134</sup> Nonetheless, based on the database, form 11 and 12 represent the only form in which the attestations from Meir occur,<sup>135</sup> while form 10 seems to be unique to Deir el-Bersha.

Appendix 6.23. īwr (to conceive)<sup>136</sup>

This lemma has seventeen attestations in the database, from the same phrase of spell 75.<sup>137</sup> In table 6.21, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

	3	Aswan	1		6	Deir el-Bersha	1

Table 6.21 Graphical forms of the stem of īwr.

For this lemma, there does not seem to be a clear regional preference. Even though form 5 could be suggested to represent a regional form from Gebelein, outside the database a form akin to form 2 and 3 is used in Gebelein as well.<sup>138</sup> Form 6 does not represent a regional variation, but rather a feature of the witness B2L, as outside the database this witness replaces the E9 (𐤊) with a M17 (𐤍) in other attestations as well.<sup>139</sup>

Appendix 6.24. ibi (to be thirsty)<sup>140</sup>

There are 47 attestations for this lemma in the database, but only eleven attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>141</sup> In table 6.22, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha	1		5	Deir el-Bersha	2
	2	Asyut	1		6	Deir el-Bersha	2
	3	Deir el-Bersha Meir	2 1		7	Asyut	1
	4	Deir el-Bersha	1

Table 6.22 Graphical forms of the stem of ibi.

In the database, it can be suggested that the use of the E8 () only occurs in Deir el-Bersha. However, outside the database it occurs in the Theban area and Saqqara as well.<sup>142</sup> Additionally, when the attestations beyond the database are included, it becomes clear that form 5 is often used in all regions. Nonetheless, the use of the Y2 () classifier seems to only occur in Deir el-Bersha. Moreover, form 2 seems to only occur in Asyut, as all other witnesses add a A2 ()<sup>143</sup>, E8 or N35A ()<sup>144</sup>.

Appendix 6.25. ip (to count, to recon, to allot)<sup>143</sup>

In the database, there are 29 attestations of this lemma.<sup>144</sup> In table 6.23 the attestations per region for every graphical form are set out:

<sup>141</sup> Buck (1947) CT III, p. 19,b, 19,d, 187,c. For additional attestations outside the database, see Plas & Borghouts (1998), p. 21. Note that ib.t (thirst) was considered to be part of this lemma.

Table 6.23 Graphical forms of the stem of ip.

In this table, there is no real sign of regional preferences. Although Saqqara and Gebelein only use form 1, Beni Hasan only uses form 3 and Aswan only uses form 4, all these are single attestations, and cannot be used as indications of regional preference. Outside the database, Aswan is attested with form 1<sup>145</sup> and Beni Hasan as well.<sup>146</sup> Moreover, Saqqara is attested with form 3.<sup>147</sup> Therefore, it seems unlikely that this lemma has any regional preference.

Appendix 6.26. imi (negative verb)<sup>148</sup>

There are only eleven attestations of this lemma in the database.<sup>149</sup> As table 6.24 shows, there is hardly any variation in the graphical form:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

		Theban area	1
	2 <sup>150</sup>	Gebelein	2
		Aswan	1
	3	el-Lisht	1

Table 6.24 Graphical forms of the stem of imi.

The only major variation in this lemma occurs in form 2, which replaced the D35 (𐀓) with a D37 (𐀓) instead. However, outside the database form 1 is used in Gebelein as well.<sup>151</sup> Additionally, form 2 is used in Deir el-Bersha.<sup>152</sup> Therefore, form 2 is not unique to Gebelein and Aswan. Form 4 is only attested in el-

<sup>150</sup> Note that this form can easily be mistaken for the imperative of rdi (to give, to place). However, these attestations all come from the same phrase (V,152,d-e), where an imperative would be less suitable.

Lisht, but reflects a feature of L2Li, rather than a regional pattern.<sup>153</sup> Thus, there is no regional preference for this lemma.

Appendix 6.27. ini (to bring, to bring away, to buy)<sup>154</sup>

The lemma ini is quite common, and has 233 attestations in the database. However, only 229 of these attestations reflect verbal forms,<sup>155</sup> as the other four attestations are considered substantives.<sup>156</sup> In table 6.25, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that this is a 3ae inf. lemma and gemination occurs in the database, therefore the table has been divided in gemination and no gemination.

Table 6.25 Graphical forms of the stem of ini (to bring).

For this lemma, there are only some vague signs of a regional preference. The use of the D54 (Λ) classifier is only attested in Gebelein, even though the attestations from Gebelein occur outside the database without the D54 as well. Aswan has one unique feature with form 4, even though this might have simply been an error for a N35 (⏟), despite the signs being quite different.<sup>157</sup> Beyond these features there are no meaningful variations that show regional preferences.

Appendix 6.28. ini (to sever)<sup>158</sup>

This lemma has only five attestations in the database, from the same phrase in spell 23.<sup>159</sup> In table 6.26, one can see the attestations per region for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

		Theban area	1
	2	Theban area	1		4	Theban area	1

Table 6.26 Graphical forms of the stem of ini (to sever).

Based on the database, there does not seem to be a regional preference for this lemma, although the D40 (⏟) classifier only occurs in the Theban area. The only other attestation of this lemma in the Coffin Texts<sup>160</sup> does not disprove the use of D40 classifier in the Theban area, although the lemma can only be seen fully intact in three of the ten witnesses, due to damage.<sup>161</sup>

Appendix 6.29. int̄ (to fetter)<sup>162</sup>

In the database, there are a total of five attestations for this lemma, from the same phrase of spell 23.<sup>163</sup> In table 6.27, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

	1	Deir el-Bersha	1 <sup>164</sup>		4	Theban area	1
	2	Deir el-Bersha	1		5	Theban area	1
	3	Deir el-Bersha	1

Table 6.27 Graphical forms of the stem of int̄.

As one can see in the table, the graphical forms are extremely varied. Moreover, the use of the V13 (=) is actually rare, which suggests that for this lemma the distinction between the t̄ and t has already been lost. The use of the A24 (𓂏) classifier seems to be unique to the Theban area, but as this is only one attestation, it might be unique to this witness (T1L) instead.

Appendix 6.30. iri (to do, to make, to perform)<sup>165</sup>

This is one of the most common lemmas in the database, with a total of 836 attestations.<sup>166</sup> In table 6.28, one can see the attestations per region for the graphical form of the stem. Note that this is a 3ae inf. lemma and gemination occurs in the database, therefore the table has been divided in gemination and no gemination. However, as one can see in form 4, it is possible for the attestations without

Table 6.28 Graphical forms of the stem of iri.

As one can see in form 3 and 9, for most attestations the same form is used for nearly every region. Nonetheless, there are some features that can represent a regional variation. The addition of M17 (𐀀) is rare, and occurs in Beni Hasan and Deir el-Bersha as well (form 6, 7 and 13), but it is much more common in the Theban area. However, it does not represent any specific period, as it occurs in witnesses dated to the reign of Mentuhotep II (T9C) and to the reign of Sesostri III (T2Be).

<sup>169</sup> Buck (1951) CT IV, p. 194,a (Sq4Sq). This attestation is problematic, as it does not show geminatio where it should, as I took it as a nominal sdm.tw=f here. However, the t(w) is written with a V13 (𐀀), and it is possible that this sign should be read as an N35 (𐀀) and X1 (𐀀) instead, which would make this a nominal sdm.n.tw=f, which is what occurs in the other witnesses. Moreover, this would not require geminatio.

The use of the pupil of the eye, D12 (◊), for the entire eye, D4 (◌), is quite rare in the Middle Kingdom, and seems to only occur in Deir el-Bersha. The use of D21 for iri only occurs in el-Lisht, although it is far from unlikely that this is a modern error, in which the pupil of the D4 was lost, instead of an intentional change.

Even though form 3 occurs in Beni Hasan for the absence of gemination, it is remarkable that in case of gemination, there are always two D21 signs added (form 10 and 13). Moreover, there is one witness in Beni Hasan (BH5C), which always added the interpretant D21, as there is no attestation in this witness with only the D4.

Appendix 6.31. itp (to be effective)<sup>170</sup>

This lemma has only nine attestations in the database, and only six of these are considered verbal forms.<sup>171</sup> As one can see in table 6.29, there are only three graphical forms, of which one is an error (form 2).<sup>172</sup>

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

	2	Deir el-Bersha	1
	3	Beni Hasan	1

Table 6.29 Graphical forms of the stem of itp.

The only meaningful variation is the absence of the Y2 (◌) classifier in Beni Hasan. However, outside the database the Y2 classifier is used in Beni Hasan as well,<sup>173</sup> and the absence of the Y2 occurs in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>174</sup> Therefore, this lemma does not seem to have a regional preference.

Appendix 6.32. ith (to drag, to pull off)<sup>175</sup>

In the database, there are 24 attestations of the lemma ith.<sup>176</sup> In table 6.30, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that the use of the D20 (◌) might actually represent the U31 (◌), as in near hieratic cursive script these two signs can become indistinguishable.<sup>177</sup>

For this lemma, there does not seem to be a regional preference. The only form which is clearly different is form 6, but it is unlikely that this is a regional feature of the Theban area, as de Buck added a sic with the bird.<sup>179</sup> Based on the database, it would be possible to suggest that Gebelein and Aswan do not use the V1 (⊙) classifier. However, outside the database the V1 is used in Gebelein as a classifier.<sup>180</sup> Beni Hasan only has an attestation for form 3,<sup>181</sup> but as it is the only attestation from Beni Hasan in the Coffin Texts, it would be assumptive to suggest it represents a regional preference.

Appendix 6.33. iti (to take)<sup>182</sup>

The lemma iti has 86 attestations in the database.<sup>183</sup> In table 6.31, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that with this lemma it is often difficult to know if the X1 (⊖) should be considered an interpretant, or an addition due to the morphology of the verbal form in which it is used.

Table 6.31 Graphical forms of the stem of iii.

As one can see, the majority of the attestations are either form 5 or form 7. However, some regional preferences seem to occur. The use of the initial M17 (𓄀) seems to only occur in the Theban area, as the sole attestation from Asyut in form 2 represents a reconstruction.

The use of a stroke at the toe of the V15 (𓄁) seems to only occur in Deir el-Bersha in the database, but this form is attested outside the database in Beni Hasan as well.<sup>187</sup> Thus, it is unlikely to be a regional preference. The use of a D40 (𓄂) classifier seems to only occur in Deir el-Bersha, as the attestation from Meir (form 8) is a reconstruction. The attestations from Saqqara and el-Lisht do not seem to appear without the X1 interpretant in the database. However, outside the database this is not true for Saqqara,<sup>188</sup> nor for el-Lisht.<sup>189</sup>

<sup>185</sup> Buck (1951) CT IV, p. 237,b (M57C). Partially reconstructed, the D40 (𓄂) is not visible, thus might not have been there at all.

Appendix 6.34. idi (to be censed)<sup>190</sup>

This lemma has 35 attestations in the database, of which 32 attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>191</sup> In table 6.32, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Asyut	2		7	Deir el-Bersha Theban area	1 1
	2	Deir el-Bersha	1		8	Meir	1
	3	Meir Gebelein Aswan	1 1 1		9	Deir el-Bersha Asyut Theban area	3 1 2
	4	Meir	4		10	Meir	1
	5	Deir el-Bersha Meir	2 1		11	Theban area	1
	6	Deir el-Bersha Theban area	3 2		12	Deir el-Bersha Asyut	2 1

Table 6.32 Graphical forms of the stem of idi.

Based on the database, it seems that although the D40 () is used as well, Meir has the tendency with this lemma to use D40A () which does not occur in the other regions. However, outside the database there are attestations of the D40A in P.Gard.3.<sup>192</sup> However, as there are no coffins with this hieroglyph, it can still function as a regional preference for Meir.

Although the N4 () classifier (form 6 and 12) occurs outside Deir el-Bersha as well, it seems that Deir el-Bersha is more likely than either Asyut or the Theban area to use it as classifier. Form 11 seems only to occur in the Theban area, although it is only attested in one witness (MC105).

Appendix 6.35. ʿzi (to be great)<sup>193</sup>

This lemma is relatively common as it has 341 attestations. However, this is deceptive, as the majority of the attestations do not actually represent verb forms, but rather adjectives or substantives. In the

database, there are 31 attestations where ʕzi is actually used as a verbal form.<sup>194</sup> In the majority of the attestations (23), ʕzi is used as a stative. There are five attestations where ʕzi is used as a sdm.n=f, and two attestations for both a sdm=f and participle. The graphical form of the stem is relatively stable, as one can see in table 6.33:

	1	Deir el-Bersha	4		3	Deir el-Bersha	1
		Asyut	1
		Theban area	2		4	Theban area	1
	2	Saqqara	1
		Deir el-Bersha	11
		Asyut	6
		Theban area	5

Table 6.33 Graphical forms of the stem of ʕzi.

As one can see in this table, the graphical form of the stem is relatively stable. In the majority of the attestations the interpretant G1 () is added, and only rarely is there a classifier added. Based on these attestations, there does not seem to be a regional preference for writing ʕzi, when used as a verbal form.

Appendix 6.36. ʕzb (to create)<sup>195</sup>

This is a rare lemma, currently only attested in one witness, M4C. In the database, this verb occurs twice. According to van der Molen, there might be another attestation in B2L,<sup>196</sup> although that might not be the same verb. For M4C, the graphical form does not vary, and it consistently uses the same stem, M43-D58 (see figure 6.3).<sup>197</sup>

However, this lemma could be considered unique to Meir, although this assumption would be based on one witness, and could simply be a feature of this witness, rather than a regional feature.

Appendix 6.37. ʕpr (to acquire, to provide, to equip)<sup>198</sup>

The lemma ʕpr occurs relatively often, with 98 attestations in the database. However, as this lemma occurs as a substantive and adjective as well, there are only 78 attestations where ʕpr is used as a verb form.<sup>199</sup> Note that the instances of the Aa20 () only reflect a standardisation of the graphemes used in Table 6.34 Graphical forms of the stem of ʕpr.

The major variation between the forms is the use of only the Aa20 or the addition of the Y2 (𓄱) classifier. In Aswan and Gebelein there are no attestations of the use of the Y2 classifier. The witnesses A1C, G1T and G2T, which provide these attestations should be considered a group, as they represent a southern Egyptian school of artists in the First Intermediate Period, together with T3C.<sup>203</sup> The fact that both Aswan and Gebelein do not have the Y2 classifier supports that grouping. However, as one can see in form 12, the Y2 classifier is used in the Theban area by T1L. As this witness is dated to the reign of Mentuhotep II-III,<sup>204</sup> it is possible that the complete absence of the Y2 in the form is only limited to Aswan and Gebelein.

In Deir el-Bersha it is possible to use the Y2 classifier or leave it out, although the addition of the Y2 is more likely than the absence. Moreover, witnesses that are dated to the late 11th dynasty and the early

Appendix 6.38. *f*3 (to smash, to crush)<sup>207</sup>

The lemma *f*3 is relatively rare, with only eleven attestations, of which ten come from the same phrase.<sup>208</sup> As table 6.35 shows, the form of the stem can be highly variable, to the extent that form 6 and 7 are technically no longer the same word. However, as *f*3<sup>c</sup> does not seem to exist as a lemma, it was considered a corruption of *f*3. Same principle was applied to form 6, even though a noun ḥf<sup>c</sup> (gluttony, glutton) does exist.<sup>209</sup>

Table 6.35 Graphical forms of the stem of *f*3.

For this lemma, there does not seem to be any regional preference, as the variation originates only in the use of a classifier. Witnesses from Deir el-Bersha are more likely to use the F51 (⤵) as a classifier.<sup>210</sup> However, as this occurs in the Theban area as well, it might be a personal choice of the artist.

<sup>206</sup> For form 5 only three of the eight attestations do not belong to this group (B16C and B1L), where there is only one attestation of B2Bo with form 9.

<sup>208</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 30,b, 330,b, occurs only in one witness, S2C, where it seems to be a corruption of dī=i f3w (I give splendour), see S1C.

<sup>209</sup> However, as this occurs in S10C in connection with the testicles of Seth and in a sdm.n=f, considering this a corruption in comparison to the other witnesses would be preferred here. As this form has a D40 (⤵) classifier, it is necessary to read the D36 (⤵), which is why it cannot be considered a variant of lemma ḥfi, see appendix 6.4.

Appendix 6.39. ʕn (to cover, to be covered)<sup>211</sup>

The lemma ʕn is in the database only attested in one phrase,<sup>212</sup> where it is attested for six witnesses. As one can see in table 6.36, variation lies mostly in the use of a classifier, and which classifier is used. Note that form 4 represents a corruption, as the N35 (.....) is lost.<sup>213</sup> However, based on the classifier it can be assumed that the lemma ʕn is intended here, rather than the verb ʕi (to squeeze).<sup>214</sup>

	1	Gebelein	1		3	Meir Theban area Gebelein	1 1 1
	2	Meir	1		4	Aswan	1

Table 6.36 Graphical forms of the stem of ʕn.

With the exception of form 2, all the variants with a classifier use some variant of T12 () , which seems to be influenced more by the type of script used in the witness, instead of intentionally using a graphical variant of the sign. However, form 3 seems to be the preferred form of this lemma, as it is attested outside the database in Asyut as well.<sup>215</sup> In the database, form 2 seems to only occur in Meir, but is attested in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>216</sup> Thus, there does not seem to be a regional preference for this lemma.

Appendix 6.40. ʕm (to swallow, to devour, to absorb)<sup>217</sup>

In the database, this lemma is attested thirteen times.<sup>218</sup> For these attestations the verb is constantly used as an imperfective participle, as it is used in the name of divinities: ‘the one who swallows ...’. For this lemma, the variation is limited to the use and position of the classifier (see table 6.37).

The majority of the attestations use the A2 () classifier. Meir both has one attestation without a classifier, and one where the A2 has been written next to the G17 (). However, it would be assumptive to suggest more freedom in Meir, as the absence or the placement of the A2 could be simply due to the amount of space available, rather than any specific pattern. Moreover, the absence of a classifier is attested in Deir el-Bersha as well,<sup>219</sup> as is form 2.<sup>220</sup> Even so, the long format of form 3 is the preferred form for this lemma in most regions. Note that outside the database it is possible in Deir el-Bersha to use a Y2 () classifier as well.<sup>221</sup>

The use of the F20 () as classifier in the Theban area could suggest a unique feature. However, as this is based on the witness T1Be, which prefers to write the hieroglyphs clustered together,<sup>222</sup> it might have been a choice by the artist to use a sign which could form around the next word, and use less space. On the other hand, the F20 classifier is attested outside the database in T2Be as well.<sup>223</sup>

Appendix 6.41. ʕnn (to entwine, to bind up)<sup>224</sup>

This lemma is rare in the database, with nine attestations that all occur in the same phrase.<sup>225</sup> The following table (table 6.38) shows the variations in the stem. As this verb is a 2ae gem lemma and gemination occurred, distinction was made between gemination and no gemination in the table.

Table 6.38 Graphical forms of the stem of ʿnn (to entwine).

As one can see, the use of the V1 (⤵) classifier is completely stable. Beni Hasan seems to add a M29 (Ⓛ) to the classifier group, but this is based on de Buck, and not yet validated with the original. Thus, the M29 might be an interpretation by the author, rather than the correct sign. Nonetheless, the sole attestation of this verb in the database from Beni Hasan adds an additional feature to the classifier. However, it might be a unique feature of this witness (BH2C), as another attestation outside the database does not have it.<sup>226</sup>

For the current attestations in the database, it could be suggested that the use of the M22*M22 group (ⓂⓂ) could be considered a feature of Meir. However, outside the database the use of M22*M22 group occurs as well in Deir el-Bersha and in P.Gard.2.<sup>227</sup> Thus, there do not seem to be any regional preferences for this lemma.

Appendix 6.42. ʿnn (to turn back, to bring back, to wring)<sup>228</sup>

This lemma is extremely rare, as it occurs three times in the database.<sup>229</sup> As it only occurs once in Deir el-Bersha, Beni Hasan and the Theban area, it is not possible to make meaningful claims for regional preference. Moreover, form 2 shows that it the spelling could be identical to ʿnn in 0. In table 6.39 one can see the three different graphical forms:

Appendix 6.43. ʕnh (to live)<sup>230</sup>

The lemma of ʕnh is relatively common, with a total of 347 attestations. However, as was the case with ʕi (see appendix 6.35), a large number of these attestations are actually substantives or adjectives.<sup>231</sup> In the database, there are a total of 183 attestations where this lemma is used as a verb form.<sup>232</sup> In table 6.40, one can see that the majority of the graphical forms are either form 3 or form 4, which is simply a variation between a long format and a compact format. Form 1 is a rare spelling, in which the word is written phonetically.

<sup>231</sup> Although it could be argued that the border between a participle and a substantive for this lemma is extremely vague.

Although it is based on the position of the S34 (𓆎), there does seem to be some regional preferences. In Asyut the compact format of form 2 does occur, but it is relatively rare, as it only has three attestations versus 24 attestations of the long format of form 4. Thus, there seem to be a clear preference for the long format in Asyut. This preference would support the suggestion that Y1C originates from Asyut,<sup>235</sup> as it only uses the long format. However, the majority of the attestations in P.Gard.2 and Pap.Berl use form 2, while they are suggested to originate from Asyut as well.<sup>236</sup> Thus, although using the long format in Asyut might be the case for coffins, it does not seem to apply for papyri.

Although not bound to a single region, there seems to have been a preference for using the compact format (form 3) in Saqqara, el-Lisht and Gebelein. In Beni Hasan likewise there seems to have been a preference for the compact format, although the long format occurred there as well. The same is the case for witnesses from Meir, which have a clear preference for the compact writing, although the long format occurs twice. With 42 attestations, it is clear that the preference in Deir el-Bersha lies with the compact format. However, as the long format is attested 26 times as well, there seems to have been some freedom in Deir el-Bersha. In the Theban area there is no preference in the graphical form, as the attestations of form 2 and 4 are about the same.

Appendix 6.44. 𓆎 (to swear)

This is a unique lemma, which only occurs once in the database.<sup>237</sup> Due to the use of a A2 (𓆎) classifier (see figure 6.4), it is clear that it should not be read as 𓆎 (to live; see appendix 6.43). The sole attestation comes from Meir (M1NY), but it is possible that it is a corruption, as all the other witnesses use 𓆎 (to live) in the phrase.<sup>238</sup> However, when the classifier is not taken into regard, it follows the preference of Meir to use a compact format for 𓆎 (see appendix 6.43).

Appendix 6.45. 𓆎 (to mount up, to ascent, to approach)<sup>239</sup>

The lemma 𓆎 is attested 22 times in the database.<sup>240</sup> Note that there is overlap for this lemma with 𓆎 (see appendix 6.20), as they are functionally similar, and for example in I,44,d and II,76,b, where both lemmas are used by the witnesses.<sup>241</sup> In table 6.41, the attestation per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>238</sup> It is possible the A2 was added as a clarification that the god who is discussed here does not 'lives in butchery' (location), but rather 'lives through butchery' (agency), as if the god is nourished by it. In this case, it would fall under 𓆎 (to live) instead.

<sup>241</sup> In I,44,d, T9C, there is even a case where both 𓆎 and 𓆎 are used in the same phrase, where the other witnesses usually use one or the other.

Table 6.41 Graphical forms of the stem of  $\epsilon r$ .

As one can see in the table, the graphical form of this lemma is surprisingly stable. The use of the D54 ( $\Delta$ ) classifier only occurs Deir el-Bersha. In general, this lemma is only rarely used outside Deir el-Bersha, as both attestations of Asyut are dubious and the occurrence of form 2 in the Theban area seems to be an exception, as the other witnesses from the Theban area use the lemma  $i\epsilon r$  instead in the same phrase.<sup>244</sup> Based on this, it could be argued that the use of  $\epsilon r$  over  $i\epsilon r$  might be a preference of Deir el-Bersha. However, in the attestations of this lemma in Gracia Zamacona,<sup>245</sup> which includes all attestations of this lemma in the Coffin Texts, it becomes clear that  $\epsilon r$  is used in other regions as well.

Appendix 6.46. $\epsilon h_3$ (to fight)<sup>246</sup>

This lemma is relatively common, as it is attested 155 times in the database. However, in the same manner as  $\epsilon_3 i$ , the lemma is often used for substantives,<sup>247</sup> and is only attested 30 times as a verb form.<sup>248</sup> Note that it was attempted to correctly represent the different graphical forms of D34 ( $\Delta$ ), and that the exact form should not be considered important. Due to the varied type of script used in most witnesses, the distinctions in the different classes of D34 are usually not clearly visible.<sup>249</sup> In table 6.42, one can see that form 2 is completely unique. This form represents a unique spelling of  $\epsilon h_3$  as  $i h n$ ,<sup>250</sup> which is currently only attested in Beni Hasan. However, as this is based on only one witness (BH1Br), the current data is not sufficient to suggest that this only occurs in Beni Hasan.

<sup>243</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 44,d (S10C), reconstructed, no longer visible, so the spelling or graphical form might have been completely different.

<sup>245</sup> Gracia Zamacona (2008), p. 264-274. Note that he did not make any distinction between  $i\epsilon r$  and  $\epsilon r$ .

<sup>247</sup> As for example fighter, battlefield and warship were added under this lemma in the database, instead of receiving their own lemma.

<sup>249</sup> A class is considered a group of graphemes with similar iconic features, see Polis (2020) About Thot Sign List (TSL). Goal, datamodel and audience of TSL, <http://thotsignlist.org/About> (accessed 29-06-2020). The new grapheme was made by myself for the TSL, and is currently not yet part of the repertoire of Jshesh.

<sup>250</sup> Note that although it is spelled  $i h$  or  $\epsilon h$  here,  $i h n$  is the more common form of this lemma for the substantive forms in BH1Br.

Table 6.42 Graphical forms of the stem of  $\text{ḥ}3$ .

The use of the D40 () classifier is less common than the A24 () which is rather remarkable, as the A24 takes up a lot more space in the column than the D40 would. The use of the D40 classifier in Saqqara needs to be discounted however, as it is a reconstruction (Sq8Sq).<sup>251</sup> The other two attestations from Saqqara do not have any classifier, which is the case in el-Lisht as well. Thus, it could be suggested that for the most northern attestations of this lemma in the Coffin Texts, there could be a preference for not using a classifier at all, as the other regions like Deir el-Bersha and the Theban area can occur with and without classifier. In Meir however, all the attestations have some sort of classifier attached,<sup>252</sup> although the exact form may vary. Thus, it seems that the use of a classifier is preferred in Meir.

The use of the G1 () interpretant occurs once in Meir and the Theban area. However, it seems to represent a personal preference of the artist. The use of the humanoid figure in form 1 is extremely rare, and seems to represent an interpretation of de Buck, instead of a distinct separate sign.<sup>253</sup>

<sup>253</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 19,c (MC105), de Buck added a sic to this sign, and it seems that it might have been a corruption of the D34 instead, where the weapon was turned into two legs.

Appendix 6.47. $\text{ḥ}^c$ (to stand, to rise up)<sup>254</sup>

This lemma is attested relatively often, as it was attested 82 times<sup>255</sup> in the database when used as a verbal form.<sup>256</sup> In table 6.43, one can see that form 4 is most common, as it is attested 61 times. The use of a classifier is relatively rare, but can occur. Additionally, there are many unique spellings as well.

One of the features that might reflect a regional preference is the use of the D54 ( $\Delta$ ) classifier which is attested in Deir el-Bersha, Meir and the Theban area. However, form 6 occurs only in Deir el-Bersha, whereas Meir and the Theban area only use the classifier when there is no D36 ( $\text{—}$ ) before the P6 ( $\text{𓂏}$ ). Thus, the combination of the classifier and an initial D36 seems to be unique to Deir el-Bersha, although the form without an initial D36 occurs once as well (form 9). Additionally, the use of the D54 classifier seems to only occur in witnesses from Amenemhat II onwards,<sup>257</sup> and thus might represent a development over time.

<sup>255</sup> In total there are 114 attestations, but 32 of these attestations are substantives.

<sup>256</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 14,b, 25,a, 25,b, 26,b, 330-331,a, 386,b, 405,d; Buck (1947) CT III, p. 17,c, 186,b, 248-249,d; Buck (1951) CT IV, p. 278,c, 279,d, 281,a. For additional attestations outside the database, see Plas & Borghouts (1998), p. 56 and Gracia Zamacona (2008), p. 275-327.

<sup>257</sup> The use of a D54 classifier occurs in B1C, B5C, B15C, B17C, B1Y, M4C, T1Be, T2Be and T2L. Only T2L is slightly earlier, as Willems (1988), p. 115, dates it to a period between Sesostri I and Amenemhat II.

The use of humanoid signs as classifiers or phonemograms is rare, and only occurs once in the Theban area and twice in two witnesses which are believed to be from Asyut.<sup>258</sup> It would be assumptive to base a claim on only three witnesses, but for the lemma ḥꜥ the use of a humanoid sign would not support the suggestion that Pap.Berl. and Y1C originate from Asyut.

The use of P7 (𓂏) is only attested twice, once in Deir el-Bersha (form 12) and once in Aswan (form 7). The use of this grapheme seems not to be a regional preference, but rather a feature of the writing style and amount of space available to the artist.

For this lemma, there are only a few signs of regional preference, with fuzzy borders. There is a distinct form where there is an initial D36 when the classifier D54 is used, which only occurs in Deir el-Bersha. However, the use of D54 on its own occurs in Meir and the Theban area as well. The lack of an initial D36 does occur in multiple regions, but is most common in witnesses from the Theban area.

Appendix 6.48. ḥꜥ (to extinguish, to quench)<sup>259</sup>

In the database, this lemma occurs 27 times.<sup>260</sup> As one can see in table 6.44, the graphical form of this lemma is remarkably constant over the various regions.

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

				Gebelein	1
	2	Asyut	1

Table 6.44 Graphical forms of the stem of ḥꜥ.

Form 2 should be considered the same as form 1, as the only variation is the orientation of the classifier. This alternative orientation is due to the fact that in I,378,a, S1C is written oriented to the right, rather than to the left. This causes certain signs, like the V31A (𓂏) to be written as the V31 (𓂏), even if the witness would normally use V31A if the writing was oriented to the left. Thus, the orientation of the glyphs should not represent a regional pattern.

Even though the graphical form of the attestations is relatively constant, there are two attestations from the Theban area that add a M17 (𓂏) or replace the D36 (𓂏) with a M17. It could be suggested that this is a preference of the Theban area, but outside the database there is an attestation from Meir as well.<sup>261</sup> Nonetheless, it is clear that the Theban area is more likely to use the M17 with this lemma, although it is rarely the preferred form.

Appendix 6.49. ḥi (to fly, to fly away)<sup>262</sup>

The lemma ḥi is attested eleven times in the database, although all attestations come from the same phrase in spell 335.<sup>263</sup> As one can see in table 6.45, there are three different graphical forms, which vary based on the classifier.

Table 6.45 Graphical forms of the stem of ḥi.

The use of G40 () occurs in one witness (M1NY), but this is rather due to the type of script used in this witness. Whereas the other witnesses use a near hieratic cursive script,<sup>264</sup> M1NY is much closer to hieroglyphic.<sup>265</sup> In hieratic, it is nearly impossible to differentiate between G40 and G41 ()<sup>266</sup> thus it could be argued that the other witnesses might have intended to use the G40, but it can no longer be recognised as such. The additional classifier D54 () only occurs in Meir and the Theban area, which could suggest that this only occurred in the southern regions of Egypt. However, this suggestion might be assumptive, as there are no additional attestations of this lemma in the Coffin Texts.<sup>267</sup>

Appendix 6.50. ṣṣ (to be numerous, to be many)

This lemma is attested 25 times in the database, but the majority of these attestations are substantive. Only in six attestations is it used as a verb,<sup>268</sup> in a nfr-ḥr construction. The variation in the spelling is relatively limited, with only three different forms attested (table 6.46):

Table 6.46 Graphical forms of the stem of 𐤊𐤍.

Based on this table, one can assume that Meir prefers only the use of the I1 (𐤊𐤍), where Deir el-Bersha can use a variety of graphical forms. However, when compared to the stem of a substantive,<sup>269</sup> it becomes clear that Meir can include the interpretant G1 (𐤊𐤍). However, the use of the phonetic spelling (form 1) is only attested in Deir el-Bersha, even though it occurs in P.Gard.4 as well, although the I1 is included in this witness.<sup>270</sup> The complete absence of the I1 is only attested in Deir el-Bersha, while a Y2 (𐤊𐤍) classifier can be included in Deir el-Bersha.<sup>271</sup>

Appendix 6.51. 𐤊𐤍 (to enter)<sup>272</sup>

The lemma 𐤊𐤍 is attested 122 times in the database.<sup>273</sup> In table 6.47, the different graphical forms of 𐤊𐤍 are set out. Note that in form 4,<sup>274</sup> the G1 (𐤊𐤍) is considered to be a corruption of a G35 (𐤊𐤍).<sup>275</sup> Alternatively, it could be the lemma 𐤊𐤍𐤎 (to be accurate), although it would be the only attestation of that lemma in the database.<sup>276</sup>

Table 6.47 Graphical forms of the stem of 𓆏.

As one can see above, most of the graphical variants are used in multiple regions, and there might be a regional preference, but only to the extent that one graphical form occurs more in one region than the other. For example, Deir el-Bersha uses form 2, 3, 5, 6 and 8, but form 3 and 8 are attested the most. However, in Asyut there is a clear preference to use either form 6 or 8. In these attestations the interpretants D36 (𓆏) and N29 (𓆏) are never written, and the G35 is used in all of them. The D54 (𓆏) classifier is optional, the use of G35 is not. Therefore, if a D36 or N29 is written with 𓆏, it seems unlikely that it would have come from Asyut.<sup>278</sup>

Appendix 6.52. 𓆏𓆏 (to be far)<sup>279</sup>

This lemma has eight attestations in the database, from the same phrase of spell 20.<sup>280</sup> As table 6.48 shows, there are only two graphical forms, which vary based on the addition of the G1 (𓆏) interpretant. Although the table suggests that the absence of the G1 only occurs in Deir el-Bersha, it occurs in other regions as well.<sup>281</sup> Note that outside the database the D54 (𓆏) classifier can be added in Deir el-Bersha and Asyut as well.<sup>282</sup> However, as there are no features that is unique to one region, it seems unlikely that there is a regional preference for this lemma.

<sup>277</sup> Note that this attestation, Buck (1935) CT I, p. 399,b (M23C) is reconstructed, and could therefore be spelled differently as well.

<sup>278</sup> It is possible that additional graphical forms that do include the D36 or N29 exist in Asyut, but were not covered by the spells currently encoded in the database.

Appendix 6.53. wʒḥ (to lay down, to offer, to endure)<sup>283</sup>

In the database there are eight attestations of this lemma.<sup>284</sup> In table 6.49, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

	2	Asyut	1		4	Deir el-Bersha	1

Table 6.49 Graphical forms of the stem of wʒḥ.

In the database it seems that the Y2 (⏟) classifier only occurs in Deir el-Bersha. However, outside the database, the Y2 classifier is attested in Asyut and Meir as well.<sup>285</sup> The use of the G1 (𐎗) interpretant occurs only in Asyut in the database, but occurs in other regions outside the database as well.<sup>286</sup> In the database it seems that only in Deir el-Bersha the V4 (𐎗) phonogram can be left out (form 1), but outside the database this occurs in other regions as well.<sup>287</sup> However, it needs to be noted that in Asyut the V4 phonogram is always added for this lemma.

Appendix 6.54. wꜣd (to be green, to be fresh, to cause to flourish)<sup>288</sup>

This lemma has 22 attestations in the database, but only nine represent verbal forms.<sup>289</sup> In table 6.50, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that as de Buck corrected every M13A (𓄀) into a M13 (𓄁), it was only possible to distinguish between the two classes of the same sign in the attestations which were seen by the author. Therefore, the variation between these two classes of the same sign should not be considered relevant.

Table 6.50 Graphical forms of the stem of wꜣd.

In the database, it seems that only in Meir and the Theban area the M13/M13A can be used without interpretants or classifiers. Outside the database this is attested in Deir el-Bersha.<sup>290</sup> The use of the M14 (𓄂) is only attested in Deir el-Bersha and the Theban area. There do not seem to be any other regional features for this lemma, although it is possible to write this lemma phonetically with a V4 (𓄃) phonemogram outside the database.<sup>291</sup>

Appendix 6.55. wꜣi (to be alone, to be unique)<sup>292</sup>

This lemma is relatively common in the database, with 191 attestations. However, the majority of these attestations are adjectives or substantives, with only 46 attestations representing verbal forms.<sup>293</sup> In table 6.51, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

For this lemma, the use of the T21 () alone seems to only occur in Asyut when used as a verbal form, although in Asyut it is more common outside the database to use form 1. Form 2 is only attested in Meir and the Theban area, which is true outside the database as well. In the database, it seems that the G37 () classifier is only used in Meir (form 3), but outside the database this is attested in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>294</sup> Nonetheless, it seems that form 1 and form 4 are the preferred forms for this lemma in all regions.

Appendix 6.56. w<sup>c</sup>b (to purify, to be pure)<sup>295</sup>

In the database, there are 71 attestations of this lemma. However, only 51 of these attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>296</sup> In table 6.52, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

For this lemma, there does not seem to be a regional preference, as most features are attested in multiple regions. Even though the database suggests that in the Theban area the N35A (𓏏) classifier is constantly added, outside the database the lemma can leave it out as well.<sup>298</sup>

<sup>297</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 21,d (T9C). Note that this is the only attestations of this lemma in the database which received a i. prefix.

Appendix 6.57. w<sup>c</sup>r (to flee, to move quickly)<sup>299</sup>

In the database there are eleven attestations of this lemma, from the same phrase in spell 398.<sup>300</sup> In table 6.53, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

In the database it seems that the D54 (∧) classifier only occurs in Meir, but outside the database it is attested in Deir el-Bersha<sup>301</sup> and Asyut as well.<sup>302</sup> Thus, it seems unlikely that there is any regional preference for this lemma, although Gebelein seems to prefer a compact format (form 1).

Appendix 6.58. wb3 (to drill, to open)<sup>303</sup>

In the database, there are 26 attestations for this lemma.<sup>304</sup> In table 6.54, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

The use of the G43 () phonemogram is only attested in Beni Hasan in the database. However, it occurs in other regions outside the database as well.<sup>306</sup> In the database, the addition of the G1 interpretant is only attested in Deir el-Bersha (form 11), but it occurs in Meir as well.<sup>307</sup> Furthermore, it seems that Gebelein and Aswan only use form 7, but outside the database form 8 is used in these regions as well.<sup>308</sup> The Y2 () classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha in the database, but occurs outside of it in the Theban area as well.<sup>309</sup> Finally, the use of N2 () or one of its classes to replace the U26 () is only attested in Deir el-Bersha and Asyut, and only rarely. Thus, except in the exact form of the U26 or its variants there might be a regional preference, for example with form 5 and 6 in Asyut. There do not seem to be any additional regional features for this lemma.

Table 6.55 Graphical forms of the stem of wbn.

Although the graphical form is highly varied in this lemma, there does not seem to be a clear regional preference. The use of the H8 (𓆎) occurs in Deir el-Bersha and the Theban area (form 2, 3, 4, 11, 12, 13 and 16), but is more likely to be added in Deir el-Bersha than the Theban area. In the database it seems that Asyut only uses form 15, but outside the database form 7 is used as well.<sup>314</sup> Form 19 only occurs in el-Lisht, but represents a feature of the witness (L2Li), rather than a regional feature.<sup>315</sup>

Appendix 6.60. wpi (to divide, to open)<sup>316</sup>

In the database, there are 78 attestations of this lemma.<sup>317</sup> In table 6.56, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>313</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 115,a (B13C). Due to the N8 (𓆎) classifier I assume this is a variation of form 7.

In the database, the Z9 (×) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha and Meir. However, outside the database this classifier occurs in Saqqara and the Theban area as well.<sup>318</sup> The combination of the Z9 and Y2 (—) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha in the database, but occurs in Meir as well.<sup>319</sup> Form 4 only occurs in Deir el-Bersha and seems to be unique. However, it is possible that the N31 (≡) is not a classifier, but rather an erroneous addition, as this lemma often occurs in combination with w3.t (road).<sup>320</sup> The use of the G43 (𐀓) in the initial position is limited to Deir el-Bersha, Meir and P.Gard.2 in the database, but as it occurs in Gebelein as well,<sup>321</sup> therefore it cannot be considered a regional feature.

Appendix 6.61. wps̥ (to scatter light, to illuminate)<sup>322</sup>

There are 42 attestations in the database for this lemma.<sup>323</sup> In table 6.57, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

For this lemma, the F13 (∨) is not written in Gebelein and Aswan. However, there are no additional attestations of this lemma from these regions in the Coffin Texts to verify whether this is a regional preference of the two southernmost regions. Moreover, the use of the G43 (𓆎) seems to only occur to the south of Meir in the database (form 6-9). Outside the database this is attested in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>324</sup> The use of the Y2 (𓆏) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha.

Appendix 6.62. wn (to open)<sup>325</sup>

This is a common lemma in the database, with 197 attestations.<sup>326</sup> In table 6.58, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>324</sup> Buck (1956) CT VI, p. 382,j (B1C). Note that it is technically written as wps̄ here, as if the artist was trying to write ps̄ (to divide; see appendix 6.93). However, reading wps̄ makes more sense in this phrase.

Although the clear majority of the attestations are form 2, which is used in nearly all other regions, there are some features that could be considered a regional preference. The use of the M42 () is only attested in el-Lisht and Deir el-Bersha (form 7). Moreover, el-Lisht only uses this form for this lemma, as the E34 () is not attested in this region for this lemma. Finally, using the O31 () as logogram is only attested in Deir el-Bersha.

Appendix 6.63. wmm (to eat)<sup>328</sup>

The lemma wmm has 133 attestations in the database. However, only 132 attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>329</sup> In table 6.59, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>327</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 11,a, 56,a (T9C). As a sdmm=f does not make sense in these phrases, I assume this was an error in this witness.

In this lemma, the use of the A2 (𓆎) as logogram (form 1) is only attested in Deir el-Bersha. Moreover, although the use of the double X7 (𓆏) is attested in multiple regions, it is more likely to be used in Deir el-Bersha.<sup>331</sup> The addition of the G17 (𓆎) interpretant seems to only occur in Deir el-Bersha. The use of the

M17 (𓄀) as replacement classifier for the A2 is attested in Meir and the Theban area (form 11 and 22), but should be considered features of the supports (M2NY and T1Be), as the A2 is attested often enough in both regions. The use of the double X2 (𓄁) is only attested in Deir el-Bersha and Meir, although it is rare in both regions.

Appendix 6.64. wnn (to be, to exist)<sup>332</sup>

This lemma is common in the database, with 209 attestations.<sup>333</sup> In table 6.60, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that this is a 2ae gem. lemma and gemination occurs. Therefore, the table was separated in gemination and no gemination.

There is no clear regional variation for this lemma, although in the database the use of the M42 (𓄁) is only attested in Deir el-Bersha and el-Lisht. However, outside the database this occurs in the Theban area as well.<sup>335</sup> Therefore, this variation from the E34 (𓄀) should not be considered a regional feature. Form 5 is a unique form, which only occurs in Deir el-Bersha, but is more likely to be a feature of the witness (B5C), as form 3 and 7 are the more common forms of this lemma in this support.

Appendix 6.65. wrr (to be great)<sup>336</sup>

This lemma is common in the database, with 442 attestations. However, most of these are adjectives or substantives, with only 54 attestations representing verbal forms.<sup>337</sup> In table 6.61, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that form 4 and 5 represent geminating forms.

In this lemma, the A19 () phonemogram is only used in Deir el-Bersha and Asyut. The use of the Y2 () classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha, which is true outside the database as well. Form 3 is unique to el-Lisht, but should be considered a feature of the witness (L2Li), rather than a regional feature.<sup>338</sup> Note that outside the database it is possible in Saqqara to only write the G36 () phonemogram.<sup>339</sup>

Appendix 6.66. whn (to overturn, to overthrow)<sup>340</sup>

In the database there are fifteen attestations of this lemma.<sup>341</sup> In table 6.62, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

There are no regional preferences for this lemma, except for the use of the D40 (𓄳) classifier, which is only attested in Deir el-Bersha. Although the database suggests that the O37 (𓄳) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha and the Theban area, outside the database this classifier is attested in Saqqara and Asyut as well.<sup>342</sup>

Appendix 6.67. wh<sup>c</sup> (to loosen, to explain, to release)<sup>343</sup>

The lemma wh<sup>c</sup> has 30 attestations in the database.<sup>344</sup> In table 6.63, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Table 6.63 Graphical forms of the stem of wḥr.

In the database, the Theban area only occurs using the P4 () as a logogram. However, outside the database the lemma is written phonetically (form 5) as well.<sup>345</sup> Asyut and Gebelein do not use the P4 as logogram in the database, but are both attested outside the database using the P4 as logogram as well.<sup>346</sup> Thus, there does not seem to be a regional preference for this lemma, as nearly every feature is attested in more than one region.

Appendix 6.68. wḥm (to repeat)<sup>347</sup>

This lemma has 37 attestations in the database. However, only 34 attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>348</sup> In table 6.64, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

The use of the Y2 (𓏏) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha and Asyut, which is true outside the database as well. However, the use of the Y2 is rare in Asyut, while much more common in Deir el-Bersha, albeit only in the witnesses of the later period of coffin decoration. Beni Hasan is the only region where the use of the A26 (𓏏) is attested (form 4), which is true outside the database as well. There are no other features which represent a regional preference for this lemma.

Appendix 6.69. wh3 (to throw off, to shake out)<sup>350</sup>

This lemma has sixteen attestations in the database.<sup>351</sup> In table 6.65, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

		Theban area	3		5	Theban area	1
		Papyrus (Pap.Berl)	1			Unknown (Y1C)	1

Table 6.65 Graphical forms of the stem of wh3.

For this lemma, in Asyut there seems to be a preference for the long format of form 2 and 4, both within and outside of the database. The absence of the Aa1 (𓏏) interpretant is only attested in the Theban area

<sup>349</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 326,b (T3C). I assume the F35 (𓏏) is a corruption of the F25 (𓏏), as in near hieratic cursive script one can be mistaken for the other, if poorly made. See Möller (1909), p. 15-16, no. 162 and 180.

(form 5), but its absence is rare. Note that it is possible in Deir el-Bersha to replace the M12 (𓄀) with an M16 (𓄁) instead.<sup>353</sup>

Appendix 6.70. wsr (to be powerful, to be strong)<sup>354</sup>

The lemma wsr has 42 attestations in the database, but only 24 represent verbal forms.<sup>355</sup> In table 6.66, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

		Meir	4

						Meir	1
	4	Asyut	6		8	Meir	1
		Gebelein	1

Table 6.66 Graphical forms of the stem of wsr.

In the database, it seems as if the Y2 (𓄀) classifier is only attested in Meir and Asyut. However, outside the database it occurs in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>356</sup> The use of the G43 (𓄁) occurs only in Beni Hasan and Meir in the database, but is attested outside the database in Deir el-Bersha and Asyut as well.<sup>357</sup>

Moreover, in the database it seems that Asyut and Gebelein do not include the S29 (𓄀) interpretant in this lemma. However, outside the database the S29 interpretant is attested for both regions.<sup>358</sup> The use of the A24 (𓄁) is only attested in Deir el-Bersha in the database, but occurs in the Theban area as well.<sup>359</sup> Thus, there does not seem to be a clear regional preference for this lemma.

Appendix 6.71. wšb (to answer, to answer for)<sup>360</sup>

This lemma has only six attestations in the database. However, only four represent verbal forms.<sup>361</sup> As table 6.67 shows, every attestation has its own form:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Meir	1		3	Asyut	1
	2	Deir el-Bersha	1		4	Asyut	1

Table 6.67 Graphical forms of the stem of wšb.

In the database, the A2 () classifier is only attested in Asyut. Outside the database it is attested in Deir el-Bersha and Meir as well.<sup>362</sup> Nonetheless, it seems that Asyut always includes the A2 classifier, which is true outside the database as well. Additionally, only in Asyut is the F16 () classifier added (form 4). Finally, the Y2 () classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha.

Appendix 6.72. włs (to raise up, to lift up, to carry)<sup>363</sup>

There are only two attestations of this lemma in the database, from the same phrase of spell 75.<sup>364</sup> As table 6.68 shows, both regions have their own form. Form 1 is additionally attested in other,<sup>365</sup> but form 2 seems to be unique to Aswan. However, in this lemma the T14 () or O30 () are habitually written as classifiers, instead of the initial position.<sup>366</sup> Note that it is possible to have the T14 on the second position in Gebelein as well.<sup>367</sup>

Appendix 6.73. wdi (to put, to place)<sup>368</sup>

There are 50 attestations of this lemma in the database.<sup>369</sup> In table 6.69, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that as this is a 3ae inf. lemma and gemination occurs, the table has been separated in gemination and no gemination.

Table 6.69 Graphical forms of the stem of wḏi.

Note that the use of the different arms as classifier should not be considered a valid ground for variation, as in near hieratic cursive script these signs resemble each other.<sup>372</sup> Nonetheless, the U32 () is only attested in Deir el-Bersha. The use of a A24 () classifier only occurs in Saqqara in the database, but occurs outside the database in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>373</sup> The use of the Z9 () and the T30 () classifiers are only attested in Meir. However, these represent a specific reading of this lemma together with sṯz (to inflict a wound). The G37 () classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha, with the classifier representing the negative nature of this lemma in this phrase, rather than a general regional feature.

Appendix 6.74. wḏn (to be heavy, to weigh upon)<sup>374</sup>

There are eight attestations of this lemma in the database.<sup>375</sup> In table 6.70, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Table 6.70 Graphical forms of the stem of wdn.

In the database, the absence of the N35 (.....) is only attested in Deir el-Bersha, but outside the database Asyut can leave it out as well.<sup>378</sup> The use of the A24 (𓂏) classifier is only attested in the Theban area, while the D40 (𓂏) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha. Finally, form 5 is only attested in the Theban area, but seems to be a unique form.

Appendix 6.75. wḏ (to command, to order, to decree)<sup>379</sup>

This lemma is common in the database, with a total of 157 attestations. However, only 138 attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>380</sup> In table 6.71, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>376</sup> Note that this form could be easily mistaken for form 6 of wḏi, see table 6.69.

<sup>381</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 402-403,e-a (B1P)) Based on the other witnesses, I assumed the Aa27 (†) was an error for the V25 (!).

<sup>382</sup> Buck (1938) CT II, p. 76,b (M28C)) The G43 (Ⓜ) is a reconstruction that might not have been there at all.

Even though the graphical form of this lemma can be remarkably varied, there does not seem to be a regional preference for this lemma, as most features are shared in multiple regions. However, the use of the Z7 (𓏏) instead of a G43 (𓏏) in form 7 only occurs in Deir el-Bersha, although it is rare in that region as well.

Appendix 6.76. wḏ-mdw (to command, to give commands)<sup>383</sup>

This compound should technically be considered a part of wḏ (to command; see appendix 6.75). In the database there are only four attestations for this lemma, although only two represent verbal forms.<sup>384</sup> These two attestations were taken separately from wḏ, due to the placement of the Y2 (𓏏) classifier (see figure 6.5), which suggests that the compound was understood as an unit for the Ancient Egyptians. Figure 6.5 represents one of the common graphical forms for this lemma,<sup>385</sup> although it is possible in Deir el-Bersha to include the D46 (𓏏) interpretant of mdw above the Y2 in the column.<sup>386</sup>

Appendix 6.77. wḏz (to be hale, to be uninjured)<sup>387</sup>

This lemma is relatively common, with a total of 68 attestations in the database.<sup>388</sup> The following table shows the attestations per region for the graphical forms of the stem (table 6.72):

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

<sup>389</sup> Buck (1951) CT IV, p. 247,a (T2Be). Due to the other witnesses, this form was added to this lemma, although due to the D54 classifier, it could be argued that it should be part of wḏz (to proceed) instead (see appendix 6.78).

Table 6.72 Graphical forms of the stem of wḏz (to be hale).

In this table, form 2 represents a rare form, as it only occurs in one witness (M1NY). However, the variation with form 3 is only due to the use of a Y1 (≡) classifier over Y2 (≡), as the type of script in M1NY<sup>393</sup> allows for the differentiation between the two signs. Note that form 12 and 15 are problematic, as they can be read as part of lemma ḏzī (to extend; see appendix 6.349) or ḏzī (to cross; see appendix 6.350) as well.

As one can see, the graphical form of the lemma can be extremely varied, and there does not seem to be a clear regional preference for one form over another.

<sup>390</sup> Note that the classifier is a representation of an unclear sign, see Buck (1951) CT IV, p. 246,a (B1P).

<sup>391</sup> Buck (1951) CT IV, p. 247,a (L3Li) Due to the other witnesses, this form was added to this lemma, although due to the D54 (∧) classifier, it could be argued that it should be part of wḏz (to proceed) instead (see appendix 6.78).

<sup>392</sup> Buck (1947) CT III, p. 7,b (Sq10C) reconstructed, could be any other form as well.

Appendix 6.78. wḏz (to proceed, to go in procession)<sup>394</sup>

This lemma is attested 52 times, although it is limited to spell 335 in the database.<sup>395</sup> Note that it can be difficult to differentiate between this lemma and wḏz (to be hale; see appendix 6.77), due to the similar forms. Moreover, the use of the D54 (⤴) classifier is not limited to this lemma alone.<sup>396</sup> In table 6.73, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>397</sup> Sq2C Buck (1951) CT IV, p. 407 (308,b). Reconstruction, could be any other form as well.

As one can see here, the forms for this lemma are highly varied, but in a same manner as appendix 6.77, there does not seem to be any regional preference. Form 12, 13 and 14, where the G43 (𓄀) is written after the U29 (𓄁) seems to occur in Saqqara and the Theban area only, but the attestations are in the minority in comparison to the attestations in the same regions for form 5 and 9, that can be considered the two main preferred forms for all the regions. Although form 5 is not attested in the Theban area, the use of a long format cannot be used as a preference, as form 2, 4, 6 and 12 represent compact formats, that occur in the Theban area as well. Form 9 is the only form which occurs in Beni Hasan. However, the attestations are both from the same witness (BH1Br). As these two attestations are the only attestations of this lemma from Beni Hasan in the Coffin Texts,<sup>398</sup> it cannot be stated if this form represents Beni Hasan or if it represents this witness alone.

Appendix 6.79. wḏi (to send, to depart)

There are twelve attestations of this lemma in the database.<sup>399</sup> In table 6.74, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Theban area	1		5	Theban area	1
	2	Meir	2		6	Deir el-Bersha	1

	4	Theban area	1		Deir el-Bersha	1
					Meir	1
					Theban area	1

Table 6.74 Graphical forms of the stem of wḏi.

<sup>399</sup> Buck (1951) CT IV, p. 314,d, 317,d. This lemma is not attested in van der Molen and van der Plas & Borghouts, as they consider these phrases part of wḏi (to put; see appendix 6.73). However, the method I used for encoding required the use of this lemma, as wḏi is a valid lemma.

<sup>400</sup> Buck (1951) CT IV, p. 314,d (B1Y). I assume the I9 (𓄁) is a corruption of the I10 (𓄀), due to the similarity between the two signs in near hieratic cursive script, see Möller (1909), p. 24-25, no. 250, 263.

As this lemma is not attested in van der Molen and van der Plas & Borghouts, these attestations are currently the only ones of this lemma in the Coffin Texts.<sup>401</sup> Based on table 6.74, it seems that the use of the D46 (𓄳) only occurs in Deir el-Bersha and the Theban area. The use of the D40 (𓄲) classifier is only attested in the Theban area, and the G37 (𓄳) classifier is only attested in Meir.

Appendix 6.80. wḏꜥ (to separate, to judge, to appoint)<sup>402</sup>

In the database there are 125 attestations of this lemma, but only 123 of these attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>403</sup> In table 6.75, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

For additional attestations outside the database, see Plas & Borghouts (1998), p. 80.

<sup>404</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 391,b (M28C). As this witness was not seen by de Buck himself, I assume the N37 (𓄳) is a modern corruption of an Y2 (𓄳).

<sup>405</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 24,a (MC105, T9C). I am not certain why the D36 (𓄳) geminates here, as the addition of the X1 (𓄳) in the original makes it unlikely that this should be read as a sdmm=f, which would not make much sense here to begin with. However, it is remarkable that this only occurs in the Theban area.

In the database, the use of the G43 () on the initial position only occurs in Deir el-Bersha (form 16). However, outside the database this is attested in other regions as well.<sup>406</sup> The V1 () classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha in the database (form 7), but outside of it occurs in Saqqara as well.<sup>407</sup> In the database it seems the Aa22 () is only attested in Deir el-Bersha and Meir (form 13-15), but occurs outside the database in the Theban area as well.<sup>408</sup> The use of the T30 () as classifier only occurs in Deir el-Bersha and Meir in the database, but is attested in multiple other regions as well.<sup>409</sup> The A2 () classifier is only attested in Beni Hasan and Deir el-Bersha (form 9), and might represent a feature of the more northern attestations of this lemma, although it does not occur in Saqqara or el-Lisht.

Appendix 6.81. $w\dot{d}^c$ - $mdw$ (to judge, to separate words)<sup>410</sup>

This lemma has 86 attestations in the database. However, only 43 attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>411</sup> Note that this lemma is technically part of  $w\dot{d}^c$  (to separate; see appendix 6.80). In table 6.76, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

In the database, it seems that in Gebelein the D46 (𐎠) and G43 (𐎡) are always added (form 1, 8 and 12). However, outside the database they can be left out as well.<sup>414</sup> In Asyut there seems to be a preference to write this lemma in a compact form only (form 4-6), but outside the database long formats are attested as well.<sup>415</sup> Finally, the use of the A2 (𐎢) classifier is only attested in Meir and the Theban area, which is true outside the database as well, although the use of any humanoid classifier is rare.<sup>416</sup> Thus, this lemma does not have any clear regional preferences.

Appendix 6.82. wḏb (to turn, to turn back)<sup>417</sup>

This lemma has 24 attestations in the database.<sup>418</sup> In table 6.77, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>413</sup> Buck (1954) CT V, p. 159,e (T3L). I assume that the X1 (𐎠) and D21 (𐎡) group are a corruption of the Y2 (𐎢) classifier.

<sup>420</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 385,b (S1C). I assume the N18 (𓏏) is a corruption of the F46 (𓏏) or any of its classes, or for the N21 (𓏏).

<sup>421</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 34,b (T9C). The V28 (𓏏) is assumed to be a corruption of the V24 (𓏏), and the tusk of form 15 a variation for the N21 (𓏏).

In the database, the D55 (⤴) classifier is only attested in Meir and Deir el-Bersha. However, outside the database the D55 classifier is attested in Asyut as well.<sup>422</sup> In the database it seems that Asyut always uses the F46 (⤵) or any of its classes for this lemma (form 5-7). However, outside the database the N21 (⤶) is attested in Asyut as well.<sup>423</sup> The absence of the V24 (⤷) and the use of a D46 (⤸) is only attested in Meir, which is true outside the database as well. Note that outside the database it is possible in Meir to use a D40 (⤹) classifier, or use the F46 as logogram.<sup>424</sup>

Appendix 6.83. bꜣgi (to be weary, to be languid, to be limp)<sup>425</sup>

In the database, the lemma bꜣgi is attested 11 times, although only two attestations are of a verb form, both from the same phrase in spell 6.<sup>426</sup> However, as one is reconstructed, only one graphical form is attested (see figure 6.6) from S10C. However, the attestations of substantives in the database show that there is a preference in the other regions to include a D58 (⤺) as well in the spelling, although none of these include an attestation from Asyut, so it cannot be said if this is a regional preference, or a particularity of S10C.

Appendix 6.84. bnn (to beget)<sup>427</sup>

This lemma is attested eleven times in the database, where all attestations occur in the same phrase of spell 15.<sup>428</sup> The following table sets out the attestations per region for every graphical form (table 6.78):

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

<sup>426</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 18,a. Note that the other witnesses in this spell use pꜣg (to kneel) instead. I assume the variation occurred due to the phonetic proximity between p and b, and the fact that both lemmas use the same classifiers (A7 (⤴) or any of its classes). For additional attestations outside the database, see Plas & Borghouts (1998), p. 85 and Gracia Zamacona (2008), p. 443.

For this lemma, the use of the phallus classifier seems to be restricted to Deir el-Bersha, although the damage in the witnesses from the Theban area makes it difficult to be certain. Moreover, T9C used form 4, where a T30 (𐀓) is used instead of a phallus classifier, which can be assumed to be a corruption. As there are no other attestations in the database or in van der Molen, or in van der Plas & Borghouts<sup>431</sup> for the Coffin Texts, it cannot be stated with certainty whether the Theban area used a phallus classifier or not.

Appendix 6.85. bḥni (to cut up, to cut off, to punish)<sup>432</sup>

The lemma bḥni is attested twelve times in the database.<sup>433</sup> In table 6.79, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha	5		3	Deir el-Bersha	2
		Meir	1
		Asyut	1
	2	Deir el-Bersha	2		4	Theban area	1

Table 6.79 Graphical forms of the stem of bḥni.

For this lemma, the clear preference lies with form 1.<sup>434</sup> However, there are some distinct features in Deir el-Bersha. The use of the D40 (𐀓) as addition to the T30 (𐀓) classifier seems only to occur in Deir el-Bersha (B1C and B5C), specifically in the witnesses that are dated to the later period of coffin decoration.<sup>435</sup> However, as B1C additionally uses form 1 in the same phrase (I,402,b-c), it is not exclusive. Form 3 occurs only in Deir el-Bersha, in B1Bo. It could be argued that it represents a style from the earlier period of coffin decoration in Deir el-Bersha.<sup>436</sup> However, B6C, which is dated to the same period, uses form 1, thus the use of form 3 is more likely a quirk of this support than a regional preference. The use of the F18 (𐀓) phonemogram in the Theban area seems unique, and does not occur outside the database. Therefore, it would be assumptive to associate this with a single region based on a single attestation. However, the F18 is used as classifier in Beni Hasan.<sup>437</sup>

Appendix 6.86. bs (to introduce, to initiate)<sup>438</sup>

This lemma is attested 25 times in the database.<sup>439</sup> In table 6.80, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha	2		7	Asyut	2
	2	Asyut	1		8	Deir el-Bersha	5

	6	Deir el-Bersha	1		12	Deir el-Bersha	1
		Asyut	3

Table 6.80 Graphical forms of the stem of bs.

In Asyut, there seems to be a possibility to write bs only phonetically, without the addition of a phono-repeater or classifier, which does not occur in the other regions. However, beyond the database, there is an attestation from Deir el-Bersha<sup>440</sup> and the Theban area<sup>441</sup> that does not include a phono-repeater or classifier. It must be noted that the absence of both is more common in Asyut than in the other regions. In Deir el-Bersha, it is possible to use a A2 () as a classifier, which seems to be unique to the region.

Appendix 6.87. pꜣ (auxiliary verb, to have done in the past)<sup>442</sup>

In the database, there are eighteen attestations of this lemma, from the same phrase of spell 30.<sup>443</sup> In table 6.81, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

	1	Deir el-Bersha	1		6	Asyut	1
		Asyut	2

	5	Deir el-Bersha	1		10	Deir el-Bersha	2
		Meir	2 <sup>445</sup>

Table 6.81 Graphical forms of the stem of pꜣ.

One of the major variations is in the use of the G41 () instead of the G40 (), which occurs in Deir el-Bersha and the Theban area. However, it is not unlikely that this variation occurs due to transcription, rather than original intent, as the witnesses with form 8-10 all use a near hieratic cursive script, in which it is not possible to differentiate between the G40 and G41.<sup>446</sup> However, Deir el-Bersha has one feature which is not attested in the other regions, which is the addition of a circle sign (◦) at the end of the word (form 8 and 10). In Asyut it is possible to only add the Q3 () interpretant (form 2-4), which is not attested in the other regions. Regrettably, there are no additional attestations of this lemma from Meir outside the database, which makes it impossible to say if the reconstructions are correct.

<sup>445</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 84,c (M24C, M25C), complete reconstruction, could be any other form as well.

Appendix 6.88. pꜣh (to scratch)<sup>447</sup>

In the database there is only one attestation,<sup>448</sup> as most of the other witnesses use pꜣg (to kneel; see appendix 6.89) here. However, it is possible that this lemma does not even exist in this phrase, as de Buck did not see this witness (B15C) himself (see figure 6.7), so the Aa1 (☉) could be a modern error for the W11 (☉). Based on the attestations from outside the database, the graphical form seems to be the common form of this lemma, even though the D40 (☐) classifier can be added in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>449</sup>

Appendix 6.89. pꜣg (to kneel, to squat)<sup>450</sup>

The lemma pꜣg only has six attestations in the database, from the same phrase of spell 6.<sup>451</sup> As one can see in table 6.82, there are only two graphical forms, based on the addition of the G1 (☐). However, as all attestations are from Deir el-Bersha, and there are no other attestations of this lemma in the Coffin Texts, it cannot be said that these two graphical forms represent a regional preference. Moreover, there does not seem to be a variation based on the date of the witness, as form 2 is attested with B4Bo and B1P, which represent the early and later period of coffin decoration in Deir el-Bersha.

Appendix 6.90. pri (to go forth)<sup>452</sup>

This lemma is one of the most common verb forms in the database, with 669 attestations. However, as the substantive pr.t (procession) was encoded under this lemma as well, only 641 attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>453</sup> In table 6.83, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. As this verb is a 3ae inf lemma and gemination occurred, the distinction between gemination and no gemination has been made in the table.

Table 6.83 Graphical forms of the stem of pri.

As this is a common lemma, it is not surprising that there is a form (form 8 and 18) which is used in nearly every region. The majority of the variation can be considered errors (form 16) or due to additions of Z1 (i) strokes which are unnecessary (form 6, 9 and 10), but should not be considered regional preferences. Nonetheless, in Gebelein there is a higher tendency to use a compact format (form 1, 2, 5, 19), even though the long format of form 8 occurs as well.

Table 6.84 Graphical forms of the stem of phr.

Although form 1, 3 and 4 are relatively common for this lemma, it needs to be noted that these forms only occur in the database when used in the construction ts-phr (vice-versa). Only in the Theban area does form 2 occur, although it only occurs in T9C. Outside the database it is attested in T1C as well,<sup>458</sup> while form 2 occurs in Asyut as well.<sup>459</sup> In the database, the use of the F47 (≡) instead of the F46 (≡), see form 3, is only attested in the Theban area, but outside the database it is attested in Asyut as well.<sup>460</sup> In the database, Gebelein is only attested with a F48 (≡), but outside the database form 19 is attested as well for Gebelein.<sup>461</sup> However, it seems that only using the two interpretants Q3 (⊖) and D21 (↔) and the classifier D54 (∧) is the preferred form in Gebelein for this lemma. The use of the F48 is only attested in Deir el-Bersha, the Theban area and Gebelein (form 4, 11, 17, 20). However, the use of the F49 (≡) is only attested in the Theban area (form 12), which is more likely to use F48 or F49 instead of F46. The attestations from Beni Hasan seem to include the Q3, F32 (↔) and D21 in all its attestations, which is true outside the database as well.<sup>462</sup> Only in Asyut is the F32 replaced by an Aa1 (⊖). However, this only occurs in S10C (form 5-7), and should be considered a feature of this witness, rather than a regional preference in Asyut. The use of the D55 (∧) classifier (form 10 and 16) is only attested in Deir el-Bersha, but all attestations come from the same witness (B2Bo).

Appendix 6.92. psḥ (to bite)<sup>463</sup>

The lemma psḥ has seven attestations in the database, from the same phrase of spell 22.<sup>464</sup> In table 6.85, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha	1		4	Theban area	1
	2	Deir el-Bersha	1		5	Beni Hasan	1
	3	Deir el-Bersha Theban area	1 1		6	Deir el-Bersha	1

Table 6.85 Graphical forms of the stem of psḥ.

For this lemma, there do seem to be some regional preferences. The Theban area seems to prefer the long format of form 3 and 4.<sup>465</sup> The use of a Y2 (≡) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha, although it

<sup>465</sup> Note that outside the database there are attestations without the A2 (⊖) classifier as well, see Buck (1951) CT IV, p. 34,f (T1L), but it is constantly written in the long format.

might be a feature of the witness (B1P), rather than a regional preference. Form 5 suggests that there is a preference in Beni Hasan to use a S29 (Ⓛ). However, there do not seem to be any other attestations from Beni Hasan in the Coffin Texts, thus it might be simply a feature of the witness (BH5C), rather than a regional feature.

Appendix 6.93. psš (to divide)<sup>466</sup>

There are 27 attestations of this lemma in the database, but only eight attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>467</sup> In table 6.86, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

	1	Meir	1 <sup>468</sup>		4	Beni Hasan	2
	2	Deir el-Bersha	1			Deir el-Bersha	1
	3	Beni Hasan	1		5	Meir	1

Table 6.86 Graphical forms of the stem of psš.

There does not seem to be any real regional preference for this lemma. The attestations from Beni Hasan do always have a classifier, but as all attestations are from the same witness (BH1Br), this might be a feature of the witness, rather than Beni Hasan. Note that outside the database form 2 and form 4 are most commonly used in all the regions.<sup>469</sup>

Appendix 6.94. psd (to shine)<sup>470</sup>

In the database there are 21 attestations of this lemma.<sup>471</sup> In table 6.87, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>468</sup> Buck (1951) CT IV, p. 283,b (M1C). Assumed to be part of this lemma due to the Z9 (x) classifier.

Table 6.87 Graphical forms of the stem of psd.

For this lemma, there does not seem to be any regional preferences. However, the classifier of form 4 and 5 are only attested in Deir el-Bersha and Meir, although it is possible that these attestations represent features of the witness,<sup>474</sup> rather than a regional feature.

Appendix 6.95. ps̄n (to split)<sup>475</sup>

In the database there are 34 attestations of this lemma.<sup>476</sup> In table 6.88, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>472</sup> Buck (1951) CT IV, p. 293,c (T2Be). I assume that the F37 (𓆏) was attached due to the homonym psd (back).

<sup>473</sup> Buck (1951) CT IV, p. 407, 294,a (Sq2C). Partial reconstruction, it is possible that the N5 (𓆏) should be read as a N8 (𓆏), see form 6.

<sup>475</sup> Molen (2000), p. 142. Note that ps̄n Molen (2000), p. 140 was encoded under this lemma as well.

Table 6.88 Graphical forms of the stem of ps̄n.

In the database, it seems that Deir el-Bersha prefers to use ps̄sn rather than ps̄n for this lemma, even though ps̄n occurs in Deir el-Bersha as well (form 5). However, based on the attestations outside the database,<sup>478</sup> it becomes clear that ps̄sn is only used in witnesses from the later period of coffin creation in Deir el-Bersha,<sup>479</sup> as the earlier witnesses use ps̄n or ps̄š. The variant ps̄sn occurs in Saqqara and Meir as well, but are more an exception rather than the rule. The addition of an additional classifier beyond the Z9 (X) is rare, and is only attested in Meir and the Theban area. Moreover, the use of the D54 (Λ) classifier is only attested in Meir, although it is the only attestation of this classifier, and might therefore represent a feature of the witness (M1NY) rather than a regional feature, as M1NY is attested with form 5 as well.

Appendix 6.96. ps̄š (to spread out)<sup>480</sup>

In the database there are only two attestations of this lemma.<sup>481</sup> However, one of the two attestations (M6C) is a reconstruction. The form used in M21C (see figure 6.8) is simple, and there are only two other attestations of this lemma in the Coffin Texts,<sup>482</sup> which use a different classifier. Therefore, it cannot be said with certainty if figure 6.8 is the preferred form in Meir, or if it represents a feature of M21C.

Appendix 6.97. pgz (to unfold, to open up)<sup>483</sup>

The lemma pgz has twelve attestations in the database.<sup>484</sup> In table 6.89, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

	1	Theban area	1 <sup>485</sup>		4	Deir el-Bersha	3
	2	Gebelein	1			Meir	1
	3	Beni Hasan	2		5	Unknown (Y1C)	1
		Deir el-Bersha	2

Table 6.89 Graphical forms of the stem of pgz.

In this lemma, there does not seem to be any regional preference, as most witnesses use form 4. Gebelein seems to prefer the compact format of form 2, but outside the database form 4 is attested in Gebelein as well.<sup>486</sup> The use of the F51 (𓆏) classifier is only attested in Y1C, and seems to represent a unique feature of that witness. In Beni Hasan the D40 (𓄳) classifier is not used. However, as there are no additional attestations of this lemma in Beni Hasan, it might represent a regional feature, even though form 3 is not unique to Beni Hasan.<sup>487</sup>

Appendix 6.98. ptr (to see, to behold)<sup>488</sup>

In the database there are seven attestations of this lemma, in the same phrase of spell 97.<sup>489</sup> In table 6.90, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Theban area	1		3	Meir	1
	2	Meir	2		4	Deir el-Bersha	3

Table 6.90 Graphical forms of the stem of ptr.

In the database, it seems that there are distinct forms for every region. However, outside the database this is not true. Meir is only attested in the database without an eye classifier, but outside the database it is attested with a D5 (𓄿) classifier as well.<sup>490</sup> Deir el-Bersha is the only attestation in the database with a D5 classifier, but outside the database it is attested in other regions as well. However, if an eye is added as classifier in Deir el-Bersha, the D5 is commonly used. The use of the D4 (𓄿) as classifier is only attested in the Theban area in the database, which is true outside the database as well. However, it is remarkable that the D5 classifier does not occur in the Theban area, although other eyes like the D10 (𓄿)<sup>491</sup> are used as classifier there. The absence of an eye classifier is attested in all the other regions which use this lemma.

Appendix 6.99. pd (to stretch out, to spread out)<sup>492</sup>

This lemma has nine attestations in the database.<sup>493</sup> In table 6.91, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	el-Lisht Deir el-Bersha Asyut	1 1 1		4	Deir el-Bersha	1
	2	Asyut	1		5	Saqqara Deir el-Bersha	2 1

In this lemma, there is some variation in the classifiers. Deir el-Bersha can replace the T9 (𓂏) with the T10 (𓂐), although it seems to be a feature of the witness B1Bo, rather than a regional preference of Deir el-Bersha. The addition of the D54 (𓂑) is only attested in Saqqara and Deir el-Bersha. Note that outside the database form 2 is attested in Saqqara as well.<sup>494</sup> The addition of the D56 (𓂒) in Asyut (form 3) seems to be a unique feature, which is not repeated in the Coffin Texts. However, form 1 and 2 are most commonly used for this lemma in the Coffin Texts.

Appendix 6.100. f3i (to lift, to carry, to raise)<sup>495</sup>

The lemma f3i is relatively common in the database, with a total of 59 attestations.<sup>496</sup> In table 6.92, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. As this is a 3ae inf. lemma, the table is separated due to the occurrence of gemination.

<sup>497</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 370,b (B7C), reconstructed. Could be any other form as well.

Table 6.92 Graphical forms of the stem of fzi.

Even though the Theban area is underrepresented, it has an interesting feature, as the A9 (𓀓) only occurs as a logogram. However, this is only based on one witness (T3C). Attestations outside the database<sup>502</sup> indicate that classifiers are used in the Theban area as well. The witnesses from Asyut are only attested with form 13 in the database, even though outside the database they are attested with a A9 or equivalent as well. Thus, it cannot be suggested that Asyut prefers to write this lemma phonetically, even though the use of A9 or equivalent signs seems to be less common.

Deir el-Bersha has access to an extreme variety of forms, but based on the database, it seems that the use of the Y2 (𓀓) classifier only occurs in Deir el-Bersha. In Gebelein there seems to be a unique form as well (form 7). However, as it is based on one witness (G1T), it might represent a feature of this witness, rather than regional preference. In Meir, there seems to be a preference to use the A9 or an equivalent sign as a classifier rather than a logogram, when the lemma geminates (see form 16 and 18). However, the A9 or any equivalent can be left out as well (form 13), and is used as a logogram when the lemma does not geminate.

Appendix 6.101. f(ʒ)k (to be shaved, to be shorn)<sup>503</sup>

In the database, there are a total of 37 attestations for this lemma, although only seven of these attestations are verb forms,<sup>504</sup> which all occur in the same phrase of spell 154, where the other witnesses with this phrase use a substantive. Moreover, all the attestations do not vary in the graphical form of the stem (see figure 6.9), and are all from Deir el-Bersha. Thus, based on the database, it is not possible to suggest that there is a clear preference in the graphical form of the lemma f(ʒ)k, when used as a verbal form. As there are no other attestations, the only comparison can be made with the other substantives, which only vary due to the inclusion or the exclusion of the D3 (𐎎) classifier, which seems to be more prevalent in Deir el-Bersha, but its addition occurs in the other regions as well.

Appendix 6.102. fḏi (to pluck, to uproot)<sup>505</sup>

This lemma is rare in the database, with a total of six attestations, in the same phrase of spell 398.<sup>506</sup> As one can see in table 6.93, the spelling is relatively constant, with only some variation in the classifiers.

<sup>507</sup> Note that the D37 (𐎎) could be read as a D40 (𐎎) as well.

<sup>508</sup> MSC has an unusual addition to the classifier, and the V1 (𐎎) is only an approximation of the additional line written with the A19 (𐎎).

Appendix 6.103. m33 (to see)<sup>510</sup>

The lemma m33 is one of the common lemmas in the database, with 432 attestations. However, only 397 attestations are verbal forms.<sup>511</sup> In table 6.94 the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form. Note that the forms which include a N35 (.....) or S4 (𐎓) represents a subjunctive sdm=f.<sup>512</sup>

Table 6.94 Graphical forms of the stem of mꜣꜣ.

Form 7, 16 and 23 are the most common forms for this lemma, and are represented in nearly every region. However, some regional preferences seem to occur. The Theban area seems to have a preference not to write the N35 with the subjunctive sdm=f, apart from some rare instances.<sup>517</sup> The use of the S4 occurs only in Asyut, but as it only occurs in one witness (S11C), it cannot be considered a regional preference.

In Gebelein, there seems to be a preference for compact formats (form 6, 13, 15 and 22), although the long format of form 7 is attested as well. Additionally, the G1 () is always included in the forms used in Gebelein, which is true for Aswan as well. Moreover, although the Theban area is attested without the G1, this is not true for T3C. Thus, it could be argued that the constant inclusion of a G1 interpretant is a feature of the First Intermediate Period south Egyptian school of artists.<sup>518</sup>

Appendix 6.104. mꜣꜣ<sup>c</sup> (to be true)<sup>519</sup>

In the database, this lemma has 45 attestations. However, only 37 attestations represent a verbal form.<sup>520</sup> In table 6.95, the attestations per region for every graphical form of the stem are set out:

<sup>517</sup> There are 2 attestations with the N35 in the Theban area (form 23), while there are 10 attestations without the N35 (form 1 and 7).

<sup>518</sup> Although not uniquely for this group, as for example B5C only attestations with the G1 as well. However, for this period the inclusion is constant, where B1Bo, which is one of the earliest witnesses from Deir el-Bersha can leave the G1 out.

Table 6.95 Graphical forms of the stem of  $m\bar{z}^c$  (to be true).

In the database, form 5 only occurs in Deir el-Bersha, which suggests that it represents a regional preference. However, when compared to form 6, it becomes clear that the use of these two forms are more or less similar. Notably, there is an interesting feature hidden here, as form 5 is more popular with the later period of coffin decoration in Deir el-Bersha, where form 6 is more popular with the earlier period of coffin decoration. However, the forms are not completely exclusive, as form 5 has one attestation from B3Bo, and two from B4C,<sup>521</sup> and form 6 has one attestation from B9C.<sup>522</sup> Moreover, form 1 and 3 are not attested beyond the reign of Amenemhat II. Thus, the use of the classifier Y2 (𓏏) is most commonly a later period of coffin decoration preference in Deir el-Bersha. The use of form 5 is not unique to Deir el-Bersha, as outside the database the form is attested in Asyut as well.<sup>523</sup> The attestations from Meir seem to prefer the complete absence of the Y2 classifier.

As form 8 is based on L2Li, a witness de Buck did not see himself, it cannot be said if the use of the U5 (𓏏) represents a regional preference, or if this is a feature of the witness itself. However, there are no other attestations of this lemma in the Coffin Text for el-Lisht.

Appendix 6.105. $m\bar{z}^c$ (to offer, to present)<sup>524</sup>

In the database, there are a total of fifteen attestations for this lemma, from the same phrase of spell 335.<sup>525</sup> In table 6.96 the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note

<sup>521</sup> B4Bo is dated to the late 11th dynasty and early 12th dynasty, and B4C to Amenemhat I-II. The other attestations (B15C, B1L, B3L and B1P) are dated to Amenemhat II and Sesostris II-III.

<sup>522</sup> B9C is the youngest attestation with Amenemhat II, where the other attestations (B2Bo, B3Bo, B4Bo, B4C and B6C) are dated to the late 11th dynasty and early 12th dynasty and Amenemhat I-II.

however that only form 3 and 4 can be distinguished from the graphical forms attested for  $m\bar{z}^c$  (to be true).<sup>526</sup>

For this lemma, there does not seem to be a distinct regional preference. However, the use of humanoid figures as classifier is only attested in Meir and the Theban area, even though with single attestations. Outside the database only form 1 and 2 are attested, thus the use of humanoid classifiers most likely represents a unique feature in the witness, rather than a regional preference.

Appendix 6.106. $m\bar{z}^c$ -hrw (to be justified)<sup>527</sup>

This lemma was added as a separate entity<sup>528</sup>, even though it is technically a sub-lemma of  $m\bar{z}^c$  (to be true), as it represents a compound verb. Nonetheless, there are 162 attestations of the lemma  $m\bar{z}^c$ -hrw in the database, although only 110 attestations represent a verbal form,<sup>529</sup> as the substantive  $m\bar{z}^c$ -hrw (justification) was added in the database under this lemma. As one can see in table 6.97, the graphical form of this lemma can be remarkably varied.

In this lemma, a graphical form often occurs only in one witness, and therefore seems to represent a personal preference of the artist, rather than a regional feature. For example, form 32 has six attestations, but all come from the same witness (B4C). Nonetheless, there are some features that can represent a regional preference. The complete phonetic spelling of hrw occurs only in Deir el-Bersha (form 14, 18, 20, 23). However, with the exception of form 20, all these attestations are from the same witness (B3Bo). The addition of the Aa1 (𐎁) and D21 (𐎂) to the P8 (𐎃) in hrw occurs in the Theban area as well (form 21), but is more common in Deir el-Bersha. The other regions only add the G43 (𐎄) to hrw.

Based on the attestations from the database, it is possible to suggest that there is a preference in Asyut to use the long format (form 17, 24, 29 and 30). However, outside the database, compact forms are used as well.<sup>530</sup> The use of a Y2 (𐎅) is attested in Deir el-Bersha (form 4, 19, 22 and 27) and the Theban area (16), but is most prevalent in Deir el-Bersha.

Appendix 6.107. mꜣꜥ (to acclaim)<sup>531</sup>

The lemma mꜣꜥ has seven attestations in the database, all from the same phrase in spell 36.<sup>532</sup> In table 6.98, one can see that the majority of variation occurs due to the occurrence of the A2 (𐎆) classifier, and which vessel is used as a phono-repeater.

Table 6.98 Graphical forms of the stem of mꜣꜥ.

The attestation from el-Lisht (L2Li) stands out, as it uses a different vessel than the W7 (𐎇) as the phono-repeater. However, as this witness was not seen by de Buck himself, it cannot be said if this represents a regional variant, or if the vessel was a modern transcription instead. Due to the lack of attestations from different regions, it is difficult to say whether the forms from Deir el-Bersha are a representation of a regional preference. However, outside the database there is an attestation from Meir, which added a T14 (𐎈),<sup>533</sup> which does not occur in Deir el-Bersha, or el-Lisht.

Appendix 6.108. m(w)t (to die, to be dead)<sup>534</sup>

In the database, this lemma has a total of 58 attestations. However, as the substantive m(w)t (dead) was encoded under this lemma as well, there are only 18 attestations where this lemma is used as a verbal form.<sup>535</sup> As one can see in table 6.99, the graphical form of this lemma is remarkably stable. However, due to this stability, there does not seem to be any evidence of regional preferences for this lemma.

Appendix 6.109. mn (to endure, to remain, to be firm)<sup>536</sup>

This lemma is a good example that the choice of spells can strongly influence the number of attestations, as there is only one attestation of this lemma in the database,<sup>537</sup> even though it is relatively common in the Coffin Texts.<sup>538</sup> The sole attestation from Beni Hasan (see figure 6.10), cannot be considered a regional preference, as it is used in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>539</sup> Rather, it is one of the two most common forms of the lemma, as the other common form is written without the Y2 (𓂏) classifier.

Appendix 6.110. mni (to moor, to steer)<sup>540</sup>

In the database this lemma has fifteen attestations.<sup>541</sup> In table 6.100, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Table 6.100 Graphical forms of the stem of mn.

For this lemma, there does not seem to be a regional preference, as nearly every feature is used in at least two regions. Form 6 which uses a T22 (𐀓) is unique, but as this witness (Sq2C) is fragmentary, and not seen by de Buck himself, it cannot be said if it is an ancient variation, or simply a modern error for the P11 (𐀓). The use of the T14 (𐀓) in form 4 and 5 only occurs in Meir and the Theban area, but if one considers the similarity between the T14 and P11 in near hieratic cursive script,<sup>542</sup> it might have been a modern transcription error, instead of an intentional variation by the artist.

Appendix 6.111. mr (to be ill, to suffer, to have pain)<sup>543</sup>

In the database, this lemma has 28 attestations. However, only fourteen attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>544</sup> In table 6.101, the attestations per region are set out for the graphical forms of the stem:

<sup>542</sup> Möller (1909), p. 43-44, no. 457 and 472.

Table 6.101 Graphical forms of the stem of mr (to be ill).

In the database, there are some features that resemble regional preferences for this lemma. In Meir, there seems to be a preference for the long format of form 6 and the absence of a classifier. However, outside the database there is an attestation of form 4 as well,<sup>545</sup> even though a classifier is not attested in Meir for this lemma. The use of the G37 (𓂏) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha and the Theban area, including the attestations outside the database. The use of the D40 (𓂏) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha. In Gebelein and Aswan, only the compact format of form 1 and 4 is used, and there is no classifier attested, including the attestations outside the database. Note that form 4 is one of the most common forms for this lemma, and should not be considered a regional variant, but rather the standard form for this lemma in all regions.

Appendix 6.112. mr (to bind)<sup>546</sup>

In the database there are 20 attestations for this lemma, although all are from the same phrase in spell 225.<sup>547</sup> In table 6.102, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Table 6.102 Graphical forms of the stem of mr (to bind).

For this lemma, there is one clear regional variation which occurs in the Theban area, where this lemma is written mi rather than mr. However, mr is used as well (form 5). It could be argued that this is due to the date of the witness, as MC105 (form 5) is dated to Mentuhotep II-IV,<sup>549</sup> whereas T1Be, T2Be and T2L (form 7 and 8) are dated to Sesostris I – Amenemhat II (T2L)<sup>550</sup> or Sesostris III (T1Be, T2Be).<sup>551</sup> Thus, it seems that the use of mi for this lemma in the Theban area reflects a later period of coffin decoration.

In Deir el-Bersha, there are some witnesses (B2Bo, B4Bo, B4C and B1Y; form 2 and 3) that include a rectangle (▬) sign with this lemma. Based on the attestation from Saqqara (form 4), it could be suggested that Saqqara only uses the S28 (𓂏) as classifier (form 4). However, outside the database, form 5 is used in Saqqara as well.<sup>552</sup>

Appendix 6.113. miri (to love, to wish)<sup>553</sup>

The lemma miri is relatively common in the database, with 160 attestations. However, only 142 of these attestations reflect verbal forms.<sup>554</sup> In table 6.103, the attestations per region are set out for the graphical forms of the stem. Note that this is a 3ae inf. lemma and gemination occurs in the database, therefore the table has been divided in gemination and no gemination.

<sup>548</sup> M25C and M2NY, both these attestations are reconstructions, that cannot be distinguished from miri (to love). However, based on the available space in the lacuna, the addition of a classifier seems unlikely.

As one can see in the table, the majority of the attestations are either form 2 or form 9. However, some regional conditioned variation does seem to occur. The classifier Y2 (𓄠) is only attested in witnesses from Deir el-Bersha (form 6, 7 and 11) as well as the N36 (𓄡) phono-repeater. The N37 (𓄢) phono-repeater is only attested in Meir and Deir el-Bersha. The Theban area is the only region where the N36 is used as a phonemogram when this lemma is used as a verb.

Appendix 6.114. mhi (to be forgetful, to be neglectful)<sup>555</sup>

This lemma has only five attestations in the database, from the same phrase of spell 151.<sup>556</sup> In table 6.104, the attestations per region are set out for the graphical forms of the stem:

In the database, it seems that the use of classifiers only occurs in Deir el-Bersha, but outside the database the G37 () is attested in Gebelein as well.<sup>558</sup> The minimal format of form 1 is in the database only attested in Saqqara, but outside the database attested for A1C as well.<sup>559</sup> The use of the G43 () is only attested in Asyut and Deir el-Bersha, but due to a lack of additional attestations outside the database, it cannot be said with certainty if the use of the G43 is a regional preference.

Appendix 6.115. mḥ (to fill, to complete)<sup>560</sup>

In the database, the lemma mḥ has 72 attestations.<sup>561</sup> In table 6.105, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

One of the major variations between the forms is the use of a G17 () as the initial sign. Although most regions have forms with or without the initial G17, Gebelein and Aswan are only attested with the initial G17 (form 5), where Saqqara is only attested without the initial G17 (form 8 and 12). However, outside the database this is not true for Saqqara or Aswan or Gebelein.<sup>562</sup> In the database, the use of the D40 () classifier seems to only occur in Meir, although it needs to be noted that there are no other attestations of the use of D40 as classifier for the lemma mḥ in the Coffin Texts. The attestations from Asyut are always accompanied by a Y2 () classifier in the database. However, outside the database this is not true,<sup>563</sup> although the use of Y2 is more common than the absence of it. Beni Hasan only occurs with form 12, but as it is a single attestation, it would be assumptive to suggest it represents a regional preference.

Appendix 6.116. mḥi (to drown, to swim, to overflow)<sup>564</sup>

In the database there are only three attestations of this lemma, from Gebelein and Aswan, in the same phrase of spell 398.<sup>565</sup> Moreover, as one can see in table 6.106, the two forms are closely related to each other, as the only variation occurs in the position of the V28 (𓂏) to the N35A (𓂏). Note that these two forms cannot be considered a regional variant,<sup>566</sup> as outside the database form 1 is attested in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>567</sup>

Appendix 6.117. msi (to bear, to give birth, to bring forth)<sup>568</sup>

This lemma is relatively common in the database, with a total of 234 attestations. However, only 194 attestations are of verbal forms.<sup>569</sup> In table 6.107, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that this is a 3ae inf. lemma and gemination occurs in the database, therefore the table has been divided in gemination and no gemination. Due to the extremely varied nature of the hieroglyph B3 (𓂏), B4 (𓂏), and their classes, all the classifiers of some form of humanoid with lines beneath it should be considered the same classifier, as the variation between them is rarely intentional.

In this lemma, there are hardly any regional features when all the humanoid classifiers are treated as the same sign. Nonetheless, minor regional preferences seem to occur. For example, in el-Lisht, Gebelein and Aswan (form 11, 14 and 25), there is no attestation of a humanoid classifier or logogram. The use of the humanoid figure as a logogram is only attested in Deir el-Bersha, Meir and Asyut (form 1-10 and 32), whereas Beni Hasan and the Theban area only use it as a classifier (form 12, 13, 19, 20 and 30). The use of the G17 (𓆎) interpretant is only attested in Saqqara (form 31), although it is extremely rare in the Coffin Texts. The reversed direction of the S29 (𓆏) occurs only in Asyut (form 26 and 34), but this is due to the left to right direction of the writing in this witness (S2C), rather than an intentional variation.

Appendix 6.118. msbi (to burn)<sup>579</sup>

There is only one attestation of this lemma in the database, in a name of a divinity in spell 335.<sup>580</sup> The attestation occurs in M1NY (see figure 6.11). However, based on another attestation of this name (B1P), it could be possible that the G17 (𓆎) is a corruption of the G1 (𓆏), in which case ꜣsb (see appendix 6.9) should be read. According to van der Molen, there is one other attestation of this lemma in the Coffin Texts in Deir el-Bersha,<sup>581</sup> where the other witnesses use ꜣsb as well.

Appendix 6.119. msdi (to hate, to dislike)<sup>582</sup>

In the database there are a total of 27 attestations of this lemma.<sup>583</sup> In table 6.108, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of stem. Note that in the database only imperfective participles are attested, thus every form shows gemination.

In the database, the only noticeable variation occurs with the use of the A2 (𓀡) classifier. However, this does not represent a regional pattern for the Theban area, as this classifier is used outside the database in Saqqara and Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>584</sup> Therefore, it is unlikely that there are any regional preferences for this lemma.

Appendix 6.120. mki (to guard, to protect)<sup>585</sup>

The lemma mki has only four attestations in the database, from the same phrase of spell 27.<sup>586</sup> In table 6.109, one can see that every region has its own form, although it needs to be noted that one of the attestations from the Theban area (MC105) is a reconstruction.

	1	Theban area	2
	2	Deir el-Bersha	1
	3	Asyut	1

Table 6.109 Graphical forms of the stem of mki.

Although the database suggests distinct variants in the regions, form 1 is used in other regions as well.<sup>587</sup> The use of a D40 (𓄀) classifier after the V31 (𓄁) or V31A (𓄂) is most common in Asyut, but occurs in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>588</sup> The use of a A24 (𓀢) classifier is most commonly attested in Deir el-Bersha, but is attested in P.Gard.2 as well,<sup>589</sup> which is assumed to originate from Asyut.<sup>590</sup> However, the use of the A24 classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha for coffin decorations.

Appendix 6.121. mtn (to assign)<sup>591</sup>

There are only ten attestations of this lemma in the database, from the same phrase in spell 215.<sup>592</sup> As one can see in table 6.110, the spelling is relatively constant, and the variation rather takes place in the graphical form.

Table 6.110 Graphical forms of the stem of mn.

Based on the table, there does not seem to be a regional preference for this lemma. The only clear exception occurs in P.Gard.2, which uses a N31 (𓏏) classifier rather than a Y2 (𓏑). Outside the database there are only three additional attestations of this lemma,<sup>593</sup> which all use the N31 classifier, which is interesting as these are from P.Gard.3 and P.Gard.4. Thus, the use of this classifier might represent a feature of papyri, rather than a regional feature of the Coffin Texts.

Appendix 6.122. mdw (to speak)<sup>594</sup>

This lemma has 217 attestations in the database. However, only 62 attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>595</sup> In table 6.111, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>596</sup> Buck (1951) CT IV, p. 253,b (M1NY), the A1 (𓂏) classifier is assumed to be an error for A2 (𓂏), as this witness uses a A40 (𓂏) for the first person.

Table 6.111 Graphical forms of the stem of mdw.

In this lemma, the Theban area is the only region where all the interpretants of the S43 () were added (form 6), although this might be a feature of the witness (MC105). The absence of the G43 () only occurs in Deir el-Bersha and Asyut. In the other regions the sign is constantly included, even though the G43 is used in Deir el-Bersha and Asyut as well. In el-Lisht, there seems to be a preference for using a compact format (form 2 and 8). Form 9 and 16 represent variants where the A2 () classifier was replaced by a M17*Z1 group (), but as this occurs in Saqqara and Meir, it most likely reflects features of the witnesses (Sq1C, M1C) rather than a regional preference. Therefore, Saqqara does not use any

<sup>598</sup> Buck (1951) CT IV, p. 253,b (M1C) Note that the M17*Z1 () group functions as a classifier, replacing the A2 (), as this witness dislikes using humanoid figures.

humanoid classifier for this lemma in the database. However, outside the database the A2 is used in Saqqara as well.<sup>599</sup>

Appendix 6.123. mds (to be sharp, to be violent)<sup>600</sup>

In the database there are sixteen attestations of this lemma, although only two are considered verbal forms.<sup>601</sup> As both these attestations are from the Theban area, and considered a substantive by van der Plas & Borghouts, the value of this lemma for regional variation is limited. As one can see in table 6.112, the two attestations have two different forms, based on the classifier and which sign for the phonemogram s is used. Compared to the attestations outside the database, it seems that the O34 (𓂏) is only attested in the Theban area.

Table 6.112 Graphical forms of the stem of mds.

Appendix 6.124. mdh (to be invested)<sup>602</sup>

This lemma has only four attestations, from the same phrase in spell 398.<sup>603</sup> As one can see in table 6.113, there are two forms, which vary based on the position of G17 (𓂏) and the classifier. However, form 1 should not be considered a sign of a regional pattern, as form 2 occurs in Gebelein (G2T) as well. Moreover, the substantive mdh (fillet) which occurs in the same phrase is written as form 2.<sup>604</sup>

<sup>601</sup> Buck (1951) CT IV, p. 315,e. For additional attestations outside the database, see Plas & Borghouts (1998), p. 135. However, it could be argued that the substantives of Buck (1938) CT II, p. 56,a, are actually participles: mds (the sharp/ferocious one).

<sup>603</sup> Buck (1954) CT V, p. 158,a. Note that this is the only attestation of this lemma in the Coffin Texts according to Plas & Borghouts (1998), p. 135.

<sup>604</sup> It is the compact writing of G1T, where the I10 (𓂏) and V28 (𓂏) are written next to the G17 (𓂏) in the column, which forced the alternative placement of the classifier.

Appendix 6.125. nī (to rebuff, to drive away)<sup>605</sup>

In the database, there is only one attestation of this lemma.<sup>606</sup> However, based on the attestations outside the database, it seems that the form (see figure 6.12) is unique for this witness (T1C). However, as there are no other attestations of this lemma from the Theban area in the Coffin Texts, it cannot be said if this is a regional preference, or if this is a feature of this witness.

Appendix 6.126. nīs (to call, to reckon, to invoke)<sup>607</sup>

In the database there are seven attestations of this lemma, which all come from the same phrase of spell 398.<sup>608</sup> As one can see in table 6.114, the graphical form is remarkably stable, as the only variation occurred due to the classifier Y2 (𓂏) instead of the A2 (𓂏). In the database the Y2 classifier is only attested in Meir, but beyond the database the Y2 classifier is attested in Deir el-Bersha as well,<sup>609</sup> thus there does not seem to be a clear regional preference for this lemma.

Appendix 6.127. nwd (to turn aside, to turn back)<sup>610</sup>

There is only one attestation of this lemma in the database, in G1T.<sup>611</sup> The graphical form (see figure 6.13) is unique in this witness, although this is most likely due the placement of the W24 (◌), which is normally written above the I10 (𓂏). Thus, this compact format could represent a regional feature. Nonetheless, the use of this exact form is only attested in Gebelein, but could be a feature of the witness rather than a regional feature.

Appendix 6.128. nbi (to swim)<sup>612</sup>

In the database there are 21 attestations of this lemma.<sup>613</sup> In table 6.115, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that this is a 3ae inf. lemma and gemination occurs in the database, therefore the table has been divided in gemination and no gemination. Note that the humanoid classifiers (form 5, 6, 8 and 10) represent the closest similarity to the sign used in the original, rather than being exact representations of the signs.

Table 6.115 Graphical forms of the stem of nbi (to swim).

As one can see in the table above, the graphical forms of the lemma nbi are remarkably varied. However, there are some minor details that suggest a regional preference. The use of the S12 (𓂏) as a phonemogram is only attested in el-Lisht and Meir,<sup>617</sup> although it is more common in Meir. The use of the D40 (𓂏) classifier occurs in Deir el-Bersha and the Theban area (form 13), but is much more common in Deir el-Bersha (form 2, 9, 11 and 14). If the humanoid figures (form 5, 6, 8 and 10) are treated as classes of the same sign, namely a man who is swimming, there is no regional pattern to the use of these classifiers. Otherwise, these different graphemes should be considered unique forms bound to the region where they were attested.

Appendix 6.129. nbi (to be aflame, to be on fire)<sup>618</sup>

This lemma has only three attestations in the database, and all from the same witness (L1NY).<sup>619</sup> There are no additional attestations of this lemma in van der Plas & Borghouts. Thus, it is not possible to suggest a regional preference based on this lemma. As one can see in table 6.116, there are two graphical forms in which this lemma occurs, which vary based on the classifier.

<sup>617</sup> Note that this attestation is based on Buck (1951) CT IV, p. 295,b (L1NY), as the support deteriorated since de Buck worked on it. In the more recent image I had access to (see appendix.supports for more detail) this token is now lost. Therefore, I cannot say with certainty if this transcription is correct.

Appendix 6.130. nbs (to burn)<sup>620</sup>

This lemma has only eight attestations in the database.<sup>621</sup> Moreover, there are no additional attestations of this lemma outside the database.<sup>622</sup> In table 6.117, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha	1		4	Meir Theban area	1 1
	2	Beni Hasan Meir	2 1		5	Deir el-Bersha	1
	3	Meir	1

Table 6.117 Graphical forms of the stem of nbs.

For this lemma, there are only minor variation between the regions. The southernmost attestations, Meir and the Theban area, use a Q7 (𓆎) or one of its classes as classifier (form 3 and 4), where the northernmost attestations, Beni Hasan and Deir el-Bersha, do not use a classifier or use a D40 (𓆏) classifier. The use of the V30 (𓆐) as phonemogram is only attested in Deir el-Bersha, as is the use of the O34 (𓆑) instead of the S29 (𓆒). However, there are too few attestations of this lemma to suggest any regional preference with any degree of certainty.

Appendix 6.131. nfʒ (to exhale, to blow)<sup>623</sup>

In the database there are 79 attestations of this lemma, with the majority of the attestations coming from spell 75. However, only 77 attestations are of verbal forms.<sup>624</sup> In table 6.118, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Although form 9 is the favourite form for this lemma in most witnesses, there are signs of regional preferences. In the database, the use of the A2 (𓀓) classifier only occurs in Aswan, Gebelein and the Theban area. Moreover, the attestation from the Theban area is T3C. As these attestations are considered a group representing a south Egyptian school of artists in the First intermediate period,<sup>628</sup> it seems that the use of the A2 classifier with this lemma is a feature of that school.

The Y2 (𓏏) is only attested in Deir el-Bersha, although all attestations are from the same witness (B1C). Including the attestations outside the database, which do not use the Y2 classifier, it might be better to consider this a feature of the support, rather than a regional preference, even though it does not occur outside Deir el-Bersha in the Coffin Texts, and the use of the Y2 classifier is more commonly used in Deir el-Bersha for the other lemmas as well. The absence of one of the phonemograms (form 1, 2 and 4) is only attested in Deir el-Bersha and Meir.

Appendix 6.132. nfr (to be beautiful, to be good)<sup>629</sup>

This lemma is common in the database, as it has 346 attestations. However, most of these are substantives or adjectives, and only seventeen attestations are of verbal forms.<sup>630</sup> In table 6.119, the attestation per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

	1	Meir	2		4	Theban area	1
	2	Theban area	1		5	Deir el-Bersha	7
	3	Deir el-Bersha	1			Asyut	1
						Theban area	1

Table 6.119 Graphical forms of the stem of nfr.

The database suggests multiple regional preferences, that sadly cannot be supported when attestations outside the database are included as well. Form 1 is only attested in Meir, but outside the database it is attested in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>631</sup> The use of the D21 (𓏏) interpretant only (form 4) is attested in the Theban area and Gebelein, but outside the database it is attested in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>632</sup> The use of the Y2 (𓏏) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha, but outside the database it is attested in Asyut as well.<sup>633</sup> Therefore, it seems unlikely that there is any regional preference for this lemma.

Appendix 6.133. nmi (to traverse, to travel)<sup>634</sup>

This lemma has 23 attestations in the database.<sup>635</sup> In table 6.120, the attestation per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha	1		7	Deir el-Bersha	1
	2	Deir el-Bersha Meir	2 1		8	Deir el-Bersha	1
	3	Deir el-Bersha	3		9	Deir el-Bersha	1
	4	Deir el-Bersha Meir	1 5		10	Asyut	2
	5	Deir el-Bersha	2		11	Deir el-Bersha	1 <sup>636</sup>

Table 6.120 Graphical forms of the stem of nmi.

In the database, the addition of the M17 () seems only to occur in Deir el-Bersha and Meir. However, outside the database this is attested in Asyut and the Theban area as well.<sup>637</sup> The use of the phonorepeater O5 () is only attested in Deir el-Bersha and Asyut, although its use is more common in Deir el-Bersha. However, the different classes of the O5 of form 7 and 9 only occur in Deir el-Bersha. However, outside the database the O5 is used as phonogram in the Theban area.<sup>638</sup> The use of the D40 () classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha (form 3 and 6), which is true outside the database as well.

Appendix 6.134. nhm (to rejoice, to shout, to tremble, to quake)<sup>639</sup>

In the database there are fifteen attestations, of which fourteen attestations are of verbal forms.<sup>640</sup> As one can see in table 6.121, the graphical form of this lemma is remarkably constant:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Beni Hasan	1
	2	Deir el-Bersha	11
	3	el-Lisht	2

Table 6.121 Graphical forms of the stem of nhm.

It is difficult for this lemma to suggest any regional preferences, as the majority of the attestations, including those outside the database are from Deir el-Bersha. Nonetheless, it seems that the use of the D54 (△) classifier only occurs in Beni Hasan, although this is the only attestation from Beni Hasan and the only attestation of the D54 for this lemma in the Coffin Texts. The attestations from el-Lisht suggest that this region does not use a classifier, but outside the database that is true for Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>641</sup> However, as these are the only attestations from el-Lisht, it might still be a regional preference for el-Lisht, even though the absence of the classifier occurs outside el-Lisht as well.

However, including the attestations outside the database, it seems that this lemma does not occur south of Deir el-Bersha. This is most likely due to the spells in which this lemma occurs rather than an objection to the lemma south of Deir el-Bersha, as the substantive nhm (shout) is attested in Asyut.<sup>642</sup>

Appendix 6.135. nhb (to give, to loan, to bestow)<sup>643</sup>

There are fourteen attestations of this lemma in the database.<sup>644</sup> In table 6.122, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>644</sup> Buck (1947) CT III, p. 9,b; Buck (1951) CT IV, p. 88,c. For additional attestations outside the database, see Plas & Borghouts (1998), p. 161.

	2	Saqqara Meir Asyut	1 1 2		5	Deir el-Bersha	2
	3	Deir el-Bersha	1		6	Deir el-Bersha	1 <sup>645</sup>

Table 6.122 Graphical forms of the stem of nḥb.

In the database, there seems to be a clear distinction between Deir el-Bersha and the other regions (form 3). However, this is not true. Form 5 is attested in Saqqara as well,<sup>646</sup> thus the use of the Y2 (𓏏) classifier is not restricted to Deir el-Bersha. Nor is the use of the V28 (𓏏) interpretant, which is attested in Saqqara as well.<sup>647</sup> However, as there are no other attestations for Meir or Asyut beyond the database for this lemma, it cannot be said with certainty if these features occurred Meir and Asyut as well, or if the Y2 and V28 are features of the more northern attestations of this lemma.

Appendix 6.136. nḥm (to take away, to rescue)<sup>648</sup>

There are 128 attestations for the lemma nḥm in the database.<sup>649</sup> In table 6.123, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

	10	Deir el-Bersha Meir Asyut Theban area	7 4 1 2

Table 6.123 Graphical forms of the stem of nḥm.

In Gebelein, there seems to be a preference for a compact format, as form 10 and 12-16 are not attested in that region. The addition of the interpretant V28 (𓄀) is only attested in Gebelein and Meir. In Deir el-Bersha the N42 (𓄁) is always attested without any other sign next to it, as the attestations from Deir el-Bersha seem to prefer to use the long format of form 10 and 12-16. In the other regions both the compact and long format are attested.

<sup>650</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 371,c (M-Ann), the V30 (𓄁) is assumed to be a corruption of the N42 (𓄁). However, as de Buck did not see this witness himself, I cannot say if the corruption is modern, or ancient. This might be true for the D34 (𓄁) as well, which could have been a A24 (𓄁) if the script of the original was near hieratic cursive script.

Appendix 6.137. nḥn (to be young, to be a child)<sup>651</sup>

In the database there are only six attestations of this lemma, from the same phrase of spell 8.<sup>652</sup> In table 6.124, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha	1		4	Deir el-Bersha	1
	2	Theban area	1		5	Deir el-Bersha	1
	3	Theban area	1

Table 6.124 Graphical forms of the stem of nḥn.

As one can see in the table above, there does not seem to be any regional preference in the graphical form of the lemma, as nearly every feature occurs in Deir el-Bersha and the Theban area. However, outside the database it seems that Deir el-Bersha prefers to use the G37 () over the A17 () as classifier.<sup>653</sup>

Appendix 6.138. ns(i) (to burn)<sup>654</sup>

In the database, there are a total of 66 attestations of this lemma. However, only 44 attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>655</sup> In table 6.125, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>654</sup> Molen (2000), p. 245. Note that in the database this lemma is under nsr, but due to the attestations I decided to add it here as ns(i).

	4	Asyut	2		9	Deir el-Bersha	2
	5	Meir	1

Table 6.125 Graphical forms of the stem of nsr, ns, nsi.

The use of nsi (form 5) is only attested in Meir. The absence of the N35 interpretant is only attested in the Theban area,<sup>657</sup> although it is most likely due to the negation in this phrase. The absence of the F20 (↯) phonemogram occurs only in Deir el-Bersha, although rarely. In Gebelein there is a clear preference for the compact format of form 7, although form 7 represents one of the most common forms of this lemma.

Appendix 6.139. nsb (to lick, to devour)<sup>658</sup>

This lemma has nine attestations in the database.<sup>659</sup> In table 6.126, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>656</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 398,e (S2C). Reconstruction, might be a different spelling, or not have been written at all.

Table 6.126 Graphical forms of the stem of nsb.

In the database, there is no real variation in the regions. However, it seems that the attestations from Deir el-Bersha prefer to use a long format (form 1 and 4), rather than the more compact format used in the other witnesses. Outside the database, Deir el-Bersha uses compact formats as well.<sup>661</sup> Although it does not occur in the database, the Y2 (𓄱) can be used as classifier,<sup>662</sup> but is only attested in Deir el-Bersha.

Appendix 6.140. nš (to drive away, to expel)<sup>663</sup>

In the database there are eighteen attestations of this lemma.<sup>664</sup> In table 6.127, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha Meir	2 1

In the database, the only variation occurs based on the classifiers A24 (𓂏) and V36 (𓂏). It seems that Asyut and Deir el-Bersha can use either classifier, although the V36 is preferred. Outside the database form 2 is used for Gebelein and Aswan as well,<sup>665</sup> which suggests that form 2 is the most common form for this lemma, no matter the region. Meir only uses the A24 classifier, but this seems to be the only attestation in the Coffin Texts, and could therefore be a feature of this witness (M4C) as well.

Appendix 6.141. nšni (to rage, to be furious)<sup>666</sup>

This lemma is relatively common in the database with a total of 71 attestations. However, only 22 attestations are of verbal forms.<sup>667</sup> In table 6.128, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	el-Lisht Beni Hasan	1 1		5	Saqqara Theban area	1 1 <sup>668</sup>
	2	Saqqara el-Lisht Deir el-Bersha	1 1 4		6	Saqqara	2
	3	Theban area	1		7	Meir Theban area	3 4
	4	Meir	2

Table 6.128 Graphical forms of the stem of nšni.

As one can see in the table above, the variation in the graphical form only occurs in the classifier. The use of the D40 (𓂏) classifier is attested in three regions (form 2), although it is remarkable that it does not occur to the south of Deir el-Bersha. The A24 (𓂏) classifier is only attested in the Theban area in the database (form 3), but occurs in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>669</sup> The use of the N4 (𓂏) classifier (form 4 and 7) are attested in Meir and the Theban area. Notably, it seems that this is a required Coffin Texts classifier for this lemma in Meir. Although the use of a Sethian animal in the classifier (form 5 and 6) seems to be limited to Saqqara and the Theban area in the database, it occurs in other regions outside the database.<sup>670</sup>

<sup>668</sup> Buck (1951) CT IV, p. 239,c, 243,a (T2Be). Reconstruction, only the first N35 (𓂏) and N37 (𓂏) are visible. It is possible that this witness should only be reconstructed as form 7, which occurs in T1Be (which belongs to the same owner). However, the reconstruction was based on IV,141,a, where only the classifier is visible.

Appendix 6.142. nk (to copulate)<sup>671</sup>

The lemma nk has 65 attestations in the database.<sup>672</sup> In table 6.129, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Asyut	9		3	Deir el-Bersha Meir	29 8
	2	Asyut	10		4	Deir el-Bersha Meir	1 8

Table 6.129 Graphical forms of the stem of nk.

As one can see in the table above, the variation mostly occurs in the classifier. Form 1 and 2 are only attested in Asyut, while form 3 and 4 are only attested in Deir el-Bersha and Meir, although Deir el-Bersha favours form 3. However, outside the database form 1 is attested in Dendera<sup>673</sup> and P.Gard.3.<sup>674</sup> Thus, it is unlikely that there is a regional preference for this lemma.

Appendix 6.143. ngg (to cackle, to screech)<sup>675</sup>

In the database there are nineteen attestations of this lemma.<sup>676</sup> In table 6.130, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that as this is a 2ae gem. lemma and gemination occurs in the database, the table has been divided in gemination and no gemination. Note as well that ngn and ngi are considered alternative spellings for this lemma.

For this lemma, there are some features that suggest a regional preference. Form 3 is only attested in Deir el-Bersha, and moreover, only in B3Bo and B4C, which are both witnesses which belong to women. However, as there are no additional attestations of ngn outside the database, it cannot be said whether this is random, or intentional. Moreover, the witness B3C which belongs to the same owner as B4C uses form 5 as well, so the variation might have been random. Form 7 only occurs in the Theban area,<sup>678</sup> but there are no other attestations of ngi in the Coffin Texts, nor is the G41 () used as classifier anywhere else, so this might simply reflect a feature of the witness. The attestations from Meir (form 1 and form 9) seem to suggest that the compact format is preferred in this region. However, there are no other attestations from Meir in the Coffin Texts to validate this preference.

Appendix 6.144. nd (to consult, to inquire about, to ask)<sup>679</sup>

This lemma has a total of 32 attestations in the database.<sup>680</sup> In table 6.131, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Table 6.131 Graphical forms of the stem of nd (to consult).

In the database, the use of the Aa27 (𓂏) without interpretants is only attested in Asyut (form 1). However, outside the database this is additionally attested in Deir el-Bersha.<sup>685</sup> The use of the A24 (𓂏) as classifier is only attested in the Theban area (form 10), but as these attestations are from the same witness (T3C), it might simply represent a feature of this witness, rather than a regional preference. Beni Hasan is the only region in which the A26 (𓂏) is attested as classifier (form 4). However, there are no other attestations of this sign with this lemma in the Coffin Texts, thus it might reflect a unique feature of the witness BH2C, even though this witness uses form 7 as well.

<sup>682</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 332,c, 333,3* (T3C). Due to the A24 (𓂏) it looks more like nd (to protect; see appendix 6.145). However, based on the context and the other witnesses, this lemma seems to be more likely here.

<sup>683</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 326-328,c-a (T3C), the G17 (𓂏) is considered to be a corruption for a humanoid classifier.

<sup>684</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 332,c (B1P), the I9 (𓂏) addition should be considered an error, as the lemma nfd does not seem to exist, nor does a n=f make sense in this position.

Appendix 6.145. nd (to protect, to save)<sup>686</sup>

The lemma nd is relatively common, with a total of 218 attestations in the database. However, only 200 of these attestations are verbal forms.<sup>687</sup> Note that following Griffiths,<sup>688</sup> the attestations of nd-ḥr (to greet) were encoded under this lemma as well, which provided a large number of the attestations for this lemma.<sup>689</sup> In table 6.132, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Table 6.132 Graphical forms of the stem of nd (to protect).

As one can see in the table above, the graphical form of this lemma is remarkably varied. However, it needs to be noted that the position of the signs under the tail of the I10 (𓂏), for example in form 27 and 31 could be considered a modern interpretation, as in near hieratic cursive script the I10 does not necessarily have a long downwards tail,<sup>698</sup> which is the case in hieroglyphic script. It seems that for this lemma there is a clear preference to not use the interpretant N35 (.....) over its inclusion, as only 50 attestations out of the 200 attestations use the interpretant N35. However, it is not unlikely that this is due to the imperative, which commonly gets the i. prefix attached.

Nonetheless, there are some regional features. The attestations from Gebelein and Aswan do not occur without the N35 and I10 as interpretants. Additionally, T3C from the Theban area does not include these interpretants. Thus, there seems to be a preference in the attestations representing the First Intermediate Period southern Egyptian school of artists.<sup>699</sup>

In the database, the use of the A24 (𓂏) classifier is only attested in the Theban area (form 13 and 29).<sup>700</sup> However, outside the database this is attested in Deir el-Bersha and Beni Hasan as well.<sup>701</sup> Therefore, it cannot represent a regional preference.

Appendix 6.146. ndm (to be sweet, to be pleasant)<sup>702</sup>

In the database, this lemma has 40 attestations, but only 24 of these attestations reflect verbal forms.<sup>703</sup> As one can see in table 6.133, the majority of the attestations are form 3, which is represented in most regions.

Table 6.133 Graphical forms of the stem of ndm.

Form 2 only occurs in el-Lisht, as it uses a partial form of the hieroglyph G17 (). However, this resembles a feature of the witness (L2Li) rather than a regional preference.<sup>704</sup> In the database, form 4 is only attested in Deir el-Bersha, but outside the database it is used in Asyut as well.<sup>705</sup> Likewise, the use of the Y2 () classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha in the database, but occurs outside the database in Asyut.<sup>706</sup> The use of the M29 () in the initial position in a verbal form is only attested in Deir el-Bersha and el-Lisht, which is true outside the database as well.<sup>707</sup> However, the use of the M29 in the initial position is rare.

Appendix 6.147. ndri (to hold fast, to seize, to grasp)<sup>708</sup>

The lemma ndri has 29 attestations in the database.<sup>709</sup> In table 6.134, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>704</sup> However, the use of partial hieroglyphs for the hieroglyphs of animates is to my knowledge only attested in el-Lisht.

Table 6.134 Graphical forms of the stem of ndri.

For this lemma, the major variation occurs in the use of the classifier. In the database, there is a remarkable feature between form 3 and form 4. All the attestations from Deir el-Bersha with form 3<sup>711</sup> are from the early period of coffin decoration, whereas the attestations of form 4<sup>712</sup> are from the later period of coffin decoration. However, outside the database there is a witness from the later period of coffin decoration (B12C) which uses form 3 as well.<sup>713</sup> Nonetheless, the earlier period of coffin decoration in Deir el-Bersha does not use the D40 (𐀀) as classifier, but rather uses a A24 (𐀄) or no classifier at all. The use of form 1 only occurs in Deir el-Bersha, even though it is only attested in B3Bo, even outside the database. Therefore, it should be considered a feature of this witness, rather than a regional feature. There are no clear regional preferences for the other regions, which commonly use form 2-4.

Appendix 6.148. rwī (to go away, to depart)<sup>714</sup>

In the database there are eleven attestations of this lemma, from the same phrase in spell 75.<sup>715</sup> As table 6.135 shows, the only variation is based on the position of the D54 (𐀀). There does not seem to be a regional preference for this lemma, as form 2 is attested outside the database in Asyut as well.<sup>716</sup>

<sup>710</sup> Buck (1938) CT II, p. 258,a (B3Bo), the A19*V1 group (𐀀) should be considered a single grapheme.

<sup>716</sup> Buck (1947) CT III, p. 120,e (S6C), it seems that form 2 only occurs if there is a lack of space available in the column.

Appendix 6.149. rmni (to shoulder, to carry, to support)<sup>717</sup>

This lemma has seven attestations in the database.<sup>718</sup> In table 6.136, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

		Gebelein	1
		Aswan	1
	2	Meir	1 <sup>719</sup>
	3	Meir	1

Table 6.136 Graphical forms of the stem of rmni.

In the database, the majority of the witnesses and regions use form 1, while there are two additional forms in Meir. Outside the database form 1 is most commonly used form in other regions as well. Form 2 and 3 seem to be unique forms, rather than additional regional features of Meir.

Appendix 6.150. rnn (to rejoice, to praise)<sup>720</sup>

This lemma has seven attestations in the database, from the same phrase of spell 36.<sup>721</sup> Table 6.137 shows that there are only two variations of the lemma in the database, based on the use of the N35 (.....) or M22 (†).

It can be suggested that the use of the M22 for this lemma only occurs in Deir el-Bersha, which is true outside the database, even though the use of the N35 is attested in Deir el-Bersha as well.

Appendix 6.151. rh (to know, to learn)<sup>722</sup>

This is one of the more common lemmas in the database, with a total of 378 attestations. However, only 365 attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>723</sup> In table 6.138, the attestations per region are set out for every witness:

Table 6.138 Graphical forms of the stem of rh.

As table 6.138 shows, the form of this lemma is remarkably constant, with most regions using either form 1 or form 5. Form 2 and form 3 are only attested in one witness (M1NY), where the script allows for the differentiation between the Y1 (—) and the Y2 (—) classifier. In the database it seems that Aswan is only attested with form 1, but outside the database form 5 is attested as well.<sup>724</sup> As el-Lisht only has attestations with form 5, it can be suggested that the addition of the Y2 classifier is a regional feature.

Appendix 6.152. rs (to wake, to watch)<sup>726</sup>

There are four attestations of this lemma in the database,<sup>727</sup> but they all represent functional corruptions of tr=s (its time) which is used in the other regions. As table 6.139 shows, there are distinct forms for el-Lisht and the Theban area. However, outside the database form 2 is used in Deir el-Bersha as well,<sup>728</sup> although the witnesses from Deir el-Bersha prefer to add a D5 (𓄀) classifier. In the Theban area the addition of an eye classifier is likewise more common than form 2.<sup>729</sup> Form 1 is a unique form that is not repeated in the Coffin Texts, as habitually a T13 (𓄏) or T14 (𓄐) is added.

Appendix 6.153. rkrk (to creep)<sup>730</sup>

In the database there are 3 attestations of this lemma,<sup>731</sup> which are the only attestations of this lemma in the Coffin Texts. Table 6.140 shows that there are two graphical forms for this lemma, one for the Theban area, and one for Meir. For this lemma, the Theban area added a D54 (𓄀) classifier, which does not occur in Meir.

Appendix 6.154. rd (to grow)<sup>732</sup>

In the database there are seventeen attestations of this lemma, from the same phrase of spell 75.<sup>733</sup> As can be seen in table 6.141, the variation in the graphical form is limited to the classifier.

Form 3 is clearly the common form for this lemma, although the exact form of the M32 () can vary lightly. In the database, it seems that the use of the M31 () classifier only occurs in Beni Hasan, which is true outside the database as well.<sup>734</sup> Form 2 seems to be a unique form, which only occurs in this phrase. Therefore, this form should not be considered a regional feature of Meir, as the majority of the attestations from Meir use form 3.

Appendix 6.155. rdi (to give, to place, to cause)<sup>735</sup>

The lemma rdi is the most common lemma in the database, with a total of 970 attestations.<sup>736</sup> In table 6.142, the attestations per region for every graphical form of the stem are set out. As this is an irregular

Table 6.142 Graphical forms of the stem of rdi.

Although there is a high variety in the graphical forms of the stem, it needs to be noted that some of the variation is most likely a modern interpretation, as the arms signs which are used can easily overlap when written in near hieratic cursive script.<sup>741</sup> Thus, the arms signs cannot serve as a distinctive marker, unless the original script instead of the hieroglyphic representations is studied.<sup>742</sup>

In general, there are no regional preferences for this lemma, but some minor features are visible. In Meir, it is possible for the imperative to replace the Aa13 (𐀀) with a sign which resembles the U2 (𐀁) sign (form 20 and 21). P.Gard.2 seems to prefer using the X8 (𐀂) for this lemma, even though the D37 (𐀃) occurs as well. Note that this does not support the suggestion that this witness originates from Asyut,<sup>743</sup> as the use of the X8 in Asyut is rare. The long format of form 54 is only attested in the Theban area, although all attestations are from the same witness (T1C).

Appendix 6.156. h3i (to come down, to descend, to go aboard)<sup>744</sup>

This lemma is common in the database, with a total of 148 attestations.<sup>745</sup> In table 6.143, one can see the attestations per region for every graphical form of the stem. As this lemma is a 3ae inf., the table is separated due to the occurrence of gemination.

<sup>741</sup> Möller (1909), p. 9, no. 99, 100, 103, 104, 105, 106. However, in some witnesses the separation between the signs is clear, as they use a type 2 or 3a cursive script, see Appendix.Supports for more detail.

Table 6.143 Graphical forms of the stem of h3i.

As one can see in the 112 attestations of form 6, it is the preferred form for this lemma in most regions. Form 9 should be considered the same as form 6, as the variation is due to the preference of the witness (L1Li) to use partial forms for hieroglyphs of animates.

The attestations from Gebelein are the only witnesses that do not use form 6, as these all prefer the compact format of form 3. Gebelein is attested with gemination outside the database as well,<sup>746</sup> where it uses a compact form, as the second G1 () is placed in front of the D54 () in the column. Thus, there seems to be a preference for compact formats in Gebelein. On the other hand, Saqqara and Asyut seem to prefer the long formats (form 6 and 12). In Deir el-Bersha there seems to be a lot of freedom in the graphical form. However, the use of the Y2 () classifier only seems to occur in Deir el-Bersha.<sup>747</sup>

Appendix 6.157. hꜣb (to send)<sup>748</sup>

The lemma hꜣb has a total of 31 attestations in the database.<sup>749</sup> In table 6.144, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	el-Lisht	1		4	Saqqara el-Lisht Deir el-Bersha Meir Asyut Theban area Gebelein	1 2 2 3 2 2 1

	3	Meir	1

Table 6.144 Graphical forms of the stem of hꜣb.

Form 1 only occurs in el-Lisht, but is attested in a witness (L1Li) which prefers to use partial versions of hieroglyphs of animates. Therefore, it should not be considered a regional preference, but rather a feature of this witness.<sup>750</sup> The long format of form 5 is not attested in Asyut or Gebelein in the database. However, outside the database, form 5 is attested for Asyut.<sup>751</sup> Nonetheless, Gebelein seems to use some sort of compact form for this lemma, although it can vary from form 4. The absence of the D54 (△) classifier might seem unique in Meir, but outside the database, it occurs in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>752</sup>

Appendix 6.158. hbi (to plough, to tread, to trample)<sup>753</sup>

In the database, this lemma has only four attestations.<sup>754</sup> As one can see in table 6.145, there is a clear difference between the attestations from Deir el-Bersha and the Theban area. However, due to the limited number of attestations, it would be assumptive to base regional preferences on these four attestations alone. Moreover, form 3 is attested in Deir el-Bersha and Asyut outside the database as well.<sup>755</sup> Therefore, there does not seem to be a regional preference for this lemma.

Appendix 6.159. hni (to rejoice)<sup>757</sup>

This lemma has 24 attestations in the database. However, only two attestations are considered verb forms.<sup>758</sup> Moreover, these two attestations are participles, and could therefore be considered substantives as well. As one can see in table 6.146, there are two different forms, based on the use of the A28 (𓀓) classifier. However, outside the database, it seems that the use of a A28 or A30 (𓀓) classifier is most commonly used for this lemma across all regions.<sup>759</sup>

Appendix 6.160. hrw (to be pleased, to be satisfied)<sup>760</sup>

In the database there are only five attestations of this lemma, all from the same phrase of spell 25.<sup>761</sup> As table 6.147 shows, there are only three forms which vary based on the classifier:

Table 6.147 Graphical forms of the stem of hrw.

Based on the database, the use of the A2 () classifier only occurs in Deir el-Bersha. Outside the database the A2 classifier is not used in any other region, although Beni Hasan is attested with a humanoid classifier as well,<sup>762</sup> even though it is not the A2 classifier.

Appendix 6.161. hk (to break)

This lemma has one attestation in the database,<sup>763</sup> although it could be considered a corruption of hks (to be injured),<sup>764</sup> which is used in the other witnesses. However, as it is a functional lemma, which suits the phrase, it was not corrected. However, there do not seem to be any additional attestations in the Coffin Texts, so this lemma is of limited use for a discussion of regional variation, nor can its form (figure 6.14) be used to suggest a regional preference in Meir for the graphical form.

Appendix 6.162. hks (to damage, to be damaged)<sup>765</sup>

In the database, this lemma has a total of five attestations,<sup>766</sup> all in the same phrase as the sole attestation of hk (to break; see 0), as it could be argued that hks is a corruption or variant of the lemma hks (to be injured; see appendix 6.208). As table 6.148 shows, the form of this lemma is remarkably stable. It could be suggested that Saqqara represents a different form, but it would be asumptive to allocate a regional preference based on one attestation. However, there are no additional attestations of this lemma in the Coffin Texts according to van der Plas & Borghouts.<sup>767</sup> Thus, this lemma is of limited use to discuss regional preferences in the graphical form of the verbal lemmas.

Appendix 6.163. ḥꜣi (to mourn, to lament, to cry, to screech)<sup>768</sup>

This lemma has a total of 20 attestations in the database, of which eleven attestations are verb forms.<sup>769</sup> As table 6.149 shows, the graphical form for this lemma is remarkably varied.

<sup>770</sup> Due to the lack of an G1 () it would be possible to read this as ḥꜣi (to rejoice; see appendix 6.164) as well.

Deir el-Bersha (B6C) is attested with the classifier D40 (𓄏). However, this classifier is used in the Theban area as well.<sup>772</sup> For this lemma, there are no clear signs of a regional preference in the graphical form.

Appendix 6.164. ḥꜣi (to rejoice)<sup>773</sup>

This lemma has a total of 42 attestations in the database, although only 41 are verb forms.<sup>774</sup> In table 6.150, one can see the attestations per region for every graphical form of the stem. As this is a 3ae inf. lemma, the table is separated due to the occurrence of gemination.

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

Table 6.150 Graphical forms of the stem of ḥꜣi.

For this lemma, there are some signs of a regional preference. In Gebelein, only form 1 and 7 are attested. Both these forms use a compact format, which suggests a regional preference for writing compact formats. However, as the attestations come from the same support, it might simply be a feature of the support. On the other hand, the attestations of the Theban area use form 5 and 8. This suggests a regional preference to write this lemma in the long format instead. The use of a Y2 (𓄏) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha in the database.

Appendix 6.165. ḥꜥb (to play)<sup>775</sup>

The lemma ḥꜥb has only one attestation in the database.<sup>776</sup> Therefore, it has limited value for a regional study. Beyond the database, the lemma occurs another two times in the Coffin Texts,<sup>777</sup> where one can see that the graphical form (see figure 6.15) is unique to this witness, but that there are other forms used in the Theban area as well. Nonetheless, a compact format for the graphical form seems to be preferred in all regions.

Appendix 6.166. ḥwỉ (to strike, to attack)<sup>778</sup>

This lemma has only fourteen attestations in the database, and only four of these reflect verbal forms.<sup>779</sup> In table 6.151, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha	1		3	Deir el-Bersha	1
	2	Saqqara	1		4	Theban area	1

Table 6.151 Graphical forms of the stem of ḥwỉ.

As one can see, the forms are extremely variable, and as form 1 and form 3 are from the same witness (B5C) in the same spell, it seems unlikely that there are any clear regional preferences. Moreover, outside the database<sup>780</sup> it becomes clear that the use of the V28 (ỉ) separate from the striking man hieroglyph (form 2) is not unique to the Theban area, and the Theban area can use forms with form 2 as well.

Appendix 6.167. ḥpt (to embrace)<sup>781</sup>

In the database, the lemma ḥpt has 28 attestations.<sup>782</sup> In table 6.152 one can see the attestations per region for every graphical form of the stem:

According to van der Plas & Borghouts, there is only one more attestation in the Coffin Texts beside the attestations of this table.<sup>783</sup> However, according to Carrier,<sup>784</sup> this is actually shn (to embrace). In Meir there is a high variety in the forms, although it is the only region where the logogram function of D32 (𓄀) is attested. However, it could be argued that it should be read as shn instead. Additionally, the use of a D54 (𓄁) is only attested in Meir. However, as form 6 is attested in nearly every region, it could be argued that there might be some regional variation for this lemma, but that the preference lies with form 6.

Appendix 6.168. hmi (to drive back, to repel)

This lemma is only attested once in the database,<sup>785</sup> where the other witnesses use nhm (to take away, to rescue; see appendix 6.136). The graphical form of the lemma is remarkably simple (see figure 6.16). However, this simple form is far from unique, and occurs outside the database in Deir el-Bersha as well,<sup>786</sup> although a D40 (𓄀) or D54 (𓄁) classifier is often found in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>787</sup> Therefore, this attestation not represent a distinct regional preference.

Appendix 6.169. ḥmsi (to sit)<sup>788</sup>

This lemma is common in the database, with a total of 187 attestations.<sup>789</sup> Note that the humanoid hieroglyphs used in table 6.153 are at best an interpretation, as they represent different classes of A3 (𓂏) or A7 (𓂑), that are extremely varied due to the near hieratic cursive script used in the majority of the witnesses.

Table 6.153 Graphical forms of the stem of ḥmsi.

Due to the problem of differentiation of the humanoid hieroglyphs and the high number of forms, it is difficult to suggest any regional preference for this lemma. However, some features do stand out. For example, form 1, 2, 8, 16 and 26 only occur in Asyut. However, these are only attested in two witnesses, S1C and S2C, which belong to the same owner. Moreover, as form 27 and 28 occurs in Asyut as well

<sup>790</sup> Buck (1954) CT V, p. 159,e (T3L). Note that it is assumed that the Aa1 (⊖) is a corruption of the N42 (⊖).

<sup>791</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 21,d, the Q1 (⊖) is used as this is a feminine participle, due to the phonetic value st, and should not be extracted from the stem, even though it is technically not needed due to the S29 (⊖).

<sup>792</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 331,a (M-Ann), the V30 (⊖) is assumed to be a corruption of the N42 (⊖).

(S2C, S10C and S14C), it is clear that form 1, 2, 8, 16, and 26 represent a feature of a pair of supports, rather than a regional preference.<sup>793</sup>

The attestations from Gebelein (form 12, 32 and 33) show that this region is much more likely to include the interpretants V28 (𓄀) and G17 (𓄁), compared to only a single attestation in the Theban area (form 31). However, the use of these interpretants cannot be considered a feature of the southern attestations, as the attestations from Aswan do not use the V28 and/or G17. Moreover, the G17 is used in Beni Hasan as well (form 19), although form 17 is more commonly used there.

The use of the humanoid figure as a logogram is most common in Asyut, even though it occurs in the Theban area as well (form 10). Moreover, if the suggestion that Y1C originates from Asyut is correct,<sup>794</sup> its attestations would support this placement, even though it could be suggested to originate from the Theban area as well, based on this lemma.

Finally, the use of a Y2 (𓄂) classifier seems to only occur in Deir el-Bersha (form 14 and 24). Moreover, these attestations are dated to the reign of Sesostri II-III,<sup>795</sup> and could therefore represent a regional pattern of this period of coffin decoration in Deir el-Bersha.

Appendix 6.170. hn (to provide, to equip)<sup>796</sup>

This lemma is only attested once in the database, where it is part of a unique phrase of spell 225,<sup>797</sup> which is mostly gone, thus the reading of the lemma is uncertain. Moreover, as one can see in figure 6.17, the stem is only the M2 (𓄃), so it would be possible to read this as hn (to travel) as well. As it is uncertain that this is even the right lemma, it cannot be said if there is any regional feature to this graphical form.

Appendix 6.171. hnk (to present, to offer)<sup>798</sup>

In the database, this lemma has only six attestations, which all originate from Meir.<sup>799</sup> In table 6.154, one can see the different graphical forms of this lemma. Based on attestations outside the database, the use of the M2 (𓄃) in this lemma seems to be a feature unique to Meir, even though it can occur without it (form 1).

<sup>793</sup> Even though these forms are not attested outside Asyut, and the use of the A193 (𓄄) sign might still represent a unique feature from Asyut.

Appendix 6.172. hri (to be far)<sup>800</sup>

There are 22 attestations for this lemma in the database. However, all are from the same phrase of spell 14.<sup>801</sup> In table 6.155, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha	1		4	Deir el-Bersha Theban area	2 1

Table 6.155 Graphical forms of the stem of hri.

In this lemma, the addition of a second classifier beyond the N31 (𓏏) seems only to occur in Deir el-Bersha. In Asyut, there seems to be a preference for the long format of form 5. However, outside the database form 2 occurs as well in Asyut.<sup>802</sup> Thus, there only seems to be some preference for an additional classifier in Deir el-Bersha, while the attestations from the Theban area and Asyut cannot be distinguished from Deir el-Bersha.

Appendix 6.173. ḥsi (to turn back, to go to meet)<sup>803</sup>

There are eight attestations of this lemma in the database.<sup>804</sup> As one can see in table 6.156, there only one variation due to the use of Y2 (𓄱) classifier:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	el-Lisht	1
	2	el-Lisht Deir el-Bersha	1 6

Table 6.156 Graphical forms of the stem of ḥsi.

As both regions use form 2, it is unlikely that the sole attestation of the Y2 is a regional preference, as both attestations from el-Lisht are from the same witness (L2Li). Moreover, outside the database the Y2 classifier is used in the Theban area as well.<sup>805</sup> Nonetheless, the use of any classifier is not attested in the Coffin Texts outside el-Lisht and the Theban area.

Appendix 6.174. ḥsk (to cut off, to cut out)<sup>806</sup>

This lemma is only attested once in the database,<sup>807</sup> in an attestation from the Theban area. As it only occurs once, it cannot be used for comparison. However, when attestations outside the database are included, it becomes clear that that the form of this attestation (figure 6.18) is used outside the Theban area as well,<sup>808</sup> thus does not represent a regional preference.

Appendix 6.175. ḥkꜣ (to rule)<sup>809</sup>

In the database, this lemma has a total of fourteen attestations, even though only one attestations is of a verb form.<sup>810</sup> As there is only one attestation in the database (see figure 6.19), it cannot be said if there is a regional preference. However, based on the attestations outside the database,<sup>811</sup> it seems that the use of a G1 (𓄱) interpretant or an Y2 (𓄱) classifier are used outside Deir el-Bersha as well, thus there does not seem to be a regional preference for this lemma.<sup>812</sup>

Appendix 6.176. ḥkr (to be hungry)<sup>813</sup>

The lemma ḥkr has a total of 41 attestations in the database. However, only 21 attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>814</sup> In table 6.157, the attestations per region are depicted for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha	1 <sup>815</sup>		6	Deir el-Bersha	3
	2	Deir el-Bersha	1		7	Deir el-Bersha	1

	5	Deir el-Bersha	4

Table 6.157 Graphical forms of the stem of ḥkr.

There do seem to be some regional preferences for this lemma, as the use of the G37 () or Y2 () classifier only occurs in Deir el-Bersha. Although form 4 occurs in Asyut, there seems to be a preference to using the long format of form 8 and 9. However, if P.Gard.2 originates from Asyut,<sup>816</sup> it is not reflected in the form, as it constantly uses the compact format of form 3 or 4.<sup>817</sup> Meir does not seem to occur without the A2 () classifier, but as there are no other attestations outside the database for Meir in the Coffin Texts, this assumption is based on limited data.

Appendix 6.177. ḥkn (to be joyful, to exult, to praise)<sup>818</sup>

This lemma has 49 attestations in the database, but only nineteen attestations are of verb forms.<sup>819</sup> In table 6.158, the attestations per lemma are shown for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

For this lemma, there are some features that can be considered a regional preference, as the use of a D39 (𐀓) or W24 (𐀔) is only attested in the Theban area in the database. However, outside the database, there seems to be an attestation of the D39 in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>820</sup> There is no difference between Deir el-Bersha and Meir, and due to the script used in the witness (B1P), the D38 (𐀒) of form 2 could be read as any other arm as well. The use of D36 (𐀑) seems to only occur in el-Lisht (L3Li), but as the cursive script of L3Li is supposed to be close to hieratic, and the original was not seen by de Buck himself, it is possible that it is a modern misinterpretation of another sign of an arm.

Appendix 6.178. ḥtp (to be content, to be at rest)<sup>821</sup>

This lemma is relatively common in the database, with a total of 264 attestations. However, only 124 attestations are of verb forms.<sup>822</sup> As one can see in table 6.159, the graphical form of the stem is remarkably constant, with two main versions, form 2 and form 4, which are a compact format and a long format for the same spelling.

Even though form 2 and 4 both occur in most regions, there are some regional preferences. In Asyut, only form 4 is attested, thus it seems that this region prefers the long format for this lemma. el-Lisht is the opposite, as it prefers the compact format (form 2). Even though both forms occur, Beni Hasan and Meir seem to prefer the compact format over the long format, while the opposite is true for Deir el-Bersha and the Theban area. Only in Saqqara seems the use of form 2 and 4 to be even. The use of the Y2 (𓏏) classifier is rare, and is only attested in Deir el-Bersha and Meir.

Appendix 6.179. ḥtm (to perish, to quench, to be destroyed)<sup>823</sup>

In the database, this lemma has 108 attestations. However, only 92 of these attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>824</sup> In table 6.160, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that the variation in the duck hieroglyphs might be a modern adaptation, rather than a variation in the original text.<sup>825</sup> Thus, the protruding feather on the G38 (𓏏) should not necessarily be considered an important variation.<sup>826</sup>

Table 6.160 Graphical forms of the stem of htm.

As one can see in table 6.160 above, there is a high number of variations in the form of this lemma, as there are nearly half as many variations in the graphical form as there are attestations. Although attested once in Asyut as well (form 4), in Deir el-Bersha it is possible that the V28 (𓂏) is not written. The use of the partial version of the G17 (𓂏) in form 6 and 43 occurs only in el-Lisht, although it occurs in one witness (L2Li) only. However, as the full forms of birds are used in el-Lisht as well (form 23), it would be assumptive to consider it a regional preference to use partial hieroglyphs for hieroglyphs of animates.

The addition of the D35 (𓂏) seems to only occur in Deir el-Bersha or Asyut (form 7, 25, 29 and 37). In the same vein, the A2 (𓂏) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha and Asyut (form 29 and 35). The use of the A24 (𓂏) classifier is currently only attested in Meir. There do not seem to be any other clear regional preferences for this lemma, as for example form 1 and form 31 represent a unique feature of one support (B2Bo), rather than a regional preference.

Appendix 6.180. ḥd (to be white, to be bright)<sup>830</sup>

This lemma has 35 attestations in the database, even though the majority are adjectives or substantives. Only eleven of the attestations are verbal forms.<sup>831</sup> Table 6.161 shows the attestations per regions for every graphical form of the stem:

Table 6.161 Graphical forms of the stem of ḥd.

Based on this table, the use of the V28 (l) seems obligatory for verb forms of this lemma outside of Deir el-Bersha. However, for adjectives and substantives this is not the case. For the verbal forms of this lemma, form 1 seems to be unique in Deir el-Bersha.

Appendix 6.181. ḥdī (to destroy)<sup>832</sup>

In the database, there are a total of fifteen attestations of this lemma.<sup>833</sup> In table 6.162, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha	1
	2	Deir el-Bersha	5
	3	Deir el-Bersha Meir Asyut Theban area	5 2 1 1

Table 6.162 Graphical forms of the stem of ḥdī.

All three forms are attested in Deir el-Bersha, suggesting a high level of freedom in this region. The other regions are only attested with form 3, which suggests a preference for a long format. However, outside the database it is clear that form 2 can be used in Asyut as well,<sup>834</sup> even though the preference lies with form 3. The use of a D46 (𐎠) instead of I10 (𐎡) seems to only occur in B1C, and represents a feature of that support, rather than a regional feature.<sup>835</sup>

Appendix 6.182. hʿi (to appear, to rise)<sup>836</sup>

In the database, this lemma has 56 attestations. However, only 22 attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>837</sup> In table 6.163, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha	2		3	Deir el-Bersha	7

		Deir el-Bersha	2			Theban area	5
		Asyut	4

Table 6.163 Graphical forms of the stem of hʿi.

In the database, it seems that the I12 (𐎡) is only used in Deir el-Bersha, but outside the database it is attested in Asyut as well.<sup>838</sup> The use of the Y2 (𐎠) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha and the Theban area in the database, but occurs outside the database in other regions as well.<sup>839</sup> However, form 1 is only attested in Deir el-Bersha, even though it represents a rare form for this lemma.

Appendix 6.183. hwi (to protect, to prevent)<sup>840</sup>

There are 60 attestations in the database, but only 59 represent verbal forms.<sup>841</sup> In table 6.164, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

For this lemma, any variation based on the arms is considered of less importance. Even though not all the witnesses missing the D43 (⏟) sign use a near hieratic cursive script, in which the difference between the D43 and the other arms can be lost,<sup>842</sup> it can be assumed that for the witnesses with a more hieroglyphic script the change is due to the precursor text, rather than an intentional variation. In the database, the absence of any arm hieroglyph is only attested in Meir and the Theban area. However, outside the database it occurs in other regions as well.<sup>843</sup> The absence of the Aa1 (⊖) phonogram is in the database only attested in Deir el-Bersha (form 8), but occurs outside the database in the Theban area as well.<sup>844</sup> Based on the database, one could suggest that in el-Lisht the G43 (⊖) is always added, while in Beni Hasan it is always left out. However, although this is true for Beni Hasan, this is not true for el-Lisht.<sup>845</sup> Finally, the Y2 (⏟) classifier is in the database only attested in Meir (form 6), but the Y2 classifier occurs outside the database in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>846</sup> Thus, with the exception of Beni Hasan, it seems unlikely that there is a regional preference in this lemma.

Appendix 6.184. hbi (to reduce, to deduct, to hush)<sup>847</sup>

In the database, there are 33 attestations of this lemma. However, only sixteen attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>848</sup> As table 6.165 shows, there are only three graphical forms for this lemma. Form 1 is

Appendix 6.185. hbs (to hack up, to plough, to be hacked up)<sup>849</sup>

This lemma has eleven attestations in the database, from the same phrase of spell 7.<sup>850</sup> In table 6.166, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

In the database, it seems that the Z9 (×) classifier only occurs in the Theban area. However, outside the database, the Z9 classifier is attested in other regions as well.<sup>851</sup> The use of the A21 (𓂏) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha, which is true outside the database as well,<sup>852</sup> although it seems to only occur in B2Bo and B3Bo, which are part of an assemblage. In the database the A58 (𓂏) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha, but outside the database it occurs in Asyut as well.<sup>853</sup> However, the use of the D40 (𓂏) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha. In the database, it seems that the O34 (𓂏) is only used in Deir el-Bersha, but it occurs in Meir and the Theban area as well.<sup>854</sup> Finally, in Gebelein it is possible to use a G37 (𓂏) classifier, although there is only one attestation of its use.<sup>855</sup>

Appendix 6.186. hpi (to travel, to depart, to encounter)<sup>856</sup>

This lemma has 62 attestations in the database, although only 48 represent verbal forms.<sup>857</sup> In table 6.167, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

In this lemma, most of the regions use form 7 or any of its graphical variants. However, form 9-11 are only attested in Deir el-Bersha, which is true outside the database as well. The Y2 (𓄱) classifier is only attested in Beni Hasan and the Theban area, and does not occur again with this lemma outside the database.<sup>859</sup>

Appendix 6.187. hpr (to come to be, to become)<sup>860</sup>

This is a common lemma in the database, with 920 attestations. However, only 827 attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>861</sup> In table 6.168, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

For additional attestations outside the database, see Plas & Borghouts (1998), p. 224.

<sup>862</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 324,a (B1P). This witness habitually writes hpr with two D21 (𓄱) signs, see form 8 as well. I assume that the precursor text used the L1 (𓄱) with an D21 interpretant. This witness prefers not to use the L1 however, thus the artist replaced every L1 with the Aa1-Q3-D21 group (𓄱𓄱), but forgot to remove the D21 interpretant.

Table 6.168 Graphical forms of the stem of hpr.

For this lemma, Aswan and Gebelein are only attested with the L1 (𐎃) in the initial position, where the other regions both use the L1 in the initial position (form 16-20) and the phonetic spelling of the lemma. However, in Deir el-Bersha it is more likely that the lemma is written phonetically, rather than with the L1 in the initial position.<sup>865</sup> The other regions have the opposite, preferring the initial L1 over the phonetic spelling. The use of the O1 (𐎄) phonemogram is only attested in Deir el-Bersha.

For this lemma, there are some forms that are only attested in one region. Form 14 is only attested in Meir, while form 17 is only attested in Gebelein. Note that this lemma is only written in a long format in Asyut (form 10, 12, 13, 16 and 19).

<sup>865</sup> Form 19, the only form with L1 in the initial position has 41 attestations, whereas the phonetic spelling has 272 attestations.

In Deir el-Bersha, forms both with the L1 and without the L1 occur, but over time it becomes clear that although the L1 is used in both periods of coffin decoration in Deir el-Bersha, the L1 becomes less popular. In the early period of coffin decoration, the L1 is used in 33% of the attestations,<sup>866</sup> whereas in the later period this is reduced to only 8%.<sup>867</sup>

Thus, although the borders are fuzzy, there are some regional preference for this lemma.

Appendix 6.188. hpš (to acquire strength)<sup>868</sup>

There are only ten attestations in the database, which represent all the attestations of this lemma in the Coffin Texts.<sup>869</sup> In table 6.169, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. For this lemma, the only variation occurs in Deir el-Bersha, while form 3 seems to be the common form, used in both regions. However, there are too few attestations to suggest specific regional preferences.

Appendix 6.189. hfꜥ (to seize, to grasp)<sup>870</sup>

In the database this lemma has 30 attestations, although only ten represent verbal forms.<sup>871</sup> In table 6.170, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that form 2-4 have an additional D36 (—), as these forms are a sdmm=f.

<sup>866</sup> For the early period of coffin decoration there are 38 attestations with the L1 and 79 attestations without the L1.

<sup>867</sup> For the later period of coffin decoration there are only 15 attestations with the L1 and 181 attestations without the L1.

Appendix 6.191. hn (to direct)<sup>879</sup>

There are seventeen attestations of this lemma in the database,<sup>880</sup> which are the only attestations of this lemma in the Coffin Texts.<sup>881</sup> In table 6.172, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha	2		4	Deir el-Bersha	1
	2	Deir el-Bersha	2		5	Asyut	5
	3	Deir el-Bersha Asyut	5 1		6	Asyut	1 <sup>882</sup>

Table 6.172 Graphical forms of the stem of hn.

In this lemma, the A24 () classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha, in the witnesses from the earlier period of coffin decoration (B2Bo, B4Bo). The D54 () classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha as well. Asyut on the other hand is the only region where the I3 () classifier is used. The absence of a classifier, or the use of the D40 () is attested in both regions.

Appendix 6.192. hni (to play music)<sup>883</sup>

There are five attestations of this lemma in the database, from the same phrase in spell 7.<sup>884</sup> In table 6.173, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Theban area	1
	2	Deir el-Bersha	2
	3	Asyut Theban area	1 1

In the database, form 1 is only attested in the Theban area, but it occurs outside the database in Meir as well.<sup>885</sup> For this lemma, Asyut seems to prefer to not use a humanoid classifier, which is true outside the database as well.<sup>886</sup> Form 2 is unique to Deir el-Bersha, but as the attestations are from B2Bo and B3Bo belong to the same assemblage, it might be a feature of these witnesses, rather than a regional feature.<sup>887</sup>

Appendix 6.193. hnp (to snatch, to steal)<sup>888</sup>

There are fourteen attestations of this lemma in the database.<sup>889</sup> In table 6.174, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that form 2 and form 3 should be considered to be the same, as the variation between the D37 (𓄀) and D40 (𓄁) here is due to the script, rather than an intentional variation.

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Meir	1		3	Saqqara	1
	2	Theban area	1		4	Asyut	5
						Deir el-Bersha	2
						Meir	2
						Theban area	2

Table 6.174 Graphical forms of the stem of hnp.

The use of the A24 (𓄀) classifier is only attested in Meir, which is true outside the database as well, although form 1 is rare. In the database it seems that the D54 (𓄁) classifier is only attested in Asyut, but it occurs in other regions as well.<sup>890</sup> Moreover, although the database suggests that form 4 is the only form used in Asyut, other classifiers can be used in Asyut as well.<sup>891</sup> Nonetheless, form 3 is the preferred form for this lemma in most regions.

Appendix 6.194. hnr (to restrain)<sup>892</sup>

There are only seven attestations of this lemma in the database, from the same phrase in spell 23.<sup>893</sup> In table 6.175, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>887</sup> As the other witnesses from Deir el-Bersha (B4Bo, B4C, B6C, B1P) with phrase I,23,b use hni (to row; see appendix 6.206) instead.

In the database it seems that form 3 only occurs in Deir el-Bersha, but outside the database it occurs in Asyut<sup>895</sup> and the Theban area as well.<sup>896</sup> The use of the V1 (⌘) classifier is only attested in the Theban area in the database, but occurs in Asyut as well.<sup>897</sup> Both within and outside the database, form 2 is only attested in Beni Hasan.

Appendix 6.195. hns (to travel, to traverse)<sup>898</sup>

This lemma has eleven attestations in the database.<sup>899</sup> In table 6.176, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

	1	Deir el-Bersha Meir Gebelein	3 1 <sup>900</sup> 1		5	Meir	1

<sup>894</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 70,b (BH5C). I assume the r weakened into an i, which is why the M17 (⌘) is used instead of the D21 (⌘). See Peust (1999), p. 140.

<sup>900</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 395,c (M23C). Reconstruction, could be any other form as well.

In the database, the addition of the D32 (ⲟ) is only attested in Deir el-Bersha. However, outside the database it occurs in other regions as well.<sup>901</sup> The D40 (Ⲙ) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha (form 3 and 6), which is true outside the database as well. Asyut seems to only occur with a O35 (ⲧ) and without a classifier, but form 1 is attested in Asyut as well.<sup>902</sup> The use of the S29 (ⲓ) instead of an O34 (Ⲙ) is only attested in Deir el-Bersha and Meir, but occurs outside the database in Saqqara as well.<sup>903</sup>

Appendix 6.196. hnti (to be in front of)<sup>904</sup>

The lemma hnti has eight attestations in the database, from the same phrase in spell 11.<sup>905</sup> In table 6.177, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha	2
	2	Deir el-Bersha	1
	3	Deir el-Bersha Theban area	3 2

Table 6.177 Graphical forms of the stem of hnti.

In the database the absence of the P1 (ⲡ) classifier only occurs in Deir el-Bersha. However, outside the database this occurs in the other regions,<sup>906</sup> which all use form 2. Form 1 on the other hand only occurs in Deir el-Bersha, and is not attested anywhere else in the Coffin Texts.

Appendix 6.197. hr (to fall)<sup>907</sup>

The lemma hr has 34 attestations in the database.<sup>908</sup> In table 6.178, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>902</sup> Buck (1947) CT III, p. 191,a (S2C). Note that in form 4, see Buck (1935) CT I, p. 393,i (S2C) the O35 (ⲧ) is damaged, thus it is possible that this should be read as form 1 as well.

In the database, the use of the A15 as logogram is only attested in Meir. However, outside the database it is attested in Saqqara and the Theban area as well.<sup>909</sup> Form 3 is only attested in Deir el-Bersha in the database, but occurs in the Theban area as well.<sup>910</sup> The use of the D54 as classifier is only attested in el-Lisht and Meir in the database, but it occurs in Saqqara and Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>911</sup> The use of the Y2 (—) classifier is in the database only attested in el-Lisht, but occurs outside the database in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>912</sup> Nonetheless, form 4 is the preferred form for this lemma in most regions. However, it needs to be noted that in Deir el-Bersha it is possible to use a D40 (—) classifier as well.<sup>913</sup>

Appendix 6.198. hsf (to drive away, to oppose, to repel)<sup>914</sup>

This lemma has 63 attestations in the database, but only 38 represent verbal forms.<sup>915</sup> In table 6.179, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Table 6.179 Graphical forms of the stem of h:stf (to drive away).

There does not seem to be a regional preference for this lemma, as nearly every feature occurs in multiple regions. Although the D40 (𐀀) is only attested in Deir el-Bersha (form 11), the use of the D36 (𐀁) in Meir (form 8) makes it unlikely to be a regional preference, as the different arms can look similar in near hieratic cursive script.<sup>916</sup> Although it seems in the database that the A24 (𐀂) classifier is not attested in Asyut, it occurs there as well.<sup>917</sup> Additionally, it seems in the database that Asyut always includes the I9 (𐀃) interpretant, which is not true.<sup>918</sup> The use of the U35 (𐀄) in the initial position seems to be only attested in Deir el-Bersha (form 14), but occurs in the Theban area as well.<sup>919</sup>

Appendix 6.199. hsf (to draw near, to approach, to meet, to answer)<sup>920</sup>

There are 23 attestations of this lemma in the database, but only eight attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>921</sup> In table 6.180, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha	1		5	Deir el-Bersha	1
	2	Deir el-Bersha	1		4	Deir el-Bersha	1
	3	Deir el-Bersha	2

Table 6.180 Graphical forms of the stem of hsf (to draw near).

In the database, it seems as if the only variation occurs in Deir el-Bersha. However, the D54 (𓄠) classifier is attested in Saqqara,<sup>922</sup> the use of the U35 (𓄡) in the initial position is attested in Asyut, Gebelein and Aswan,<sup>923</sup> and the A24 (𓄢) classifier is attested in Asyut.<sup>924</sup> However, the A30 (𓄣) classifier seems to only occur in Deir el-Bersha, although de Buck considers it an error, most likely for the A24 classifier.<sup>925</sup> Thus, it could be argued that there is no regional preference in this lemma.

Appendix 6.200. hsfi (to travel upstream)<sup>926</sup>

There are seven attestations of this lemma in the database, from the same phrase of spell 398.<sup>927</sup> In table 6.181, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

In the database Meir always uses the P1 ( classifier. However, this classifier or the P2 ( are used in the Theban area and Saqqara as well,<sup>928</sup> even though the P1 classifier is always attested in Meir.

Gebelein is only attested with the U35 ( in the initial position, without a classifier (form 2). This is true outside the database as well, although form 2 is attested in Asyut as well.<sup>929</sup> The A24 ( classifier is only attested in Aswan in the database, but occurs in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>930</sup> However, form 3 is only attested in Aswan. Note that the D40 ( classifier can be used in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>931</sup>

Appendix 6.201. hsr (to drive away, to dispel)<sup>932</sup>

There are 49 attestations of this lemma in the database, but only 43 attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>933</sup> In table 6.182, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

In this lemma, the variation in the arm classifiers should be considered a variation due to the script used in the witnesses, rather than an intentional variation. Form 3 is clearly the preferred form of this lemma in all the regions. However, the inclusion of the A60 (𐀀) or the V29 (𐀁) classifier is only attested in Meir (form 5-6). There are no additional features which represents a regional preference.

Appendix 6.202. hri (to retire, to retreat, to turn back)<sup>937</sup>

There are nineteen attestations of this lemma in the database.<sup>938</sup> In table 6.183, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

	4	Meir	2		8	Beni Hasan Meir	1 1

Table 6.183 Graphical forms of the stem of hri.

In the database, el-Lisht is the only region where no classifier is attested, which is true outside the database as well. The use of the D55 (𐀀) classifier is only attested in Beni Hasan and Meir in the database (form 4 and 8), but occurs outside the database in the Theban area as well.<sup>939</sup> If a classifier is written, the other regions use a D54 (⤴) classifier, which occurs outside the database in Asyut and Gebelein as well.<sup>940</sup>

Appendix 6.203. htm (to seal)<sup>941</sup>

The lemma htm has 31 attestations in the database, although only 29 attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>942</sup> In table 6.184, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Table 6.184 Graphical forms of the stem of htm.

In this lemma, the D40 (⤴) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha (form 9), which is true outside the database as well. In the database it seems that Asyut only uses the long format for this lemma (form 8,

12), but outside the database a compact format is used as well,<sup>944</sup> although the long format is much more common in Asyut. The S19 (𓂀) is only attested in the Theban area, although form 11 is the only attestation of the S19 in the Coffin Texts, so it might be better to read this hieratic sign as a S20 (𓂁) instead. There are no other variations in this lemma that represent a regional preference.

Appendix 6.204. htht (to turn back, to drive away)<sup>945</sup>

There is only one attestation of this lemma in the database, from the Theban area.<sup>946</sup> The graphical form used in this witness (see figure 6.20) represents an unique form of this lemma, as all the other attestations in the Coffin Texts do not include a D54 (𓂀) in the middle of the word, and habitually use two M3 (𓂀) instead of only one.<sup>947</sup> However, this variation might be due to an error, rather than an intention. This attestation is a variation of the other witnesses in this phrase (IV,270-271,b), which all use hṯi (to retire; see appendix 6.202) instead. It could be argued that this attestation is simply a mistake in which the m in front of the first ht was lost, in which case m-ht ht, which is used in the other witnesses, should be read here instead.<sup>948</sup>

Appendix 6.205. hdi (to travel downstream)<sup>949</sup>

This lemma has only seven attestations in the database, from the same phrase of spell 398.<sup>950</sup> As table 6.185 shows, the only exception to form 2 occurs in Gebelein, which uses an F32 (𓂀) instead of the Aa1 (𓂀) to write h. Based on the other attestations, this form is unique, as all other attestations of this lemma in the Coffin Texts use form 2.<sup>951</sup> Thus, there is no regional preference for this lemma, as form 1 needs to be understood as an exception, rather than the rule in Gebelein.

Appendix 6.206. hni (to row, to convey by boat)<sup>952</sup>

There are 22 attestations of this lemma in the database.<sup>953</sup> In table 6.186, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha	2		4	Deir el-Bersha	1
	2	el-Lisht	2		5	Deir el-Bersha	1
		Deir el-Bersha	11
		Asyut	1
		Theban area	2
	3	Deir el-Bersha	2

Table 6.186 Graphical forms of the stem of hni.

In the database, the only variation occurs in Deir el-Bersha itself, as all other regions use form 2. However, outside the database the D40 (𓂏) classifier is attested in Asyut as well.<sup>954</sup> The use of the N18 (𓂏) is only attested in Deir el-Bersha (form 4-5). Outside the database, there is some additional variation in the other regions as well. In multiple regions it is possible to leave out the classifier,<sup>955</sup> or to use the F26 (𓂏) phonemogram instead of the D33 (𓂏).<sup>956</sup> Note that it is possible to use the D33B (𓂏) as classifier in Asyut as well. However, form 2 remains the preferred form in all regions.

Appendix 6.207. hnm (to join, to enfold)<sup>957</sup>

This lemma has 55 attestations in the database.<sup>958</sup> In table 6.187, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Form 1 is in the database only attested in Deir el-Bersha. However, outside the database it is attested in el-Lisht and the Theban area as well.<sup>959</sup> The use of classifiers is only attested in Deir el-Bersha and Meir, which is true outside the database as well. Although the A2 (𓆎) classifier is attested in both regions, it is more likely to occur in Deir el-Bersha. The D40 (𓆏) classifier is only attested in Meir, but is rare. The Y2 (𓆑) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha.

Appendix 6.208. hks (to be injured)<sup>960</sup>

This lemma has 24 attestations in the database, from the same phrase in spell 335.<sup>961</sup> However, these attestations represent all the attestations of this lemma in the Coffin Texts.<sup>962</sup> In table 6.169, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Theban area	1		7	Deir el-Bersha	1
	2	el-Lisht	1		8	Meir	1

	6	Theban area	1
						Deir el-Bersha	4
						Meir	2
						Theban area	4

Table 6.188 Graphical forms of the stem of hks.

As table 6.169 shows, this lemma is highly varied. However, some regional features occur. In the Theban area it is possible to replace the F32 (☉) with an Aa1 (⊖). Moreover, the Theban area is the only region where the classifier can be left out (form 1 and 6). In Meir it is possible to replace the G37 (☞) classifier with an Y2 (☞) classifier. In Deir el-Bersha the G37 can be replaced with a D5 (☞), referring to hks.t, the injured eye of Horus. The use of the O34 (☞) instead of the S29 (☞) is only attested in Saqqara, while in Deir el-Bersha the S29 can be left out (form 4). Nonetheless, form 9 seems to represent the common form for this lemma. However, it is not unlikely that due to the lack of additional attestations the perceived variations are only features of the witnesses, rather than regional features, as every form except for form 9 is only attested once.

Appendix 6.209. s3w (to guard, to watch over, to beware)<sup>963</sup>

In the database, there are 143 attestations of this lemma. However, only 105 attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>964</sup> In table 6.189, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. As this is a 3ae inf. lemma, the table is separated due to the occurrence of gemination.

In general, there are no clear signs of regional preferences for this lemma, but there are a few rare features that could be considered regional. The use of the D40 (𓄀) or the Y2 (𓄁) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha. The use of the S25 (𓄂) occurs only in the Theban area, but all attestations are from T3C.<sup>966</sup> Therefore, it should be considered a feature of the witness, rather than a regional preference.

Appendix 6.210. s3wi (to lengthen)<sup>967</sup>

This lemma has only one attestation in the database.<sup>968</sup> The form used in B5C (see figure 6.21) represents a unique variant, as there are no other attestations in the Coffin Texts with the Y2 (𓄁) classifier. However, the same graphical form without the Y2 is attested in Asyut<sup>969</sup> and Deir el-Bersha,<sup>970</sup> even though in Deir el-Bersha the long format of the same spelling occurs as well.

Appendix 6.211. s3m (to burn up)<sup>971</sup>

This lemma has 21 attestations in the database.<sup>972</sup> In table 6.190, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Form 1 is only attested in Meir and the Theban area, which could imply that the use of the O34 (—) is more likely in the southern attestations. The use of the Aa17 (⌊) phonemogram is only attested in Meir. The use of the U1 (↘) phonemogram is attested in Beni Hasan and the Theban area.

Appendix 6.212. sꜣk (to pull together, to gather together)<sup>973</sup>

In the database there are 27 attestations of this lemma.<sup>974</sup> In table 6.191, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Table 6.191 Graphical forms of the stem of s>k̄.

In the database it seems that the use of the Y2 (𓏏) classifier only occurs in Deir el-Bersha and Meir, but outside the database it occurs in el-Lisht<sup>977</sup> and Aswan as well,<sup>978</sup> which makes it unlikely that the use of the Y2 classifier is a regional feature. In the database the use of the D40 (𓏐) classifier seems to only occur in Meir, but outside the database it is attested in the Theban area as well.<sup>979</sup> Finally, in the database the absence of the I5 (𓆏) is only attested in Deir el-Bersha, but outside the database it occurs in the Theban area and Aswan as well.<sup>980</sup> Therefore, there does not seem to be a regional preference for this lemma.

Appendix 6.213. siꜣt (to damage, to cheat, to mutilate)<sup>981</sup>

In the database there are eight attestations of this lemma, although only seven represent verbal forms.<sup>982</sup> In table 6.192, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

	3	Deir el-Bersha	1

Table 6.192 Graphical forms of the stem of siꜣt.

In this lemma the classifier does not occur in Asyut. The Theban area is the only region which uses the long format. The D57 (𓆏) classifier only occurs in Deir el-Bersha. However, as these are the only attestations of this lemma in the Coffin Texts, there is a reasonable chance that these variations are random, instead of a regional preference.

Appendix 6.214. sip (to inspect, to examine, to allot)<sup>984</sup>

In the database there are 40 attestations of this lemma, but only three represent verbal forms.<sup>985</sup> In table 6.193 it is clear that the only variation is based on the position of the S29 (𐎎). Form 1 occurs in Deir el-Bersha as well,<sup>986</sup> while form 2 is only attested in Deir el-Bersha. However, it only occurs in B1Bo, thus should be considered a feature of the support, rather than a regional feature.

Appendix 6.215. sidi (to make impotent, to reduce to order)<sup>987</sup>

This lemma has only fifteen attestations in the database, from the same phrase of spell 75.<sup>988</sup> In table 6.194, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that there are no clear distinguishing features for this lemma that suggest a regional variation, as the use of the D21 (𐎎) in form 6 is considered an error, instead of an intentional variation.

Appendix 6.216. s<sup>c</sup>m (to swallow, to wash down)<sup>992</sup>

There are seventeen attestations of the lemma s<sup>c</sup>m in the database, which come from the same phrase in spell 225.<sup>993</sup> In table 6.195, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

In the database, there are some features that can be considered regional. The use of the Y2 (𐓗) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha, which is true outside the database as well. The F20 (𐓗) classifier is only attested in the Theban area, but as all attestations belong to T1Be and T2Be, which belong to the same owner, it might be a preference of these witnesses, rather than a regional feature. The use of the D40 (𐓗) classifier seems to be unique to Meir. However, there are no other attestations from Meir for this lemma in the Coffin Texts, nor any other attestation of the D40 classifier. In the database Asyut seem to have a preference to habitually include the A2 (𐓗) classifier. However, outside the database the N35A (𐓗) occurs as well,<sup>994</sup> even though the use of the A2 classifier remains the preference in Asyut.

Appendix 6.217. s<sup>c</sup>nh (to cause to live, to nourish)<sup>995</sup>

This lemma has 25 attestations in the database.<sup>996</sup> As table 6.196 shows, the graphical form of s<sup>c</sup>nh is remarkably stable. It is unlikely that there are any regional features for this lemma, as form 1 occurs in the Theban area as well.<sup>997</sup> Additionally, the direction of the S29 (𐓗) in form 2 is only due to the direction of writing in the witness (S1C), instead of an intentional variation.

In the database the sʿr form of this lemma is only attested in the Theban area (form 9). However, outside the database sʿr occurs in other regions as well.<sup>1003</sup> Form 3 is in the database only attested in Deir el-Bersha, but outside the database in el-Lisht as well,<sup>1004</sup> thus the use of the O34 (⏟) cannot be considered a regional feature. The use of the Y2 (⏟) as classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha for text written on the coffins, as it does occur outside the database in P.Gard.2 and P.Gard.3,<sup>1005</sup> although these attestations use the sʿr form of this lemma.

Appendix 6.219. sḥ (to ennoble, to be noble)<sup>1006</sup>

In the database there are 37 attestations of this lemma. However, one attestation is an adjective, thus only 36 attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>1007</sup> In table 6.198, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>1008</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 20,c (T1L). Based on I,20,b, I assume that the artist forgot to add a V28 (𓂏).

For this lemma there are some features that could be considered regional. The use of the Y2 (𐎓) classifier is only attested in the Theban area and Deir el-Bersha. In the database the use of the Y2 classifier is much more common in the Theban area, but outside the database it is clearly quite common in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>1009</sup> However, the use of the Z5 (𐎛) or Z9 (𐎞) classifier is only attested in the Theban area.

Although the E31 (𐎓) and its classes are often attested in multiple regions, it seems that in Asyut the addition is constant, including in attestations outside the database. Although not attested in the database, P.Gard.2 uses the E31 constantly as well with this lemma,<sup>1010</sup> which could support the suggestion that this papyrus originates from Asyut.<sup>1011</sup> On the other hand, based on the database it could be suggested that there is a preference in el-Lisht to only use the S20 (𐎓) as classifier. However, outside the database S28 (𐎓) and the absence of a classifier are attested in el-Lisht as well.<sup>1012</sup>

There are two attestations of this lemma in the database, from the same phrase in spell 335, from Meir.<sup>1014</sup> However, there does not seem to be any other attestation of this lemma in the Coffin Texts according to van der Molen and van der Plas & Borghouts. Moreover, the graphical form of these two attestations (see table 6.199) varies only in the position of the S29 (𐎓). Due to the lack of additional attestations it is not possible to suggest that this represent a regional feature. However, based on the habitual graphical form of ḥ<sup>z</sup> (to fight; see appendix 6.46), it seems unlikely that if this lemma occurs in other regions, it would be distinct.

There are seventeen attestations of this lemma in the database, from the same phrase in spell 154.<sup>1016</sup> In table 6.200, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

The only major variation between Deir el-Bersha and Asyut are form 2 and form 4 in the database. Here, the use of the D54 (Δ) as classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha. However, outside the database the D54 classifier is attested in Meir as well.<sup>1017</sup> Nonetheless, the use of the D54 classifier is not attested in any other region. Form 4 cannot be considered a regional preference, as the witnesses S1C,b and S1Tü write the text from left to right, thus the opposite direction of the S29 (𓂏) is most likely due to the different writing direction, rather than an intentional variation.

Appendix 6.222. sḥꜥ (to cause to enter)<sup>1018</sup>

This lemma only has four attestations in the database.<sup>1019</sup> As table 6.201 shows, every attestation has its own graphical form. Although the database suggests that the D54 (Δ) classifier is not used in Deir el-Bersha, it is used there outside the database.<sup>1020</sup> The absence of the G35 (𓂏) seems to only occur in Deir el-Bersha.

There are only seventeen attestations in the database,<sup>1022</sup> even though this lemma is relatively common in the Coffin Texts.<sup>1023</sup> In table 6.202, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. With the exception of the use of the Z9 (x), which only occurs in Deir el-Bersha,<sup>1024</sup> there does not seem to be any regional preference for this lemma.

Likewise, all the attestations in Asyut are written with a V4 (𐀂), both within and outside of the database.<sup>1027</sup> Moreover, the use of the V4 is only attested in Beni Hasan, Deir el-Bersha, Asyut and Meir. The addition of the Y2 (𓏏) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha and Meir, which is true outside the database as well. <sup>1031</sup> Buck (1951) CT IV, p. 212,b (Sq4Sq). Note that I took the double N35 (𓏏) as an incomplete N35A (𓏏) classifier, as the column ends after the two N35 signs. However, it would be possible to read this as a sdm.n=f as well.

In the database, only in Saqqara is a humanoid hieroglyph used (form 1), but outside the database this occurs in Asyut<sup>1032</sup> and Beni Hasan as well.<sup>1033</sup> The absence of any classifier (form 2) is only attested in el-Lisht and Deir el-Bersha, but occurs outside the database in the Theban area as well.<sup>1034</sup> The use of a completely phonetic spelling of the lemma (form 9) only occurs only in Beni Hasan, which is true outside the database as well.<sup>1035</sup> However, the other regions do include some of the interpretants. In the database, the G43 (𓆎) interpretant is only attested in Meir and the Theban area, but occurs outside the database in Asyut as well.<sup>1036</sup> The use of the D36 (𓄱) interpretant is only attested in Meir, but occurs outside the database in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>1037</sup> Finally, the D58 (𓄱) interpretant is only attested in Deir el-Bersha and the Theban area. Note that although it does not occur in the database, it is possible in Deir el-Bersha to replace the S29 (𓄱) with the O34 (𓄱).

Appendix 6.226. swr (to drink)<sup>1038</sup>

In the database there are fourteen attestations of this lemma.<sup>1039</sup> As table 6.205 shows, the graphical form of this lemma is remarkably constant:

In general, form 1 is the preferred form for this lemma in all the regions. However, the N35A (𓄱) and Y2 (𓄱) classifier are only attested in Deir el-Bersha, which is true outside the database as well. However, there are some additional classifiers used for this lemma outside the database. us the A116 (𓂏) classifier as well.<sup>1041</sup> Additionally, the A115 (𓂏) classifier is attested in Beni Hasan.<sup>1042</sup> Finally, it is possible in multiple regions to not write a classifier at all.<sup>1043</sup>

Appendix 6.227. swd (to hand over, to bequeath, to pass on)<sup>1044</sup>

There is only one attestation of this lemma in the database, from Deir el-Bersha.<sup>1045</sup> The form used in B1Y (see figure 6.22) is used in Asyut as well.<sup>1046</sup> However, there is a long format of figure 6.22 attested in Asyut as well.<sup>1047</sup> Moreover, it is possible in el-Lisht and Asyut to leave out the G43 (𓂏).<sup>1048</sup> Beyond these variations, the spelling of this lemma is remarkably stable.

Appendix 6.228. swd3 (to make whole, to heal)<sup>1049</sup>

There are twelve attestations of this lemma in the database.<sup>1050</sup> As table 6.206 shows, the graphical form of this lemma can be remarkably varied:

Table 6.206 Graphical forms of the stem of swdʒ.

In the database, it seems that the Y2 (—) classifier is only used in Deir el-Bersha, but outside the database it is attested in Meir, the Theban area, Gebelein and Aswan as well.<sup>1051</sup> Note that the s(w)ḏʒ spelling of this lemma<sup>1052</sup> does not only occur in Deir el-Bersha (form 5) and Meir (form 4), but is attested in Asyut and the Theban area as well.<sup>1053</sup> Thus, there does not seem to be a regional preference for this lemma.

Appendix 6.229. sbi (to go, to travel, to send, to conduct)<sup>1054</sup>

The lemma sbi has 40 attestations in the database.<sup>1055</sup> In table 6.207, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that this is a 3ae inf. lemma and gemination occurs in the database, therefore the table has been divided in gemination and no gemination.

<sup>1052</sup> Note that it is usually only context or the other witnesses with the same phrase that can distinguish these attestations from sdʒ (to travel; see Appendix 6.300).

Table 6.207 Graphical forms of the stem of sbi.

In this lemma, the use of the D54 (△) classifier is only attested in Meir and Deir el-Bersha. However, outside the database the D54 classifier is used in Saqqara and the Theban area as well.<sup>1056</sup> In the database Gebelein and Aswan only use form 1 when the lemma does not geminate. However, outside the database forms with a D58 (◻) interpretant occur in these two regions as well.<sup>1057</sup> Thus, there is no meaningful variation in this lemma that suggests a regional preference.

Appendix 6.230. spi (to remain, to leave, to leave out)<sup>1058</sup>

In the database there are eight attestations of this lemma.<sup>1059</sup> In table 6.208, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Form 2 is the only variation for this lemma in the database, and both attestations come from B4C. Although the D40 (⏟) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha, it seems to be restricted to B4C alone. Form 1 is commonly used in all regions outside the database.

Appendix 6.231. spi (to bind together)<sup>1060</sup>

This lemma has ten attestations in the database, from the same phrase of spell 398.<sup>1061</sup> In table 6.209, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Meir	2		3	Meir Gebelein Aswan	3 1 1
	2	Meir Gebelein	1 1		4	Meir	1

Table 6.209 Graphical forms of the stem of spi (to bind together).

For this lemma, there does not seem to be a clear regional pattern, as this lemma habitually uses form 1-3 in most other regions, or even a long format of the same spelling.<sup>1062</sup> In the database the addition of the O50 (o) only occurs in Meir, but outside the database it is attested in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>1063</sup>

Outside the database the use of the V1 (e) as classifier is attested in the Theban area and Deir el-Bersha.<sup>1064</sup>

Appendix 6.232. spr (to arrive at, to reach)<sup>1065</sup>

In the database there are 30 attestations of this lemma, which all occur in the same phrase of spell 335.<sup>1066</sup> In table 6.210, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

Table 6.210 Graphical forms of the stem of spr.

In this lemma, the use of the P1 (𓂏) as classifier only occurs in the Theban area and Saqqara (form 5 and 7). However, this use is unique, as it does not occur anywhere else in the Coffin Texts for this lemma. Although it is most likely meaningless, it is remarkable that the use of the P1 classifier only occurs when the S29 (𓂏) is used. In el-Lisht and Beni Hasan, the O34 (𓂏) is used instead of the S29, although in el-Lisht the F42 (𓂏) is used as phonogram as well (form 1),<sup>1067</sup> while in Beni Hasan form 2 is attested as well.<sup>1068</sup> In a similar manner as el-Lisht, Meir uses either a O34, or uses the F42 as a phonogram. However, there is a lack of attestations from Meir outside the database. In the database, the absence of the F42 only occurs in Saqqara (form 7), but outside the database it is possible in Deir el-Bersha to leave the F42 out as well.<sup>1069</sup>

Appendix 6.233. sph (to lasso)<sup>1070</sup>

The lemma sph has 25 attestations in the database. However, only ten attestations represent verbal forms,<sup>1071</sup> as the word sph (lasso) was encoded under this lemma as well. In table 6.211, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

	2	Deir el-Bersha Meir Gebelein	2 1 1		5	Asyut Unknown (Y1C)	1 1
	3	Meir	1

Table 6.211 Graphical forms of the stem of sph.

In the database the only variation that occurs is in the graphical form, as the spelling is identical for all attestations. In the database it seems that Asyut only uses the long format (form 5), but outside the database form 3 and 4 are used in Asyut as well.<sup>1072</sup> Moreover, form 5 is used in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>1073</sup> As there are no additional attestations for Beni Hasan, the Theban area and Gebelein, it would be possible to suggest that these regions prefer a compact format (form 1-2). However, these forms could just as well be features of the witnesses, rather than a regional preference. Thus, it seems unlikely that there is a regional preference in the graphical form of this lemma.

Appendix 6.234. spd (to be sharp, to make sharp)<sup>1074</sup>

In the database there are nineteen attestations of this lemma, but only seventeen represent verbal forms.<sup>1075</sup> In table 6.212, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

	4	Deir el-Bersha	1		8	Deir el-Bersha	2

Table 6.212 Graphical forms of the stem of spd.

In the database, form 1 is only attested in Meir. However, this form is attested outside the database in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>1076</sup> The D40 (𓄳) and Y2 (𓄴) classifier are only attested in Deir el-Bersha. In Asyut, the M44 (𓄵) is only used as a phonemogram (form 5-8), not as a phono-repeater (form 2-4). In el-Lisht the M44 is only used as a phono-repeater.

Appendix 6.235. sfz (to hate)<sup>1077</sup>

This lemma has three attestations of this lemma, from the same phrase of spell 30.<sup>1078</sup> It could be argued that these attestations are corruptions, as the other witnesses use sdz (to tremble) in this phrase. Both the Theban area and Asyut use the same graphical form (see figure 6.23), which occurs outside the database in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>1079</sup> Therefore, this form cannot be considered a regional preference.

Appendix 6.236. sfh (to loosen, to release, to be released)<sup>1080</sup>

The lemma sfh has 31 attestations in the database.<sup>1081</sup> In table 6.213, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>1078</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 90,d (T1L,a-b, S2C). For additional attestations outside the database, see Plas & Borghouts (1998), p. 252.

Table 6.213 Graphical forms of the stem of sft.

For this lemma, there is no clear regional preferences, as nearly all features are attested in multiple regions. Although Deir el-Bersha seems to prefer to use a V1 (⤵) classifier (form 3, 5, 6, 10 and 12), there are attestations from Deir el-Bersha without it as well (form 4, 7, 8 and 13). Moreover, the V1 classifier is used in Asyut as well (form 11). The D54 (⤴) classifier is attested in the Theban area (form 1 and 9), but Asyut as well (form 11). In the database, the D40 (⤵) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha, which is true outside the database as well, although the use of the D40 classifier is rare for this lemma.

Appendix 6.237. sfg (to be unseen, to be invisible)<sup>1083</sup>

In the database this lemma has 49 attestations.<sup>1084</sup> Note that all attestations in the Coffin Texts are participles, as the lemma only occurs in the compound sfg-irw (invisible of shape). In table 6.214, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>1082</sup> Buck (1947) CT III, p. 217,a (T1Be). I assume this is an incorrect writing for sft.

	5	Meir	1		11	Deir el-Bersha	1
	6	Meir	2

Table 6.214 Graphical forms of the stem of sfg.

There are features in this lemma that can be considered a regional preference. The use of an D4 () or D5 () classifier is only attested in Meir. The use of the F51 () classifier is only attested in Gebelein and Aswan, which represent the southernmost attestation of this lemma. However, form 3 is attested in Gebelein as well, suggesting a preference for a compact format. The Y2 () classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha.

The other regions use either form 3 or form 9. The database suggests that the Theban area prefers to use the long format of form 9, but outside the database form 3 is attested as well.<sup>1086</sup> Beni Hasan seems to prefer the long format as well, but as there are no additional attestations of this lemma in the Coffin Texts for Beni Hasan, it would be assumptive to suggest that this is a regional preference based on one attestation. Although both the long and compact format is attested in Asyut (form 4 and 9), it seems that the preference lies with the long format.

Appendix 6.238. sm3 (to unite, to join, to partake)<sup>1087</sup>

In the database there are 35 attestations of this lemma, but only 26 represent verbal forms.<sup>1088</sup> In table 6.215, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Table 6.215 Graphical forms of the stem of sm3 (to unite).

Form 9 only occurs in Saqqara, but most likely is an error in the witness (Sq10C), as it is not repeated in the Coffin Texts.<sup>1090</sup> Based on the database, it can be suggested that in Asyut and Meir the G1 () interpretant is never added. However, outside the database this is not true for Asyut.<sup>1091</sup> In Asyut the O34 (—) phonemogram is always included inside and outside the database. The use of the Y2 (—) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha.

Appendix 6.239. sm3 (to slay, to destroy)<sup>1092</sup>

There are ten attestations of this lemma in the database.<sup>1093</sup> In table 6.216, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>1089</sup> Buck (1947) CT III, p. 7,a (Sq10C), Note that de Buck transcribed a F36 () here, although in his notes (3*) he states that it is written as the hieratic Aa20 () .

	4	Deir el-Bersha	1		8	Meir	1

Table 6.216 Graphical forms of the stem of smꜣ (to slay).

For this lemma, the attestations from Meir always include the G1 () interpretant in the database, but outside the database the lemma occurs without the G1 interpretant as well.<sup>1095</sup> However, it is the only region in which a form without the U1 () is possible (form 8), although this form is rare in the Coffin Texts. The only and only use of the E1 () classifier in the Coffin Texts is attested in Deir el-Bersha. In the database the A24 () classifier only occurs in Deir el-Bersha and Meir, but it is attested in Asyut outside the database as well.<sup>1096</sup> However, the A24 classifier does not seem to occur in the Theban area.

Appendix 6.240. smꜣ<sup>c</sup> (to put to order, to correct, to cause to be true)<sup>1097</sup>

There are 15 attestations of this lemma in the database.<sup>1098</sup> In table 6.217, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that form 5 and form 6 should be considered to be the same, as the N20 () and Aa11 () can look remarkably similar to each other in cursive script.

Both within and outside of the database, the use of the D54 (⤴) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha. In the database, the use of the Y2 (⤵) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha and el-Lisht, but occurs outside the database in Asyut, the Theban area and Saqqara as well.<sup>1099</sup> There are no other features that could be considered a regional preference.

Appendix 6.241. smꜣꜥ-hrw (to justify, to make triumphant)<sup>1100</sup>

This lemma was added as a separate lemma, even though it is technically a sub-lemma of smꜣꜥ (to put to order; see appendix 6.240). In the database there were only three attestations of this lemma,<sup>1101</sup> which occurred in two graphical forms (see table 6.218). Note that in both these cases it would be possible to read the hrw separately from the smꜣꜥ. As the use of the A2 (⤴) classifier is attested in other regions<sup>1102</sup> and the P8-G43 (⤵) form is attested in other regions as well,<sup>1103</sup> it is unlikely that a regional preference exists for this lemma.

Appendix 6.242. smi (to report, to complain)<sup>1104</sup>

There are only three attestations of this lemma in the database.<sup>1105</sup> Based on the only visible forms (see table 6.219), there is no regional preference as both forms occur in Meir. Moreover, the use of the A2 () classifier and Y2 () classifier is attested in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>1106</sup> However, the combination of the A2 and Y2 classifier (form 1) is only attested in Meir, even though this is the only attestation of this form in the Coffin Texts.

Appendix 6.243. smn (to make firm, to establish, to cause to endure)<sup>1108</sup>

In the database there are 44 attestations of this lemma.<sup>1109</sup> In table 6.220, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>1104</sup> Molen (2000), p. 494.

Table 6.220 Graphical forms of the stem of smn.

For most of the regions, there is no clear regional preference, as both form 3 and 7 are most commonly attested. In the database, the use of the O34 (⏟) instead of the S29 (⏏) is only attested in Deir el-Bersha. This is true outside the database as well. Gebelein and el-Lisht seem to prefer the compact format of form 3, but as there are no additional attestations from Gebelein or el-Lisht for this lemma, it might be a feature of the supports (G1T and L2Li), rather than a regional preference.

Appendix 6.244. smḥi (to cause to forget)<sup>1110</sup>

There are eight attestations of this lemma in the database, although only one represents a verbal form.<sup>1111</sup> The form used in B1C (see figure 6.24) is unique, as the attestations outside the database use either an A2 (𓀡) classifier or a G37 (𓀧) classifier.<sup>1112</sup> Thus, it seems that the Y2 (⏟) classifier only occurs in Deir el-Bersha for this lemma.

Appendix 6.245. smḥ (to forget)<sup>1113</sup>

This lemma has seven attestations in the database, from the same phrase of spell 398.<sup>1114</sup> In table 6.221, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>1111</sup> Buck (1947) CT III, p. 22,b (B1C). For additional attestations outside the database, see Plas & Borghouts (1998), p. 255.

Table 6.221 Graphical forms of the stem of smh.

As form 2, 3 and 4 occur in at least two regions, it seems unlikely that there is a clear regional preference for this lemma. However, as there are no other attestations from Gebelein and the Theban area in the Coffin Texts, it could be argued that Gebelein prefers a compact format (form 1 and 3), whereas the Theban area prefers a long format (form 4).

Appendix 6.246. smš (to deliver, to cause to be born)<sup>1115</sup>

In the database there are ten attestations for this lemma, from the same phrase of spell 162.<sup>1116</sup> In table 6.222, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Theban area	1		3	Meir	1
	2	Gebelein	1		4	Deir el-Bersha Meir Asyut Unknown (Y1C)	4 1 1 1

Table 6.222 Graphical forms of the stem of smš.

In the database it seems that the use of a S29 (𓂏) interpretant only occurs in the southern attestations of this lemma (form 1 and 2). However, this is not true, as it occurs in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>1117</sup> Thus, there does not seem to be a distinct regional preference for this lemma.

in Asyut as well.<sup>1123</sup> Thus, there does not seem to be a distinct regional feature for this lemma, as form 11 comes from an uncertain section,<sup>1124</sup> which might not be this lemma. Therefore, the Y2 (𐓗) classifier should not be considered a feature of Deir el-Bersha.

Appendix 6.248. sn (to open)<sup>1125</sup>

The lemma sn has 56 attestations in the database.<sup>1126</sup> In table 6.224, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Theban area	1		4	Saqqara Deir el-Bersha Meir Asyut Theban area Gebelein Unknown (Y1C)	1 20 7 4 8 1 2
	2	Deir el-Bersha Theban area	1 1		5	Theban area	1 <sup>1127</sup>
	3	Deir el-Bersha Theban area	1 1		6	Deir el-Bersha	7

Table 6.224 Graphical forms of the stem of sn.

As table 6.224 shows, form 4 is clearly the preferred form used in all the regions. Any variation in the database is only attested in Deir el-Bersha and the Theban area. However, form 2 is attested outside the database in Gebelein and Asyut,<sup>1128</sup> which therefore cannot be considered a regional preference. The use of the D40 (𐓗) classifier is only attested in the Deir el-Bersha and the Theban area, which is true outside the database as well. However, it is much more likely to be used in Deir el-Bersha than in the Theban area.

<sup>1127</sup> Buck (1947) CT III, p. 219,c (T1Be). Reconstruction, only the D36 (𐓗) is visible. Note that it is not unlikely that due the script used in this witness that the D36 should be read as a D40 (𐓗) instead, as form 6.

Appendix 6.249. sn̄i (to pass, to pass by, to surpass)<sup>1129</sup>

There are only five attestations of this lemma in the database.<sup>1130</sup> In table 6.225, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that form 2-4 represent gemination. In the database, it seems that the witnesses from Meir prefer to include a T22 (𐀓) phonemogram in the form. However, outside the database this is attested in Asyut and the Theban area as well.<sup>1131</sup>

Appendix 6.250. sn̄i (to cut off)<sup>1132</sup>

There is only one attestation in the database for this lemma.<sup>1133</sup> The form used in T3C (see figure 6.25) represent one of the common forms for this lemma.<sup>1134</sup> Thus, there does not seem to be a clear regional preference for this lemma, although there might be some regional preference based on the classifiers used outside the database.<sup>1135</sup>

Appendix 6.251. sn̄<sup>c</sup> (to rejoice)<sup>1136</sup>

In the database there are only three attestations of this lemma, from the same phrase in spell 75.<sup>1137</sup> Moreover, these seem to be the only attestations of this lemma in the Coffin Texts. Additionally, the attestations are all from witnesses that are dated between Sesostri II and Sesostri III (B1C, B2L, B1P), which suggests it is a change which only occurred for that specific group of witnesses, as the other witnesses use h̄zi or sh̄<sup>c</sup>i instead. There are three graphical forms of this lemma, see table 6.226. However, it could be argued that the humanoid classifier of form 2 should actually be read separately, as B1C uses h̄h̄.w (the chaos gods) after sn̄<sup>c</sup>. As there are no other attestations, it is possible that this lemma is region and period specific.

<sup>1137</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 356,c. According to Plas & Borghouts (1998), p. 257, there are no additional attestations of this lemma in the database.

In the database, there are 29 attestations of this lemma,<sup>1139</sup> which represent all attestations of this lemma in the Coffin Texts.<sup>1140</sup> In table 6.227, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

	11	Theban area	1		22	Deir el-Bersha	1

Table 6.227 Graphical forms of the stem of snwr.

As one can see in table 6.227, the graphical form for this lemma is highly variable, as there are 22 forms for 29 attestations. Note that although a distinction was made between the U19 (𓂏) and U20 (𓂐), this is a modern distinction, as in near hieratic cursive script it is often difficult to differentiate between the two graphemes.

Nonetheless, some features can be considered to be regional. The D54 (𓂑), G38 (𓂒) and Y2 (𓂓) classifiers are only attested in Deir el-Bersha. The use of the K13 (𓂔) instead of the K1 (𓂕) is rare, and only occurs in Asyut and Deir el-Bersha. Additionally, the O34 (𓂖) is used in el-Lisht, instead of the S29 (𓂗). Moreover, the witness (L2Li) replaced the G43 (𓂘) with a partial form of the grapheme, as this witness prefers to use partial hieroglyphs for the hieroglyphs of animates.

Appendix 6.253. snb (to be healthy)<sup>1142</sup>

There is one attestation of this lemma in the database.<sup>1143</sup> The form used in B3Bo (see figure 6.26) represents a common graphical form for this lemma, that occurs in other regions as well.<sup>1144</sup> Thus, it seems unlikely that there is a regional preference for this lemma.

Appendix 6.254. snhm (to prevent)<sup>1145</sup>

there are five attestations in the database, from the same phrase of spell 17.<sup>1146</sup> In table 6.228, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

	2	Deir el-Bersha	1		5	Theban area	1
	3	Deir el-Bersha	1

Table 6.228 Graphical forms of the stem of snhm.

As table 6.228 shows, every attestation has its own graphical form. Moreover, outside the database there is only one additional attestation from the Theban area,<sup>1147</sup> which uses a different form as well. Based on these two attestations from the Theban area, it would be possible to suggest that the A24 (𓂏) classifier only occur in Deir el-Bersha. However, it is unlikely that this lemma will have a clear regional preference, as in total there are only eight attestations in the Coffin Texts for this lemma.

Appendix 6.255. snsn (to be brotherly, to be friendly)<sup>1148</sup>

In the database there are twelve attestations of this lemma, from the same phrase of spell 75.<sup>1149</sup> In table 6.229, the attestations per region are set out for the graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Meir Gebelein	1 1		5	Deir el-Bersha	1
	2	Deir el-Bersha Meir	3 1		6	Asyut	1
	3	Meir	1		7	Theban area	1
	4	Deir el-Bersha	1		8	Deir el-Bersha	1

Table 6.229 Graphical forms of the stem of snsn.

In the database it seems that Gebelein does not use a classifier or the D20 (𓂏) phono-repeater. However, outside the database the D20 occurs in Gebelein as well.<sup>1150</sup> The use of the Y2 (𓂏) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha. The Theban area seems to prefer a long format (form 7) for this lemma, but as there are no additional attestations for this lemma from the Theban area, it cannot be said if this is a regional preference, or if this is a feature of the support.

Appendix 6.256. snš/sšn (to unstop)<sup>1151</sup>

There are seventeen attestations of this lemma in the database, although only thirteen attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>1152</sup> Note however that these attestations represent the divinity ‘she who unstops’, which was taken as a participle, although it could be argued that this is a substantive instead. In table 6.230, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha	1		4	Deir el-Bersha Asyut	1 1
	2	Deir el-Bersha	1		5	Meir	2
	3	Meir	1		6	Deir el-Bersha Asyut	4 2

Table 6.230 Graphical forms of the stem of snš/sšn.

In this lemma, there are a few features that could suggest a regional preference. The F21 (𐎏) classifier is not attested in Asyut (form 4 and 6), and constantly occurs in Meir (form 3 and 5). The use of the O34 (𐎎) instead of the S29 (𐎍) is only attested in Deir el-Bersha.

Appendix 6.257. snk (to suckle)<sup>1153</sup>

This lemma has nine attestations in the database, from the same phrase in spell 6.<sup>1154</sup> In table 6.231, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha	1		4	Deir el-Bersha	1
	2	Deir el-Bersha	1		5	Deir el-Bersha Theban area	4 1

In this lemma, there are some features that could be considered a regional preference. Both within and outside of the database, the Y2 (𐤊) classifier only occurs in Deir el-Bersha. The T22 (𐤓) phonemogram is only attested in Asyut, and this seems to be the only attestation for this lemma in the Coffin Texts. In the database it seems that the D40 (𐤋) classifier only occurs in Deir el Bersha (form 4), but outside the database the D40 classifier is attested in Asyut as well.<sup>1155</sup> Outside the database there are two additional classifier that are used, B5 (𐤁)<sup>1156</sup> and D27 (𐤄).<sup>1157</sup> However, as both occur in multiple regions, it should not be considered a regional preference.

Appendix 6.258. snkn (to injure, to damage)<sup>1158</sup>

There are only seven attestations of this lemma in the database.<sup>1159</sup> Based on van der Plas & Borghouts, there are no additional attestations of this lemma in the Coffin Texts.<sup>1160</sup> In table 6.232, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem.

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Meir	1		4	Asyut	1
	2	Asyut	1		5	Deir el-Bersha	3
	3	Meir	1

Table 6.232 Graphical forms of the stem of snkn.

As these are the only attestations of this lemma, it is possible to suggest some regional preferences. In Deir el-Bersha there is a preference to use the D57 (𐤄) classifier (form 5), which is the classifier used in Meir (form 5) as well. However, Asyut seems to prefer to use the D56 (𐤓) classifier. However, form 2 and 4 belong to the same witness, so it is possible that this is a feature of the support, rather than a regional preference. Only in Meir is a form without a classifier attested (form 3). The compact format of form 1 is only attested in Meir, as the other regions seem to prefer a long format.

<sup>1155</sup> Buck (1947) CT III, p. 360,c (S1C,a). Note that it is possible to read the D40 (𐤋) as a D36 (𐤌) here as well, but the use of an arm as classifier is certain.

Appendix 6.259. snḏ (to fear, to be afraid)<sup>1161</sup>

The lemma snḏ has 62 attestations in the database, but only 45 attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>1162</sup> In table 6.233, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

	6	Deir el-Bersha	1

Table 6.233 Graphical forms of the stem of snḏ.

In this lemma, there are some features that can be considered regional. Both within and outside of the database, the D40 (𓄀) classifier and the Y2 (𓄁) classifier are only attested in Deir el-Bersha. The use of the D46 (𓄂) phonemogram/interpretant is only attested in Deir el-Bersha, but occurs outside the database in el-Lisht as well.<sup>1163</sup> In the database, the Aa27 (𓄃) phonemogram is only attested in Deir el-Bersha and Asyut (form 8 and 9). However, outside the database, the Aa27 phonemogram is attested in Saqqara and Dendera as well.<sup>1164</sup> The use of a T22 (𓄄) phonemogram is unique in Deir el-Bersha and not repeated in the Coffin Texts. In the database, Gebelein only occurs with form 1, but outside the database form 3 is attested for Gebelein as well.<sup>1165</sup> In Meir, only form 1 and form 3 are attested, but it seems that there is a preference for form 3.

Appendix 6.260. sn̄dm (to make sweet, to ease, to make content)<sup>1166</sup>

There are fifteen attestations of this lemma in the database, from the same phrase in spell 32.<sup>1167</sup> In table 6.234, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha	1		4	Deir el-Bersha Theban area	8 1
	2	Asyut	1		5	Theban area	1
	3	Asyut	1		6	Asyut	2

Table 6.234 Graphical forms of the stem of sn̄dm.

In the database, the only clear variation occurs in Asyut, which is the only region where the Y2 (𓄱) classifier is used and where the G17 (𓄲) can be left out (form 2 and 3). However, outside the database this is not the case, as the Y2 classifier is attested in Gebelein and the Theban area.<sup>1168</sup> Moreover, in the Theban area the G17 can be absent as well.<sup>1169</sup> Thus, it seems unlikely that there is a regional preference for this lemma.

Appendix 6.261. sr (to foretell, to make known)<sup>1170</sup>

In the database there are 34 attestations of this lemma.<sup>1171</sup> In table 6.235, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that there is an issue with the E27 (𓄳) in this lemma, as this sign looks more like a E20 (𓄲) in multiple witnesses. However, following the transcription of de Buck, the E27 was used when an animal was written for this lemma.

In Deir el-Bersha, the use of the D54 (△) classifier relatively common. However, it is rarely attested in Meir (form 16) and the Theban area as well.<sup>1172</sup> On the other hand, the use of the Y2 (⏟) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha (form 7), as is the use of the O34 (⏟) instead of the S29 (⌊). In the database it seems that the A2 (𐀀) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha and Meir (form 5, 9, 15 and 16). However, outside the database the A2 classifier is used in Asyut<sup>1173</sup> and the Theban area as well.<sup>1174</sup> In general, most regions use form 4, 8 or 13 for this lemma.

Appendix 6.262. sri (to rule, to command)<sup>1175</sup>

This lemma has 34 attestations in the database, but only nineteen attestations represent verbal forms,<sup>1176</sup> as sr (magistrate, nobleman) was encoded under this lemma as well. In table 6.236, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. As this lemma is a 3ae inf. lemma and gemination occurs, the table has been separated in gemination and no gemination.

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

Table 6.236 Graphical forms of the stem of sri.

The use of the A21 (𐎠) as logogram (form 3) only occurs in Asyut, but does not seem to occur again in the Coffin Texts. In Deir el-Bersha, it is possible to add an Y2 (𐎠) classifier or replace the A21 classifier with an Y2 classifier, which is true outside the database as well. Outside the database this lemma can be written in Gebelein without the A21 classifier as well,<sup>1177</sup> although even in Gebelein the absence of the classifier is rare. The use of the O34 (𐎠) instead of the S29 (𐎠) is only attested in Deir el-Bersha.

Appendix 6.263. srd (to plant, to make grow)<sup>1178</sup>

In the database there are 20 attestations of this lemma.<sup>1179</sup> In table 6.237, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>1179</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 17,b; Buck (1938) CT II, p. 398,b. For additional attestations outside the database, see Plas & Borghouts (1998), p. 260.

	2	Beni Hasan	1		5	Unknown (Y1C)	1
	3	Theban area	1		6	Deir el-Bersha	1

Table 6.237 Graphical forms of the stem of srd.

For this lemma, the majority of the attestations in the Coffin Texts use either form 1 or form 4. However, even though Beni Hasan uses form 1 as well, the M31 (𓄀) classifier is only attested in Beni Hasan, in the same manner as rd (to grow; see appendix 6.154). Based on the database, it could be suggested that Asyut prefers the long format of form 4. However, outside the database, the compact format of form 1 is attested in Asyut as well.<sup>1180</sup> Outside the database it is possible in Deir el-Bersha for the M32 (𓄁) classifier to be replaced by the D40 (𓄂) classifier.<sup>1181</sup>

Appendix 6.264. shꜣi (to cause to descend)<sup>1182</sup>

This lemma has only one attestation in the database,<sup>1183</sup> in a phrase where all other witnesses use hꜣi (to descend; see appendix 6.156) instead.<sup>1184</sup> The form used for this lemma (see figure 6.27) is relatively uncommon, as most other witnesses prefer to use a O34 (𓄃) over the S29 (𓄄), or prefer to use a compact format instead. However, figure 6.27 occurs in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>1185</sup> Therefore, there does not seem to be clear signs for a regional preference for this lemma.

<sup>1184</sup> Note that based on Buck (1938) CT II, p. 402,d (B6C), it could be argued that the S29 (𓄄) does not belong to shꜣi, but is rather a suffix pronoun after the wiꜣ (bark).

Appendix 6.265. sh<sup>c</sup>i (to acclaim)<sup>1186</sup>

In the database, there are sixteen attestations of this lemma.<sup>1187</sup> As table 6.238 shows, there is barely any variation in the spelling, although some variation in the graphical form exists.

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha	1
		Meir	7
		Gebelein	2
		Aswan	1
	2	Deir el-Bersha	1
	3	Deir el-Bersha	1
		Asyut	1
		Theban area	1

Table 6.238 Graphical forms of the stem of sh<sup>c</sup>i.

For this lemma, it seems that Meir and Gebelein prefer the compact format of form 1, where Asyut and the Theban area prefer the long format of form 3. For Aswan and Deir el-Bersha, there does not seem to be a preference of one form over the other. However, a compact format is attested outside the database for Asyut and Theban area.<sup>1188</sup> Thus, there seems to be a graphical preference for form 1 only for Gebelein and Meir, as there are no other attestations for this lemma from Gebelein and Meir in the Coffin Texts.

Appendix 6.266. shri (to remove, to drive away, to cause to escape)<sup>1189</sup>

In the database there are 27 attestations of this lemma.<sup>1190</sup> In table 6.239, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>1188</sup> Buck (1954) CT V, p. 169,b (S1C); Buck (1956) CT VI, p. 411,b. However, as this phrase is written as a line, it could still be considered the long format as well.

Although this lemma is varied in its form, there are only a few variations that represent a regional preference. In the database it seems that Deir el-Bersha always includes the N31 (𓏏) classifier with this lemma. However, outside the database it occurs without the N31 classifier as well,<sup>1192</sup> although this seems to be an exception to the rule. Additionally, the D54 (𓏏) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha

<sup>1191</sup> Buck (1951) CT IV, p. 211,a (BH1Br). Due to the classifiers I assumed it was an incorrect spelling for shri.

(form 12). The Y2 (𓄱) classifier is only attested in el-Lisht and Meir, but is only optional in both regions.<sup>1193</sup>

Appendix 6.267. shsi (to meet)

The lemma shsi has ten attestations in the database, from the same phrase of spell 32.<sup>1194</sup> As table 6.240 shows, the graphical form is relatively stable. The only variation takes place within Deir el-Bersha, as the Theban area uses form 2. As there are no additional attestations of this lemma in the Coffin Texts, it is uncertain if form 1 and 3 represent unique forms, or if these might be used by other regions as well.

Appendix 6.268. shtp (to pacify, to satisfy, to cause to be plentiful)<sup>1195</sup>

The lemma shtp has 48 attestations in the database.<sup>1196</sup> In table 6.241, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>1193</sup> See form 1, 2, 3, 8 and 11 for Meir and Buck (1961) CT VII, p. 2,q (L2Li) for el-Lisht.

<sup>1194</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 108,b. Not attested in van der Molen or van der Plas & Borghouts. It seems to be the only attestation of this lemma in the Coffin Texts, see Gracia Zamacona (2008), p. 1249.

In the database, the Theban area seems to prefer a long format (form 11 and 13). However, outside the database, the compact format of form 6 is attested as well.<sup>1199</sup> Asyut seems to prefer the long format as well (form 10, 13, 14 and 15), but is attested with form 3 outside the database.<sup>1200</sup> The use of the X4 (𓂏) classifier occurs only in Asyut, but only when the 'to cause to be plentiful' function is used. In Gebelein there is a preference for a compact format for this lemma. In Aswan there is slightly more freedom in the position of the S29 (𓂏), but the X1 (𓂏) and Q3 (𓂏) signs are constantly written next to each other in the column (form 7 and 12). The other regions do not have a clear distinction, although the use of the O34 (𓂏) instead of the S29 is only attested in Deir el-Bersha.

<sup>1197</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 348,c (B1C). As the owner to which this participle reflects to is masculine, I assumed the X1 (𓂏) and Q3 (𓂏) were written in the wrong order. However, it could theoretically be read as an infinitive as well.

<sup>1198</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 351,b (M-Ann). Not seen by de Buck himself, it is possible that the Y1 (𓂏) should be read as an Y2 (𓂏) instead.

Appendix 6.269. sh̄tm (to destroy, to cause to stop)<sup>1201</sup>

There are only four attestations of this lemma in the database.<sup>1202</sup> As table 6.242 shows, every attestation has its own distinct graphical form. Based on the attestations outside the database there does not seem to be any regional preference as the graphical form can be remarkably varied. However, the use of the G41 (𓂏) is not attested in Deir el-Bersha.

Appendix 6.270. sh̄d (to make bright, to illuminate, to shine)<sup>1203</sup>

This lemma has 22 attestations in the database, but only 20 attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>1204</sup> In table 6.243, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Table 6.243 Graphical forms of the stem of shd.

In the database, the classifier of form 2 is only attested in Meir. However, as this classifier occurs in Deir el-Bersha for the lemma hd (to be bright; see table 6.161, form 1) as well, it cannot be considered a regional feature. The use of the T4 (𓄏) only occurs in Beni Hasan (form 4), but as there are no other attestations for this lemma from this region, it might be a feature of the witness (BH1Br), rather than a regional preference.

Appendix 6.271. shi (to hit, to chop off, to grasp)<sup>1206</sup>

In the database, there are only three attestations of this lemma, from the same phrase of spell 24, all from Deir el-Bersha.<sup>1207</sup> As table 6.244 shows, there are only two graphical forms for this lemma, which vary based on the classifier. Outside the database this lemma can occur in Deir el-Bersha with an A24 (𓄏) classifier as well.<sup>1208</sup> Note that this lemma seemingly only occurs in witnesses from Deir el-Bersha.<sup>1209</sup>

<sup>1206</sup> Molen (2000), p. 528. Note that van der Molen has shi (to chop off) as a separate lemma.

<sup>1209</sup> There might be an attestation in Asyut, see Buck (1954) CT V, p. 169,d (S1C). However, as the word is damaged, includes an G43 (𓄏) and the other witness from Meir uses sh3-ꜥ, it is not unlikely that this is something else.

Appendix 6.272. sh3 (to call to mind, to remember)<sup>1210</sup>

There are eight attestations of this lemma in the database, although only six of these are verbal forms.<sup>1211</sup> In table 6.245, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha	3		3	Deir el-Bersha	1
	2	el-Lisht	1		4	Deir el-Bersha	1

Table 6.245 Graphical forms of the stem of sh3.

Form 2 is only attested in el-Lisht, but this should be considered a feature of the support, rather than a feature of el-Lisht, as L2Li prefers to write partial hieroglyphs for the hieroglyphs of animates. Moreover, the absence of a classifier is attested in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>1212</sup> Outside the database the Y2 (—) classifier is used for this lemma in multiple regions as well.<sup>1213</sup> Thus, it seems unlikely that there is a regional preference for this lemma.

Appendix 6.273. shpi (to conduct, to bring)<sup>1214</sup>

There are only two attestations of this lemma in the database, from the same phrase in spell 6.<sup>1215</sup> Although attested in two regions, Deir el-Bersha and the Theban area, there is only one graphical form used for this lemma in the database (see figure 6.28). Based on the attestations outside the database, it seems that this form is preferred in Asyut as well.<sup>1216</sup> However, in Deir el-Bersha a compact format is possible as well,<sup>1217</sup> which seems to be the preferred format in Meir.<sup>1218</sup>

Appendix 6.274. shm (to have power)<sup>1219</sup>

This is one of the common lemmas in the database, with a total of 390 attestations in the database. However, only 320 attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>1220</sup> In table 6.246 the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Table 6.246 Graphical forms of the stem of slm.

In general, it seems that nearly every region prefers form 16 for this lemma. However, the D40 (𓄀) and the Y2 (𓄁) classifier are only attested in Deir el-Bersha. The A24 (𓄂) classifier is attested both in Deir el-Bersha and the Theban area. Aswan is the only region where this lemma is attested without the S42 (𓄃). Form 2 and 3, where the S42 is used as a phono-repeater, is only attested in the Theban area. The clustering of the S29 (𓄄), Aa1 (𓄅) and S42 signs in forms 4-6 only occur in the Theban area, although form 4 and 5 occur only in the witness T2Be, and form 6 only occurs in T9C. Thus, these represent features of the supports, rather than a regional feature.

Appendix 6.275. shn (to embrace, to enclose)<sup>1222</sup>

This lemma has eight attestations in the database.<sup>1223</sup> In table 6.247, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha	1		4	Beni Hasan	1
	2	Deir el-Bersha	2		5	Deir el-Bersha	1
	3	Saqqara Deir el-Bersha	1 1		6	Asyut	1

Table 6.247 Graphical forms of the stem of shn.

In the database, it seems that form 6 only occurs in Asyut. Contrastingly, outside the database it becomes clear that this is one of the common forms of this lemma,<sup>1224</sup> beside form 3. In Asyut, it only occurs with form 6<sup>1225</sup> or without a classifier,<sup>1226</sup> the lemma does not occur with the D32 (∩) classifier. This seems to be true for Gebelein as well.<sup>1227</sup> Form 4 seems to only occur in Beni Hasan, while form 3 is attested in this region as well.<sup>1228</sup> The use of the D28 (⊔) instead of the D32 classifier is only attested in the later period of coffin decoration in Deir el-Bersha (form 1 and 2), but does not occur outside spell 75. Thus, the D28 could be read as the substantive k3 here as well, instead of a classifier.<sup>1229</sup>

Appendix 6.276. shnti (to advance, to promote)<sup>1230</sup>

There are three attestations of this lemma in the database, from the same witness (B5C) in spell 313.<sup>1231</sup> Table 6.248 shows the two graphical forms which are used in this witness. Based on the other attestations in the Coffin Texts, it is clear that these two forms are unique, as the other attestations and regions use a P1 (𐎏) classifier,<sup>1232</sup> or more often, no classifier at all.<sup>1233</sup> However, the two forms of B5C should be considered a feature of the witness, instead of a regional preference.

Appendix 6.277. shr (to overthrow, to cast down)<sup>1234</sup>

In the database this lemma has 25 attestations.<sup>1235</sup> In table 6.249, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha	1		4	Theban area	1

	3	Deir el-Bersha Asyut Theban area	11 2 2

Table 6.249 Graphical forms of the stem of shr.

In the database, it is only attested in Deir el-Bersha that the S29 (𐎏) can be replaced by an O34 (𐎏). However, outside the database this occurs in el-Lisht as well.<sup>1236</sup> It is possible in Deir el-Bersha to use the D40 (𐎏) classifier, which is true outside the database as well. However, the arm classifier in form 4 could be similar, as the D36 (𐀓) and D40 can look similar in near hieratic cursive script.<sup>1237</sup> This would mean that the arm classifier can be used in the Theban area as well. Note that outside the database it is possible in Deir el-Bersha to use a Y2 (𐀓) classifier as well.<sup>1238</sup> In the database, it seems that Asyut prefers the long format of form 3. Outside the database the compact format of form 2 is attested in Asyut as well.<sup>1239</sup>

Appendix 6.278. sht (to trap, to weave)<sup>1240</sup>

This lemma has 36 attestations in the database. However, only nine attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>1241</sup> In table 6.250, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that the variation in the classes of the T26 (𐀓) should be considered less important, because due to script types used in the different witnesses, the exact form of this hieroglyph can be highly varied.

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

		Gebelein	1
	2	Deir el-Bersha	1		4	Deir el-Bersha	1
						Unknown (Y1C)	1

Table 6.250 Graphical forms of the stem of sht.

In the database, it seems that Meir, the Theban area and Gebelein prefer a compact format (form 1), where Asyut prefers a long format (form 3). As there are no additional attestations from Meir and Gebelein and Asyut in the Coffin Texts, it cannot be said if this is true, or if this is a feature of the witness. However, the long format is used in the Theban area as well.<sup>1242</sup> Thus, due to a lack of additional attestations,<sup>1243</sup> and the fact that Deir el-Bersha has the long format and short format as well, it seems unlikely that there is a regional preference for this lemma.

<sup>1243</sup> There are two attestations from Saqqara outside the database as well, which both use the long format. See Buck (1935) CT I, p. 293,i (Sq3C, Sq6C).

Appendix 6.279. shd (to be upside down)<sup>1244</sup>

Even though this lemma is relatively common in the Coffin Texts, there are only six attestations in the database, from the same phrase of spell 21.<sup>1245</sup> As table 6.251 shows, there are only two graphical forms for this lemma in the database, which vary based on the addition of the A29 (𓂏) classifier. Based on the database it seems unlikely that there are any regional preferences for this lemma.

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

Table 6.251 Graphical forms of the stem of shd.

Appendix 6.280. shdh (to be upside down)<sup>1246</sup>

There are only three attestations from the Theban area in the database for this lemma.<sup>1247</sup>

These three attestations share the same graphical form (see figure 6.29), which represents one of the common forms of this lemma in most regions. However, in these attestations, there is one additional feature that is not repeated for the attestations outside the database, which is the addition of a ī. prefix. Thus, this could be considered a regional feature. However, this could be due to the date of these witnesses (T9C, T1L) as well, as they are both dated to the reign of Mentuhotep II.

Appendix 6.281. ss(w)n (to destroy)<sup>1248</sup>

In the database, there are seven attestations of this lemma, from the same phrase in spell 75.<sup>1249</sup> In table 6.252, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

	3	Deir el-Bersha	1

Table 6.252 Graphical forms of the stem of ss(w)n.

Based on all attestations in the Coffin Texts, it seems that all regions, except for Deir el-Bersha, prefer to use form 1.<sup>1252</sup> The use of the E34 () or T11 () is only attested in Deir el-Bersha. Moreover, the use of the T11 seems to only occur in the later period of coffin decoration. However, this is based on form 3 and 4 alone (B2L, B1P), as it not attested outside the database. Additionally, the use of the D54 () and D40 () classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha as well, although these classifiers do not occur outside the database.

Appendix 6.282. sš (to write)<sup>1253</sup>

The lemma sš is only attested twelve times in the database.<sup>1254</sup> As table 6.253 shows, the graphical form of this lemma is remarkably stable. Thus, it seems unlikely that there is any regional preference for this lemma.

<sup>1250</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 401,c (B2L), I assume this to be an error in which the position of the O34 () and N35 () were reversed.

Appendix 6.283. sšp (to be bright, to make bright)<sup>1257</sup>

This lemma has 25 attestations in the database, but only six attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>1258</sup> As table 6.254 shows, all the attestations of this lemma in the database are from Deir el-Bersha, although with remarkable variation in the graphical form. Even so, the use of the O34 (𓂏) instead of the S29 (𓂏) is only attested in Deir el-Bersha. Additionally, the use of the D40 (𓂏) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha as well, although rare in the Coffin Texts for this lemma.

Appendix 6.284. sšm (to lead, to guide, to conduct)<sup>1259</sup>

In the database there are 50 attestations of this lemma, although only 34 attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>1260</sup> In table 6.255, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

If one discounts the reconstruction of form 6 in Meir and form 10 in Saqqara, it could be argued that the use of the T32 (𓂏) phonemogram instead of the T31 (𓂎) phonemogram only occurs in Asyut and the Theban area. However, outside the database the T32 phonemogram is attested in el-Lisht as well.<sup>1263</sup>

<sup>1262</sup> Buck (1951) CT IV, p. 319,c (M1NY). Reconstructed, but reading seems likely based on the traces of the S29 (𓂏) and the Y1 (𓂏). Note that in this support it is possible to distinguish between the Y1 and the Y2 (𓂏). The T32 (𓂏) is a guess however.

There does not seem to be a regional preference for this lemma in the Coffin Texts, as the only clear features, the use of the D54 (𓄀) and Y2 (𓄁) classifiers, are attested in multiple regions. Moreover, although the database suggests that the compact formats of form 1-6 are only attested in Saqqara, Deir el-Bersha and Meir, outside the database it is used in Asyut, Gebelein and Aswan as well.<sup>1264</sup>

Appendix 6.285. sšt3 (to make secret, to be hidden)<sup>1265</sup>

In the database, this lemma has only four attestations, of which only three are verbal forms.<sup>1266</sup> As table 6.256 shows, every attestation has its own form. Based on the attestations outside the database, the forms do not represent regional preferences as the distinguishing features are attested in other regions as well. For example, the Y2 (𓄁) classifier is attested in Deir el-Bersha, as is the use of the O34 (𓄂) instead of the S29 (𓄃).<sup>1267</sup>

Appendix 6.286. sk3i (to make high, to exalt)<sup>1269</sup>

This lemma has eight attestations in the database, from the same phrase of spell 75.<sup>1270</sup> In table 6.257, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

In this lemma, the only variation occurs in Deir el-Bersha, with form 1 only occurring in witnesses from the later period of coffin decoration.<sup>1271</sup> The use of the Y2 (𓏏) classifier occurs in earlier witnesses from Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>1272</sup> Notably, the absence of the A28 (𓏏) classifier (form 1) does not occur in the earlier period of coffin decoration in Deir el-Bersha, nor does it occur in any other region, which all use form 2 and 3, or another graphical form of the same spelling.<sup>1273</sup>

Appendix 6.287. skbb (to cool, to calm, to extinguish)<sup>1274</sup>

The lemma skbb has seventeen attestations in the database, from the same phrase of spell 75.<sup>1275</sup> As table 6.258 shows, the graphical form for this lemma is highly variable, as there are fifteen separate forms for seventeen witnesses.

In this lemma, the use of the W16 () or its classes (form 7, 8 and 11) are only attested in Deir el-Bersha, which is true outside the database as well. In the database, it could be suggested that the Theban area prefers the long format of form 14, but outside the database a compact format is attested in the Theban area.<sup>1279</sup> The long format additionally occurs in Deir el-Bersha.<sup>1280</sup> In Asyut, the W15 () classifier is always used, while the N35A () classifier is never added. However, as there are no other attestations for this lemma in Asyut, and both witnesses (S1C and S2C) belong to the same owner, this might be a feature of the supports, rather than a regional preference. In the database, only Meir can be written without a classifier, but outside the database that is attested in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>1281</sup> The other regions seem to always include the W15 or N35A classifier.

Appendix 6.288. skr (to strike)<sup>1282</sup>

There are only three attestations of this lemma in the database, all from Deir el-Bersha and the same phrase of spell 24.<sup>1283</sup> Note that the lemma is relatively common in the Coffin Texts, and that the low number of attestations is only due to the spells which were chosen for encoding. In the database there are two graphical forms, see table 6.259. Both these forms should not be considered regional preferences, as they occur in other regions as well.<sup>1284</sup> Outside the database there do not seem to be any regional preferences as well, as graphical variants of form 1 and 2 occur in multiple regions, and the use of the Aa7 (𓂏) classifier is attested in multiple regions as well.<sup>1285</sup>

The lemma skdi has 83 attestations in the database.<sup>1287</sup> In table 6.260 the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that this is a causative 3ae inf. lemma and gemination occurred. The table was therefore separated in no gemination and gemination.

In the database, the D54 (⤴) classifier occurs only in Meir. However, outside the database the D54 classifier is attested in el-Lisht as well.<sup>1291</sup> In el-Lisht, the Theban area and Aswan the N33 (⤴) is not used in the database. Although this is true for Aswan outside the database as well, it is not true for el-Lisht<sup>1292</sup> and the Theban area.<sup>1293</sup> Beni Hasan is only attested with the N33 (form 10), but as there are no other attestations from Beni Hasan with this lemma in the Coffin Texts, it cannot be stated if this is a regional feature.

Appendix 6.290. ski (to perish, to destroy, to pass)<sup>1294</sup>

In the database there are 38 attestations of this lemma.<sup>1295</sup> In table 6.261, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha	2		6	Deir el-Bersha Theban area	5 2

	5	Deir el-Bersha	3		10	Deir el-Bersha Theban area	1 1

Table 6.261 Graphical forms of the stem of ski.

In this lemma, there are a few features which could be considered regional, although the variation is generally limited to Deir el-Bersha. In the database, the N14 (★) phono-repeater (form 1, 6 and 9) is only used in Deir el-Bersha and the Theban area. However, outside the database the N14 is attested in Saqqara<sup>1296</sup> and P.Gard.3 as well.<sup>1297</sup> For Deir el-Bersha, it seems that the use of the N14 only occurs in the early period of coffin decoration in Deir el-Bersha, but outside the database it is attested in the later period of coffin decoration as well.<sup>1298</sup> The D40 (⏟) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha in the database (form 4). However, outside the database it occurs in Asyut as well,<sup>1299</sup> even though it is more common in Deir el-Bersha. The addition of a T20 (i) only occurs in Deir el-Bersha (form 6), but seems to be a unique feature in B4C which is not repeated. The use of a G37 (⤵) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha (form 5), but as it only occurs in B5C, it should be considered a feature of this witness, rather than a regional preference.

Appendix 6.291. sgr (to silence)<sup>1300</sup>

There are 34 attestations of this lemma in the database, of which 31 represent verbal forms.<sup>1301</sup> In table 6.262, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha	1		7	Deir el-Bersha Meir Asyut Theban area	4 3 1 2

For this lemma, there are a few signs of a regional preference. The A2 () classifier is constantly added in Asyut (form 2, 3 and 7), which is true outside the database as well. The use of form 8 is only attested in Beni Hasan, but as there are no other attestations for this lemma from Beni Hasan in the Coffin Texts, it cannot be stated with certainty if this is a regional preference, or a feature of the support. Except for the problematic form 11, the Y2 () classifier is only used in Deir el-Bersha. Moreover, this classifier is only attested in witnesses which belong to the later period of coffin decoration in Deir el-Bersha.<sup>1304</sup> The A69

<sup>1303</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 320,b (B3C). Although this spelling would suggest the lemma gr (to be silent), based on the other witnesses and the structure of the phrase I considered the loss of the s more likely. Moreover, as gr is the start of a new column, it is not unlikely that the artist missed a sign. However, reading gr is possible here: s3.t-hd-htp in gr n=f p.t sidd n=f t3.wy (This s3.t-hd-htp, the sky is silent for him, the lands are reduced to order for him).

(𓄏) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha (form 9), but occurs only in B1Bo, including attestations outside the database,<sup>1305</sup> and represents a feature of this support, rather than a regional preference.

Appendix 6.292. sti (to shoot, to pour, to thrust)<sup>1306</sup>

This lemma has 24 attestations in the database.<sup>1307</sup> In table 6.263, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that this is a 3ae inf. lemma and gemination occurs, therefore the table has been separated in gemination and no gemination.

In the database, only Meir uses the F29 (𓄏) as a logogram. However, outside the database this occurs in P.Gard.2 as well,<sup>1310</sup> although this witness includes a S29 (𓄏) interpretant. In Deir el-Bersha the V13 (𓄏) can be added and the V1 (𓄏) can be included as classifier (form 11). Outside the database, the V13 occurs only in Deir el-Bersha, although the V1 classifier seems not to reoccur in the Coffin Texts. In Asyut the

Appendix 6.293. sti (to burn, to kindle)<sup>1312</sup>

In the database there are eleven attestations of this lemma, from the same phrase in spell 4.<sup>1313</sup> In table 6.264, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Table 6.264 Graphical forms of the stem of sti (to burn).

In the database, Deir el-Bersha is the only region which adds the V13 (==), which is true outside the database as well.<sup>1314</sup> In the database it seems that the D40 (𐎢) classifier only occurs in Asyut and Deir el-Bersha. However, outside the database it occurs in Gebelein as well,<sup>1315</sup> which makes it unlikely that this could be considered a regional feature. In the Theban area and in Y1C there is no classifier written. However, as there is no other attestation of this lemma from these regions, it is possible that this is simply a feature of the supports.

Appendix 6.294. st3 (to inflame)<sup>1316</sup>

There are seven attestations of this lemma in the database,<sup>1317</sup> which are the only attestations of this lemma in the Coffin Texts.<sup>1318</sup> In table 6.265, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that with the exception of form 3, all the other attestations are a sdmm=f, which is the reason the G1 (𐎢) is geminating.

As these are the only attestations of this lemma, the variation might be unique to the witnesses, rather than a true regional feature. Nonetheless, the use of the O34 (—) instead of the S29 (∩) is only attested in Deir el-Bersha. Asyut is the only region in which there is no classifier (form 4). Regrettably, there are no features which could distinguish Deir el-Bersha and Meir from each other.

Appendix 6.295. stbn (to hasten)<sup>1319</sup>

In the database there are only seven attestations of this lemma,<sup>1320</sup> which are the only attestations of this lemma in the Coffin Texts.<sup>1321</sup> In table 6.266, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Based on this table, it seems that in the Theban area the D54 (∧) classifier can be left out, and that Beni Hasan prefers to use a compact format (form 2) over a long format (form 3 or 4). However, due to the lack of additional attestations, these might be features of the supports, rather than regional preferences.

Appendix 6.296. sti (to impregnate, to beget, to ejaculate)<sup>1322</sup>

In the database, this lemma has 75 attestations.<sup>1323</sup> In table 6.267, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that as this is a 3ae inf. lemma and gemination occurs, the table has been separated in gemination and no gemination.

In this lemma, Gebelein and Aswan use their own form for st̥i, which is written as sn̥t̥ (form 1 and 2). This seems to represent a southern Egyptian form of this lemma, that does not occur north of Gebelein in the Coffin Texts. The classifiers D40 (𓄱) and N35A (𓄳) are only attested in Deir el-Bersha, which is true outside the database as well. In Asyut there is a preference to write this lemma in the long form (form 8, 9, 28, 29), and the phallus is constantly included as a classifier. This is true outside the database as well.<sup>1330</sup> The addition of an U15 (𓄵) occurs only in Meir. However, it is not clear if this is a correct transcription, or if this should be read as a different sign altogether.

Appendix 6.297. st̥i (to cause to raise)<sup>1331</sup>

In the database there is only one attestation of this lemma from Asyut.<sup>1332</sup> The form used in this witness (see figure 6.30) is a common form for this lemma, although Deir el-Bersha is likely to add a D40 (𓄱) classifier.<sup>1333</sup> In Asyut it is possible to leave the U39 (𓄱) classifier out,<sup>1334</sup> whereas Gebelein and Aswan replace the U39 classifier with a T14 (𓄱) instead.<sup>1335</sup>

Appendix 6.298. sd̥z (to tremble)<sup>1336</sup>

The lemma sd̥z has 41 attestations in the database.<sup>1337</sup> In table 6.268, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. In the same manner as appendix 6.179, the variation due to the protruding feather of the G38 (𓄱) should not be considered important. Therefore, form 5 and 7 and form 8 and 10 should be considered to be the same.

Table 6.268 Graphical forms of the stem of sd3.

In the database, only el-Lisht and Beni Hasan use the O34 (𓂏) instead of the S29 (𓂏). This could suggest a regional variation of the northern attestations of this lemma. However, the S29 is used in Saqqara,<sup>1339</sup> and the O34 additionally occurs in Deir el-Bersha,<sup>1340</sup> which makes it less likely to be a feature of the northern regions. The attestations from Asyut only occur in the long format of form 8 in the database. Outside the database, the compact format is attested in Asyut as well,<sup>1341</sup> but overall the long format still seems to be preferred. The A24 (𓂏) classifier is only attested in Meir in the database, but occurs outside the database in Asyut as well.<sup>1342</sup> However, this could still represent a regional feature of the southern section of Middle Egypt. The G33 (𓂏) is used in multiple regions,<sup>1343</sup> albeit rarely, and the phonemogram function of form 1 is only attested in Deir el-Bersha.

Appendix 6.299. sd (to break)<sup>1344</sup>

There is only one attestation in the database,<sup>1345</sup> even though the lemma is relatively common in the Coffin Texts.<sup>1346</sup> However, the form of this attestation (see figure 6.31) is a variation, as the majority of the other witnesses use srd (to plant) in this phrase, thus this attestation might simply be a corruption of the srd, as B1P did not write the D21 (𓂏) as well, although still using a M32 (𓂏) classifier. Moreover, this could be a modern corruption, as de

Buck did not see the original himself. Additionally, this lemma usually uses a I10 (𓂏) instead of a D46 (𓂏), although the Z9 (𓂏) classifier fits a lot better with this lemma.

Appendix 6.300. sdz (to travel, to go)<sup>1347</sup>

This lemma has 60 attestations in the database.<sup>1348</sup> In table 6.269, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

For additional attestations outside the database, see Plas & Borghouts (1998), p. 273 and Gracia Zamacona (2008), p. 1296-1308.

<sup>1349</sup> Buck (1951) CT IV, p. 92,m (B5C), the D54 (𓂏) is a reconstruction based on the size of the lacuna, thus might not have been there.

Although the use of the D54 (⤴) classifier (form 1, 4, 5, 7, 9, 10, 11, 13 and 14) and the Y2 (⤵) classifier (form 2, 6, 7, 9 and 14) cannot be considered a regional preference, the combination seems to be the most prevalent in Asyut (form 7 and 14). However, this should be considered a feature of a witness, as all the attestations come from S2C. Moreover, outside the database the use of both the D54 and Y2 classifier is attested in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>1350</sup> Therefore, it cannot be considered a regional preference.

The P1 (⤴) classifier (form 8) is only attested in the Theban area, but only in T1Be and T2Be, which belong to the same owner. It is possible the classifier was used here to clarify that the movement is intended to be done specifically by boat. However, there are no additional attestations of the P1 classifier for this lemma outside the database, nor of T1Be and T2Be, thus it is more likely a feature of these two witnesses, instead of a regional feature, even though it is not attested outside the Theban area.

Form 10 is only attested in el-Lisht, but should not be considered a regional feature, as this witness (L2Li) prefers to write partial hieroglyphs for the hieroglyphs of animates.<sup>1351</sup>

Appendix 6.301. sdm (to hear, to listen)<sup>1352</sup>

The lemma sdm has 100 attestations in the database.<sup>1353</sup> In table 6.270, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

In the database, the use of the A2 () classifier (form 7) is only attested in Meir. However, outside the database it is attested in the Theban area as well.<sup>1356</sup> The Y2 () classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha (form 3), which additionally seems to be true outside the database. In the database el-Lisht only has an attestation which uses the F21 () in the initial position (form 1). However, there are no other attestations from el-Lisht for this lemma, thus it is possible the lemma sdm only occurs in el-Lisht with the F21 in the initial position.

There are no other features in this lemma that can be considered regionally conditioned, as nearly every feature of the graphical form is attested in more than one region.

Appendix 6.302. sdr (to lie down, to rest, to spent the night)<sup>1357</sup>

The lemma sdr has thirteen attestations in the database.<sup>1358</sup> In table 6.271, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>1354</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 372,b (S2C). Based on the other versions, sdm seems more likely here than sdm (to paint).

There seems to be a high level of variation based on the classifiers, but if one considers the cursive script used in the witnesses, it can simply be assumed that the classifier groups of form 3, 6, 7 and 8 should be read as A55 (𓂏) instead. In the database, it seems that Deir el-Bersha and Asyut prefer to use only the long format for this lemma. However, outside the database the compact format occurs for these regions as well.<sup>1359</sup> However, in Asyut the long format is more common than the compact format. The absence of a classifier (form 1) is in the database only attested in Beni Hasan, but occurs outside the database in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>1360</sup> Gebelein and Aswan seem to prefer to use a compact format (form 3 and 4), which is true outside the database as well. Moreover, these regions can use the A55 as a logogram as well.<sup>1361</sup>

Appendix 6.303. 𓂏 (to begin)<sup>1362</sup>

In the database there is only one attestation of this lemma from Beni Hasan.<sup>1363</sup> The form used in Beni Hasan (see figure 6.32) cannot be considered a regional variant, as it is attested in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>1364</sup> However, there is another attestation in Deir el-Bersha that does not include the G1 (𐀓) interpretant.<sup>1365</sup>

Appendix 6.304. šꜣs (to travel, to go, to tread on)<sup>1366</sup>

This lemma has only one attestation in the database,<sup>1367</sup> even though it is common in the Coffin Texts.<sup>1368</sup> The graphical form used in B5C (see figure 6.33) is one of the two common forms used in Deir el-Bersha, as both the O34 (𐀓) and S29 (𐀓) are used. However, there do not seem to be any other attestations outside Deir el-Bersha which use the O34 phonemogram.

Appendix 6.305. šꜣꜥ (to cut, to cut off)<sup>1369</sup>

In the database there are nine attestations of this lemma.<sup>1370</sup> Although attested in Beni Hasan, Deir el-Bersha and the Theban area, there is no variation in the graphical form (see figure 6.34). Thus, based on the database there is no regional preference for the form of this lemma. In general, this is true outside the database as well, although in Beni Hasan it is possible to replace the T30 (𐀓) classifier with a F37 (𐀓) instead.<sup>1371</sup>

In the database, the H6 (𓆎) is only used in Saqqara, as the other attestations use the H6A (𓆏) instead. However, outside the database the H6 occurs in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>1374</sup> Meir and Saqqara are only attested without the N37 (𓆑) interpretant in the database, but outside the database it is used in Saqqara.<sup>1375</sup> There are no additional attestations from Meir for this lemma to verify the absence of the N37, although it is remarkable that in šw (to ascend, see appendix 6.307), the attestations from Meir are only attested with a N37 interpretant.

Appendix 6.307. šw (to ascend, to be raised up)<sup>1376</sup>

This lemma has sixteen attestations in the database, from the same phrase in spell 75.<sup>1377</sup> In table 6.273, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

In the database, it seems as if Asyut does not use the N37 (𓏏) interpretant. However, outside the database the N37 interpretant is attested in Asyut.<sup>1378</sup> In Beni Hasan, Meir and the Theban area, the N37 interpretant is always included. However, as there are no other attestations of this lemma in these regions, it might not be a regional feature. In the Theban area and Asyut, there seems to be a preference of using the H6A (𓏏) over the H6 (𓏏), whereas in Meir and Beni Hasan the H6 is preferred. It seems that nearly all forms are possible in Deir el-Bersha, although the N37 is more likely to be left out. This is true outside the database as well.<sup>1379</sup>

Appendix 6.308. špt (to be angry)<sup>1380</sup>

The lemma špt has seven attestations in the database, from the same phrase of spell 398.<sup>1381</sup> In table 6.274, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Gebelein	1		4	Meir	1
	2	Meir	1		5	Theban area	1
	3	Gebelein	1		6	Meir	1
						Aswan	1

Table 6.274 Graphical forms of the stem of špt.

There are some features in this lemma that could be considered regional. However, it needs to be noted that the distinction between the fishes might be modern, as in near hieratic cursive script the fishes can look similar.<sup>1382</sup> In Gebelein and Aswan, the A2 (𓏏) classifier is never used. In the Theban area, the A2 classifier is used, but there are no additional attestations in the Coffin Texts for the Theban area, Gebelein and Aswan. Meir can occur both with and without the A2 classifier, which is true for Deir el-Bersha<sup>1383</sup> and Asyut as well.<sup>1384</sup> Note that in Deir el-Bersha an Y2 (𓏏) classifier can be used as well.<sup>1385</sup>

Appendix 6.309. šm (to go)<sup>1386</sup>

In the database there are 86 attestations of this lemma. However, only 58 attestations represent verbal forms,<sup>1387</sup> as the substantive šm.t (movement) was encoded under this lemma as well. As table 6.275 shows, there are only four different graphical forms for this lemma.

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

						Deir el-Bersha	8
						Meir	9
						Theban area	7

Table 6.275 Graphical forms of the stem of šm.

Even though Asyut is only attested with form 3 in the database, outside the database form 4 occurs in Asyut as well.<sup>1388</sup> As the use of the G17 (), D54 (), or both occurs in most regions, it is unlikely that there is a regional preference for this lemma.

Appendix 6.310. šms (to follow, to attend, to serve)<sup>1389</sup>

The lemma šms has 107 attestations in the database, but only 34 attestations represent verbal forms,<sup>1390</sup> as the substantive šms.w (following) was encoded under this lemma. In table 6.276, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

	5	Deir el-Bersha Theban area	1 1		10	Asyut	1

Table 6.276 Graphical forms of the stem of šms.

In the database, the N37 (≡) phonemogram only occurs in Beni Hasan, Deir el-Bersha and Meir. However, outside the database the N37 is attested in Asyut and the Theban area as well.<sup>1391</sup> Moreover, although the database suggests that form 2 only occurs in Deir el-Bersha, it is attested in Asyut, Saqqara and the Theban area as well.<sup>1392</sup> In the database it seems that Asyut constantly adds the D54 (∧) classifier, but outside the database Asyut has attestations without the D54 classifier as well.<sup>1393</sup> Thus, although the attestations in the database suggest regional preferences, they do not seem to exist.

Appendix 6.311. šni (to be round, to surround, to encircle)<sup>1394</sup>

In the database there are two attestations of this lemma, both from the same witness (T3Be).<sup>1395</sup> Both graphical forms used in this witness are distinct from each other, see table 6.277. Form 2 is attested in Deir el-Bersha<sup>1396</sup> and Saqqara as well.<sup>1397</sup> Form 1 seems to only occur in the Theban area, although the use of the N37 (≡) is attested outside the Theban area as well.<sup>1398</sup>

Appendix 6.312. šnt (to revile, to oppose, to punish)<sup>1399</sup>

This lemma has 29 attestations in the database, although only six represent verbal forms.<sup>1400</sup> As table 6.278 shows, there are only attestations from Deir el-Bersha for this lemma. As there are no other regions, the database cannot be used to suggest regional preferences. However, outside the database this lemma is attested in Asyut as well,<sup>1401</sup> where the D54 (∧) and Y2 (⌒) classifiers are not used.

Appendix 6.313. šsp (to take, to receive)<sup>1402</sup>

This lemma is relatively common in the database, with 76 attestations.<sup>1403</sup> In table 6.279, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

For this lemma, there does not seem to be a regional preference, as most features are attested in multiple regions. Although the arm classifiers are attested in multiple regions, they are more likely to occur in Deir el-Bersha, even though the arm classifier can be left out in this region as well. The use of the phonetic spelling of this lemma (form 3 and 4) are rare, but occur in other regions as well.<sup>1404</sup>

Appendix 6.314. št3 (to be secret, to be hidden)<sup>1405</sup>

There are 60 attestations of this lemma in the database, but only sixteen represent verbal forms.<sup>1406</sup> In table 6.280, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Table 6.280 Graphical forms of the stem of štʕ.

In the database, it could be suggested that Deir el-Bersha only uses a long format (form 5, 6 and 8), but outside the database a compact format is used in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>1408</sup> In the database, only in Deir el-Bersha is the G1 () interpretant left out, but outside the database it occurs in the Theban area as well.<sup>1409</sup> Thus, it seems unlikely that this lemma has any regional preferences in the verbal forms.<sup>1410</sup>

Appendix 6.315. šdi (to take, to take away, to remove, to dig out)<sup>1411</sup>

In the database there are 72 attestations of this lemma.<sup>1412</sup> In table 6.281, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that this is a 3ae inf. lemma and gemination occurs in the database, therefore the table has been divided in gemination and no gemination. Although some variation exists in the use of an arm as classifier, there does not seem to be any regional preference for this lemma as it is remarkably constant in its form.

<sup>1407</sup> Buck (1951) CT IV, p. 299,a, (M1NY). One of the few witnesses in which the distinction between the Y1 (—) and Y2 (—) can be made.

<sup>1410</sup> As the majority of attestations of this lemma are adjectives or substantives, which might have some regional features.

Appendix 6.316. šdī (to nurture, to bring up)<sup>1413</sup>

This lemma has nine attestations in the database, from the same phrase in spell 16.<sup>1414</sup> As table 6.282 shows, there is no visual distinction between this lemma and šdī (to take; see appendix 6.315). There does not seem to be a clear regional distinction for this lemma, although it seems that Asyut only occurs without the D40 (𓄀) classifier.<sup>1415</sup> The Theban area is only attested with the D40 classifier in the database, but there are no other attestations outside the database to verify this. Note however that in the lemma šdī (to take) form 1 does occur in the Theban area.

Appendix 6.317. k̄zī (to be tall, to be high)<sup>1416</sup>

There are 22 attestations of this lemma in the database. However, only sixteen of these attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>1417</sup> In table 6.283, one can see that there are only four graphical forms for this lemma, which vary based on the classifier A28 (𓄀), Y2 (𓄁) or the absence of a classifier.

In the database, form 1, 2 and 4 are only attested in Deir el-Bersha. Outside the database there seems to be a preference for using A28 as classifier in nearly any other witness, although form 1 occurs in other regions as well.<sup>1418</sup> The use of the Y2 classifier is not attested outside Deir el-Bersha in the Coffin Texts, although it needs to be noted that the attestations with the Y2 classifier are all from the later period of coffin decoration in Deir el-Bersha.<sup>1419</sup>

Appendix 6.318. ḳmz (to throw, to create, to wrestle)<sup>1420</sup>

This lemma has a total of 122 attestations in the database.<sup>1421</sup> In table 6.284, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Table 6.284 Graphical forms of the stem of kmz.

Although there are 36 different graphical forms for this lemma, there are no real regional preferences, as nearly every feature of the form is attested in at least two regions. The use of form 9 is only attested in Gebelein and Aswan, as the other witnesses in this phrase use only the T14 (𓏏) as classifier. However, form 9 is only attested in this phrase, as it classifies the function wrestling. The use of the T14 as phonemogram without interpretants (form 36) is only attested in Meir,<sup>1426</sup> but it seems that the reduced writing is due to the limited amount of space in the column, rather than a regional variation. In form 27 and 28 the T14 was replaced by M17A (𓏏), although that might simply be due to the script, instead of an intentional variation, as it occurs in the Theban area and el-Lisht.

Appendix 6.319. ḳnī (to damage, to injure)<sup>1427</sup>

There is only one attestation of this lemma in the database,<sup>1428</sup> from the Theban area, in a phrase which only occurs in this witness. The form used in T1C,b (see figure 6.35) is unique for this lemma. Although the A24 (𓀀) occurs in other attestations as well,<sup>1429</sup> the combination of the Z9 (𓏏) and A24 only occurs in this witness. However, as there are no additional attestations of this lemma from the Theban area, it cannot be said if this is a feature of the witness, or a regional preference.

Appendix 6.320. ḳnī (to embrace)<sup>1430</sup>

In the database there is only one attestation for this lemma, from Meir.<sup>1431</sup> It is a unique variation in this phrase, as the other witnesses use ḥpt (to embrace; see appendix 6.167). The form used in Meir (see figure 6.36) represents the common spelling of this lemma, although the other attestations of this lemma outside the database seem to prefer a long format,<sup>1432</sup> rather than figure 6.36 where the M17 (𓄀) and D32 (𓄁) are written beside each other in the column. Note that outside the database the attestations from Asyut are more likely to not include the M17.<sup>1433</sup>

Appendix 6.321. ḳrs (to bury)<sup>1434</sup>

In the database there are eight attestations of this lemma, but only three represent verbal forms.<sup>1435</sup> As can be seen in table 6.285, every graphical form is unique, but only due to the variability in the classes of the signs, as in general the same five signs are used, in the same graphical form.<sup>1436</sup> As the variation is based on classes of signs, it would be assumptive to consider any of these classes a regional preference. Moreover, the general structure of form 1-3 occurs in other regions as well.<sup>1437</sup>

Appendix 6.322. ḳsn (to be difficult)<sup>1438</sup>

There are ten attestations in the database for this lemma, which come from the same phrase of spell 8.<sup>1439</sup> In table 6.286, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

	2	Deir el-Bersha Theban area	2 2		4	Theban area	1

Table 6.286 Graphical forms of the stem of ḳsn.

In the database there are no regional features that distinguishes one region from another. However, outside the database it becomes clear that form 3 is the preferred form of Asyut,<sup>1440</sup> although there are no clear preferred forms for any of the other regions.

Appendix 6.323. ḳd (to build)<sup>1441</sup>

This lemma has 30 attestations in the database.<sup>1442</sup> In table 6.287, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that in the table the A35 () is often a placeholder for one of its classes.

The use of A35 as a logogram is only attested in Deir el-Bersha and Aswan in the database, but occurs outside the database in Asyut as well.<sup>1444</sup> In the database, the W24 (◦) phono-repeater is only used in Asyut. Outside the database it occurs in Deir el-Bersha as well,<sup>1445</sup> but it is a rare variant, as this witness (B1Bo) habitually uses form 4 or 10. The use of a Y2 (⌊) classifier is in the database only attested in Deir el-Bersha, but occurs outside the database in Asyut as well.<sup>1446</sup> The use of a D40 (⌋) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha. The use of the O36 (⌌) classifier is in the database only attested in Gebelein, in G1T, but occurs outside the database in Asyut as well.<sup>1447</sup> However, it does not seem that the O36 is a regional feature for Gebelein or G1T, as form 4 is attested as well.<sup>1448</sup> Beni Hasan seems to prefer the long format of form 10, but as there are no other attestations from Beni Hasan for this lemma, it might simply be a feature of the witness.

<sup>1443</sup> Buck (1938) CT II, p. 271,d (M38C), Not seen by de Buck himself, and he suggest that the M17 (⌌) should be read as a Aa28 (⌌), the Aa1 (⌌) as a N33 (◦) and the Y2 (⌊) should be read as a D46 (⌋), see note 5*. However, I currently cannot say if the error is modern or ancient (although I assume modern).

Appendix 6.324. kʒ (to say)<sup>1449</sup>

In the database, there are only nine attestations of this lemma, all from the same phrase of spell 30,<sup>1450</sup> and only attested in Deir el-Bersha. Moreover, there is no variation in the form (see figure 6.37). However, even outside the database there is no variation in this form, even in other regions.<sup>1451</sup> Therefore, this lemma is of limited use for the discussion of regional preferences in the graphical form.

Appendix 6.325. kfi (to uncover, to remove)<sup>1452</sup>

This lemma has a total of 23 attestations in the database.<sup>1453</sup> In table 6.288, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that the variation between form 2 and form 4 only occurred due to the orientation of the V31 (↵), which varies due the opposite orientation of the text in S2C,a in regard to the other witnesses with spell 94.

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

	2	Asyut	2		5	Deir el-Bersha	1
	3	el-Lisht	1

Table 6.288 Graphical forms of the stem of kfi.

As one can see in the table, form 4 is most commonly used across the regions. Form 3 from el-Lisht should not represent a regional preference, as it only occurs in L2Li, which commonly replaces the hieroglyphs of animates with partial hieroglyphs. The use of the D40 (↵) classifier seems to be unique in Deir el-Bersha in the database. However, the arm is used as classifier in Gebelein as well.<sup>1455</sup>

Appendix 6.326. ksi (to bow down, to bend down)<sup>1456</sup>

The lemma ksi has nineteen attestations in the database.<sup>1457</sup> It needs to be noted that all these attestations are from spell 398, and therefore in the database the lemma is only attested in Meir, the Theban area, Gebelein and Aswan. In table 6.289, the attestations per witness are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that this is a 3ae inf. lemma and gemination occurs in the database, therefore the table has been divided in gemination and no gemination.

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
No gemination				No gemination

Gemination				Gemination
	8	Meir	1
	9	Meir	1

Table 6.289 Graphical forms of the stem of ksi.

In the database, it seems that the attestations from Aswan are most liberal in what classifier (form 1,2 and 6). However, outside the database, the classifiers can be remarkably varied as well.<sup>1458</sup> In the database the attestations from Gebelein only occur with the A19 (). However, there is an attestation outside the database of a class of A16 () in Gebelein as well.<sup>1459</sup> The use of the V31 () over the V31A () seems to only occur in Aswan and Gebelein (form 1 and 2), although it is most likely not a regional preference, as the form with V31A occurs in Aswan and Gebelein as well (form 6 and 7).

Appendix 6.327. gmi (to find, to discover)<sup>1460</sup>

In the database, there are 25 attestations of this lemma.<sup>1461</sup> As table 6.290 shows, the graphical form of this lemma is extremely constant:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Saqqara	1
		el-Lisht	1
	2	Saqqara	2
		el-Lisht	1
		Beni Hasan	1
		Deir el-Bersha	3
		Meir	9
		Theban area	5
	Gebelein	2

Table 6.290 Graphical forms of the stem of gmi.

In this lemma, there is no clear sign of regional preferences. However, it is remarkable that only the northern attestations of this lemma do not include the interpretant G17 (). However, as Saqqara and el-Lisht have attestations with the G17 as well, it is not the sole form used. Moreover, outside the database, the use of form 1 is attested in P.Gard.2 as well.<sup>1462</sup> As all attestations of form 1 occur as a sdm.n=f, it might reflect a feature of the sdm.n=f, rather than a regional preference.

Appendix 6.328. gr (to be silent, to be quiet)<sup>1463</sup>

In the database, there are a total of 23 attestations of the lemma gr, however, only nineteen of these are used as a verb form.<sup>1464</sup> As table 6.291 shows, the main variation lies in the use of a classifier.

Table 6.291 Graphical forms of the stem of gr.

It is clear that form 3, which uses the A2 () classifier, is the preferred form to write this lemma in all the regions. However, especially Deir el-Bersha can leave out the classifier, or use a Y2 () classifier instead. However, the absence of the classifier is not unique in Deir el-Bersha, as it is attested outside the database in the Theban area and Saqqara as well.<sup>1465</sup> On the other hand, Meir is the only region where the A1 () classifier is used instead of the A2 classifier.<sup>1466</sup>

Appendix 6.329. twr (to show respect to)<sup>1467</sup>

This lemma has fourteen attestations in the database, from the same phrase in spell 75.<sup>1468</sup> In table 6.292, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha	1		4	Meir	1
		Meir	2
		Gebelein	1

		Theban area	1

Table 6.292 Graphical forms of the stem of twr.

<sup>1466</sup> Although this might be due to the modern interpretation of the script, rather than an intentional variation, as the position of the arm might imply both A1 () and A2 (), in which case de Buck needed to make a choice.

<sup>1469</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 385,d (S1C). I assume the A1 () is an error, as S2C, which belongs to the same owner, uses an A4 () instead.

The use of the Y2 (𐎢) classifier is only attested in Deir el-Bersha, specifically in the witnesses of the later period of coffin decoration. This is true outside the database as well. The D40 (𐎡) classifier is only attested in Meir, although there does not seem to be an additional attestation of the D40 classifier in the Coffin Texts. In Gebelein, there seems to be a preference to not include a classifier (form 1), but as there are no other attestations of this lemma from Gebelein, it might simply be a feature of the support. Finally, the A30 (𐎠) classifier is only attested in Meir (form 4), but outside the database it is attested in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>1470</sup> However, this might simply be an interpretation of de Buck, as in near hieratic cursive script, which is used in these witnesses (M5C and B3C), it is nearly impossible to differentiate between the A30 and the A4 (𐎠).<sup>1471</sup>

Appendix 6.330. twt (to be fair, to be full, to be complete)<sup>1472</sup>

There are nineteen attestations for this lemma in the database.<sup>1473</sup> In table 6.293, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Asyut	4		4	Deir el-Bersha	2
	2	Deir el-Bersha	2		5	Deir el-Bersha	4

	3	Beni Hasan	1
		Deir el-Bersha	3
		Asyut	1

Table 6.293 Graphical forms of the stem of twt.

Based on the database, there does not seem to be a regional preference. Even though outside the database a G43 (𐎢) and A53 (𐎠) can be added, this occurs in multiple regions as well.<sup>1474</sup> However, form 1 seems to only occur in Asyut.

Appendix 6.331. tm (negative verb)<sup>1475</sup>

In the database this lemma has 80 attestations.<sup>1476</sup> In table 6.294, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that due to the irregular form of the imperative, this has been

Table 6.294 Graphical forms of the stem of tm (negative verb).

In the database it seems that only in Beni Hasan and Deir el-Bersha the X1 (⋯) interpretant can be left out (form 5, 7 and 10). However, this occurs outside the database in Gebelein as well.<sup>1479</sup> In the database, the im imperative (form 3 and 4) are only attested in Meir, but outside the database this occurs in Deir el-Bersha as well. Thus, it seems unlikely that there is a regional preference in this lemma.

<sup>1477</sup> Due to the verb bs which follows, reading this lemma seems most likely. Moreover, B4Bo and S2C included the D35 (⋯) in its graphical form as well, which would be out of place in a lemma without a negative meaning.

Appendix 6.332. tm (to complete, to seize, to end)<sup>1480</sup>

In the database there are 50 attestations of this lemma. However, only eleven attestations represent verbal forms.<sup>1481</sup> As table 6.295 shows, there are only two graphical forms in the database. As a form without the X1 (◌) interpretant is attested in the Theban area as well,<sup>1482</sup> it seems unlikely that there is a regional preference for this lemma.

Appendix 6.333. tʒi (to take, to seize)<sup>1484</sup>

This lemma has nine attestations in the database.<sup>1485</sup> In table 6.296, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. For this lemma, there does not seem to be any regional preference, as the use of the D36 (◌) instead of the D40 (◌) classifier is attested outside the database in Asyut as well.<sup>1486</sup> For the attestations outside the database without gemination, form 1 seems to be the preferred format.<sup>1487</sup>

<sup>1480</sup> Molen (2000), p. 727, 734-735. Note that van der Molen separated tm (to complete) and tm (to seize, to end) in separate lemmas, but I read this as one lemma.

Form 1 is only attested in Aswan in the database, but occurs outside the database in Asyut as well.<sup>1493</sup> In the database the V1 (⌘) classifier only occurs in Deir el-Bersha, but occurs outside the database in other regions as well.<sup>1494</sup> However, the use of an D37 (⌘) or D40 (⌘) classifier (form 5 and 10) are only attested in Deir el-Bersha. In the database it seems that in Asyut the S24 (⌘) is only used in the initial position, although outside the database form 7 is attested as well.<sup>1495</sup> Thus, there does not seem to be a clear regional preference for this lemma.

Appendix 6.335. tsi (to raise, to lift up)<sup>1496</sup>

This lemma is relatively common in the database, with a total of 129 attestations.<sup>1497</sup> In table 6.298, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem. Note that as this is a 3ae inf. lemma, and gemination occurs, the table is separated in no gemination and gemination. Additionally, there are multiple classes of the U39 (⌘) used in this lemma, which should only be considered graphical variants of the same sign, as even in hieroglyphic script this sign can be extremely varied.

Table 6.298 Graphical forms of the stem of ʿsi.

If the variation in the U39 is discounted, there does not seem to be any clear sign of a regional preference for this lemma, as nearly every feature is attested in multiple regions. However, it seems in the database that Asyut, Gebelein and Aswan do not use the U39 or any of its classes, but rather use T14 (l) in that position, or leave the U39 out altogether. Outside the database, this is only true for Gebelein, as classes of U39 are attested in Asyut and Aswan.<sup>1499</sup>

Appendix 6.336. dʷz (to praise, to worship)<sup>1500</sup>

In the database, the lemma dʷz has eighteen attestations, although only seventeen are verbal forms.<sup>1501</sup> As one can see in table 6.299, the graphical form can be remarkably varied. Note that form one is most likely a corruption of form 3, in which the V4 (𓂏) was lost.

Based on the attestations from the database, there seems to be a clear preference in Deir el-Bersha to spell the lemma phonetically, rather than use the N14 (✱) as a phonemogram. Although form 5 occurs once in Deir el-Bersha, it is clearly the exception, rather than the rule. However, outside the database, the other regions use the spelling with the D46 (⌊) and V4 as well,<sup>1502</sup> even though they are more likely to use the N14 as phonemogram than Deir el-Bersha.

Form 6 only occurs in el-Lisht, but reflect the tendency of this witness (L2Li) to use partial hieroglyphs when hieroglyphs of animates are used.<sup>1503</sup> Thus, this should not be considered a pattern of el-Lisht. Based on the table, one could suggest that the use of the A4 (𓀀) is unique to Meir, but beyond the database, the same use occurs in Gebelein as well.<sup>1504</sup>

Appendix 6.337. dwn (to stretch out, to be stretched out)<sup>1505</sup>

In the database, this lemma has only three attestations.<sup>1506</sup> Moreover, one of these attestations seems to be an error (T9C),<sup>1507</sup> and the other two attestations are reconstructions (MC105 and T1L). Thus, for the database, the only certain graphical form is from the witness T9C (see figure 6.38). It is not possible to suggest any regional preference based on the database, but outside the database it is clear that the V1 (⌊) is not a feature which only occurs in the Theban area.<sup>1508</sup>

Appendix 6.338. dbn (to go round, to encircle)<sup>1509</sup>

This lemma is attested eleven times in the database.<sup>1510</sup> In table 6.300, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical forms of the stem:

<sup>1503</sup> Although to my current knowledge the constant use of partial versions of hieroglyphs of animates in the CT only occurs in el-Lisht.

<sup>1507</sup> There is a N35 (⌋) too many, and it would not be possible to read a sdmm=f here. However, as the D46 (⌊) was written in another column, it is possible that the artist got confused, and added the extra N35 for certainty.

For this lemma, the only real variation occurs in the attestations from Meir, which can have a reduced form (4 and 6), where the F46 (≡) and F48 (≡) are used without interpretants.<sup>1511</sup> However, the fully spelled out forms (1 and 2) occur as well. Outside the database, there are instances of a reduced form in Deir el-Bersha,<sup>1512</sup> although not to the extent as form 4 and 6, as there is a N35 (⋯) interpretant or D54 (△) classifier attached. Thus, the use form 4 and 6 seems to be unique in Meir.

Appendix 6.339. dbh (to ask for, to beg, to demand)<sup>1513</sup>

In the database, this lemma is attested ten times, in the same phrase of spell 162.<sup>1514</sup> As table 6.301 shows, the form is relatively constant, and the majority of the variation occurs in the classifiers.

For this lemma, there are signs of a regional preference in the graphical form, based on the use of F18 (𓄀). In Deir el-Bersha and Meir, this hieroglyph is constantly written before the D58-V28 (𓄁) group, including in attestations outside the database. On the other hand, Gebelein places it behind the D58-V28 group. Even though the attestations in the database suggest that this pattern might apply to the northern attestations versus the southern attestations, this is not true. In Aswan,<sup>1515</sup> the F18 is written before the D58-V28 group. Another attestation from Beni Hasan has the F18 after the group, even though it is more up north than Deir el-Bersha. Thus, for Deir el-Bersha and Gebelein there is a clear preference in the placement of the F18, where the other regions are attested with both placement options for the F18.

Appendix 6.340. dm (to be sharp, to pierce, to penetrate)<sup>1516</sup>

This lemma is only six times attested in the database, in the same phrase of spell 75.<sup>1517</sup> As one can see in table 6.302, the spelling of the lemma is identical, with only a minor variation in the position of the T30 (𓄀) in Gebelein. This lemma is of limited use for regional variation, as the graphical form does not seem to vary beyond form 1 outside the database. However, form 2 is not attested outside the database, or is there another attestation of this lemma from Gebelein.

Appendix 6.341. dm (to pronounce, to proclaim)<sup>1518</sup>

In the database, this lemma is only attested in Gebelein and Aswan, in the same phrase in spell 75.<sup>1519</sup> However, it needs to be noted that van der Plas & Borghouts consider these attestations to belong to dm (to be sharp) instead.<sup>1520</sup> As table 6.303 shows, the graphical form of the regions varies, but only in the position of the T30 (𓄀) classifier. Note that the form in Gebelein is identical to form 2 in lemma dm (to be sharp).<sup>1521</sup> Based on the attestations outside the database for this lemma, the preferred form seems to be form 1, although in Meir the T30 classifier can be replaced with an A26 (𓂏) classifier as well.<sup>1522</sup> Nonetheless, form 2 seems to only occur in Gebelein.

Appendix 6.342. dmd (to unite, to assemble)<sup>1523</sup>

In the database, the lemma dmd is relatively common, with a total of 60 attestations.<sup>1524</sup> In table 6.304, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>1525</sup> Note that three of these attestations are from M6C, which were all reconstructed. The form is therefore a guess, and could be nearly any other form as well.

In this lemma, there are some variations that suggest a regional preference. In form 1 and 2, the S23 (𓂏) is used as a classifier, where all other forms use it as a logogram.<sup>1526</sup> The use of S23 as a classifier seems to be a unique feature of Meir, even though nearly every other form is attested in Meir as well.

Form 9 is one of the more common forms, and represents an interesting feature, as the attestations from the Theban area are both from T3C. As the attestations from Aswan (A1C) and most of the attestations for Gebelein use form 9 as well,<sup>1527</sup> it is possible to suggest that for the southern Egyptian First Intermediate Period school of artists there was a preferred form for this lemma.<sup>1528</sup>

Although the exact form can vary, there seems to be a preference in Deir el-Bersha to include the Y2 (𓂏) classifier for every attestation. Based on the database alone, it seems that Asyut has a clear preference for form 6, as no other form is attested. However, form 9 is attested outside the database in Asyut as well.<sup>1529</sup>

Appendix 6.343. dn (to kill, to cut off)<sup>1530</sup>

In the database, this lemma is only attested fourteen times, in the same phrase of spell 335.<sup>1531</sup> In table 6.305 the attestations per regions are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Theban area	1		4	Saqqara	2
	2	Meir	1			el-Lisht	1
	3	Meir	1			Deir el-Bersha	3
						Meir	2
						Theban area	2
					5	Deir el-Bersha	1 <sup>1532</sup>

Table 6.305 Graphical forms of the stem of dn.

Based on this table, one could suggest that Meir exclusively uses A24 (𓂏) or D36 (𓂏) classifiers, and habitually a T30 (𓂏) classifier, whereas the majority of attestations only use a T30 classifier. Additionally, in the attestations outside the database, the only classifier used is T30, thus the use of A24 or D36 classifier for this lemma seems to only occur in Meir.

Appendix 6.344. dns (to be heavy, to be weighty)<sup>1533</sup>

In the database, the lemma dns is only attested once in spell 75.<sup>1534</sup> Based on van der Molen, it seems to be a unique attestation, which does not occur anywhere else. The lack of a classifier (see figure 6.39), and the fact that this lemma is unique in a phrase where the other witnesses use the lemma iri, as a sdm.n=f, it is possible that the D46 (𐎠) is simply a corruption, or the lemma rdi or wdi.

Appendix 6.345. dr (to expel, to subdue, to drive out)<sup>1535</sup>

In the database, this lemma is relatively common, with a total of 182 attestations.<sup>1536</sup> As table 6.306 shows, the variation in the graphical form is due to the classifier or lack thereof.

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

					7	Deir el-Bersha Meir	1 1

Table 6.306 Graphical forms of the stem of dr.

In this table, one can see that form 2 is most commonly used. Form 6 is the most common form of the graphical forms which use a classifier. Although there are no unique forms for any specific region, there are still some regional preferences. Even though form 2 is used in every attested region, it is the only attested form for Asyut, Gebelein and Aswan. Thus, it could be argued that these regions prefer not to add a classifier with this lemma. However, this is not true for Asyut, as it is attested with a A24 (𐎠) classifier outside the database as well.<sup>1539</sup>

For additional attestations outside the database, see Plas & Borghouts (1998), p. 320-321.

<sup>1537</sup> Assumed to be a corruption in which the D46 (𐎠) was lost. See Buck (1935) CT I, p. 91,a (B12C,b).

<sup>1538</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 17,a (B1P). Note that due to the script of this witness, it is nearly impossible to differentiate between the D37 (𐎠) and the D40 (𐎠). See Möller (1909), p. 9, no. 103, 105.

The sole attestation from Beni Hasan could be a representation of a regional preference for using the D40 (𐀀) classifier. However, outside the database form 2 is used in Beni Hasan as well.<sup>1540</sup> Saqqara and el-Lisht are the only attestations which use the D36 (𐀁) as classifier. However, this might represent a feature of the script used in these witnesses, rather than an intentional choice.<sup>1541</sup> This would make form 4-5 and form 7 the same as form 6, and thus should not be considered a feature on which a regional preference can be based, beside the use of an arm classifier.

Appendix 6.346. drp (to feed, to offer, to present)<sup>1542</sup>

In the database, this lemma is only attested eight times, from the same phrase from spell 22.<sup>1543</sup> In table 6.307, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Theban area	1		3	Theban area	1
	2	Beni Hasan	1		4	Deir el-Bersha Theban area	4 1

Table 6.307 Graphical forms of the stem of drp.

As is often the case with the signs for the arms, it cannot be said with certainty if the use of D37 (𐀂) or D38 (𐀃) is a modern correction of signs which do not have a clear differentiation in the cursive script used in the witnesses.<sup>1544</sup> Thus, it would be assumptive to suggest a regional preference based on this. The use of the W23 (𐀄) classifier is only attested in the Theban area in the database, but outside the database the classifier is attested in Deir el-Bersha as well.<sup>1545</sup> Thus, it is unlikely that there is any regional preference for this lemma.

<sup>1541</sup> As in near hieratic cursive script the signs of the arms can be difficult to differentiate. See Möller (1909), p. 9, no. 99, 100, 103, 105, 106.

<sup>1545</sup> Buck (1947) CT III, p. 284,b (B2L,a). Note that the classifiers of B2L,b and B2L,c both vary from each other as well, which might imply that the variation was intentional, as this support has three witnesses of spell 228.

Appendix 6.347. dhn (to appoint, to fix, to promote)<sup>1546</sup>

This lemma is only attested once in the database,<sup>1547</sup> which is additionally the only attestation of this lemma in the Coffin Texts,<sup>1548</sup> where it occurs in a unique phrase which only occurs in T1C,b. The graphical form of the stem is visible in figure 6.40. As it is only attested once, it is of limited use for the discussion of regional variation.

Appendix 6.348. dšr (to be red, to become red)

This lemma has 54 attestations in the database, but only two of these are actual verb forms.<sup>1549</sup> Both these verb forms are only attested in Meir (M1C, M54C), and there is no variation in the spelling or graphical form (see figure 6.41). In van der Molen the lemma dšr is only attested as an adjective or noun,<sup>1550</sup> which is indeed the habitual use of this lemma, as this attestation is a participle in the nfr-ḥr construction. Based on the two attestations from the same region, it cannot be said if there is any regional preference for this lemma, when used as a verbal form.

Appendix 6.349. dʒi (to extend, to stretch out, to turn to, to oppose)<sup>1551</sup>

In the database, the lemma dʒi is attested 27 times.<sup>1552</sup> Note that due to form 3 and 8 (see table 6.308), one could easily mistake this lemma for dʒi (to cross; see appendix 6.350), in which case only context can be used to differentiate between the two lemmas.

Table 6.308 Graphical forms of the stem of dʒi (to extend).

Although Deir el-Bersha is overrepresented for this lemma, with 21 of the 27 attestations, there is a unique feature in the spelling, namely the use of the P1 () classifier, which only occurs in Deir el-Bersha. However, outside the database the P1 classifier is attested in Asyut, Meir, Theban area and Gebelein as well.<sup>1553</sup> The D40 () and D54 () classifier are only attested in Deir el-Bersha, which is true outside the database as well, although rare. Form 10 only occurs in el-Lisht, as it uses only the head of the G1 () as interpretant. However, this is a feature of the witness L2Li, rather than a regional preference. Finally, Asyut seems to prefer a compact format (form 2 and 4) for writing this lemma. However, outside the database the long format is attested as well.<sup>1554</sup>

Appendix 6.350. dʒi (to cross, to ferry)<sup>1555</sup>

This lemma is relatively common in the database, with a total of 64 attestations. However, only 59 attestations represent verbal forms,<sup>1556</sup> as the substantive dʒ.t (ferry boat) was encoded under this lemma.<sup>1557</sup> Note that it might be difficult to differentiate this lemma from dʒi (to extend; see appendix 6.349), as the differentiation can only be made based on the classifier or context. Moreover, due to the graphical form of wdʒ (to be hale, to be uninjured; see appendix 6.77) and wdʒ (to proceed, to go in procession; see appendix 6.78), it can be difficult to differentiate this lemma when a w is added in the prospective or in a participle,<sup>1558</sup> in which only context and the other witnesses with the same phrase can give clarity. Nonetheless, table 6.309 shows the attestations per region for every graphical form of the stem:

For additional attestations outside the database, see Plas & Borghouts (1998), p. 323 and Gracia Zamacona (2008), p. 1479-1509.

<sup>1557</sup> As the substantive can be considered a participle (that which ferries). However, it is not my intention to state that the substantive developed from the verb, or vice-versa.

Table 6.309 Graphical forms of the stem of dʒi (to cross).

As table 6.309 shows, form 3 and form 9 are the most commonly used, as these represent this lemma most clearly, due to the P1 () classifier. However, even though these are two graphical forms of the same spelling, it is clear that the distinction between the two matters, as the attestations from Aswan and Gebelein only use the compact format of form 3. As the witnesses from Aswan (A1C) and Gebelein (G1T, G2T) are considered to both originate from the same First Intermediate Period school of artists of southern Egypt,<sup>1559</sup> it could suggest that this school prefers to write a compact format for this lemma.

Although the majority of the regions have at least one attestation with the P1 classifier, this is not the case for Saqqara and el-Lisht. Although the absence of a classifier, or the use of a different classifier is not unique, based on the attestations in the database, one could suggest that the northern attestations of this lemma preferred not to write the P1 classifier, but did not use a classifier, or used the D54 () or Y2 () classifier instead. However, this is not the case, as the use of the P1 classifier is attested in these regions as well.<sup>1560</sup>

Appendix 6.351. dwi (to be bad, to be evil)

This lemma is 77 times attested in the database, although only six attestations represent a verb form.<sup>1561</sup> As one can see in table 6.310, there are only two graphical forms, due to the addition of the G37 () classifier in form 2.

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha	3
		Theban area	2
	2	Deir el-Bersha	1

Table 6.310 Graphical forms of the stem of dwi.

Even though this table suggest that the use of the G37 classifier only occurs in Deir el-Bersha, this is not true, as it occurs in the Theban area as well.<sup>1562</sup> Thus, there does not seem to be a regional preference for this lemma.

Appendix 6.352. dcr (to search out, to seek)<sup>1563</sup>

In the database, this lemma is attested eighteen times, in the same phrase from spell 75.<sup>1564</sup> Table 6.311 shows the attestations per region, set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

<sup>1561</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 32,b, 46,c. Note however, that Plas & Borghouts (1998), p. 325 consider these attestations adjectives, rather than verbal forms. Molen (2000), p. 824-825 only represents the adjective and substantive as well.

	5	Meir	3		10	Deir el-Bersha	1 <sup>1566</sup>

Table 6.311 Graphical forms of the stem of ḏr.

In Meir, there does seem to be a preference to include the D54 (∧) classifier, or no classifiers at all. Although attested once, Meir seems to prefer the exclusion of the T14 (∩) classifier. Note that a distinction was made between form 3 and form 6, based on the position of the D21 (↵) in comparison to the I10 (↶). However, this was based more on de Buck than the originals, as in the near hieratic cursive script of A1C and G1T,<sup>1567</sup> the tail of the I10 stays more or less horizontal, which is not reflected in the standardised hieroglyphs. However, this would not be the case for witnesses that are more on the hieroglyphic side of cursive script.<sup>1568</sup> If form 3 and 6 are considered the same for A1C and G1T, it is interesting to see that this groups them together with the attestation of the Theban area (T3C), as these should be considered a group.<sup>1569</sup> Thus, they seem to prefer the same graphical form for this lemma, even though the form is not unique to this group of coffins.

Appendix 6.353. ḏbꜣ (to adorn, to provide, to clothe)<sup>1570</sup>

In the database, the lemma ḏbꜣ is attested eleven times, in the same phrase from spell 7.<sup>1571</sup> In table 6.312, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

<sup>1565</sup> A unique spelling, where it seems that the T14 (∩) was replaced by a V28 (∩). However, in comparison to the other attestations of the V28, this one is remarkably larger, so might represent another sign. See Buck (1935) CT I, p. 322,b (B1P), 323,1*.

<sup>1566</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 322,b (B6C), assumed to be a corruption, as the lemma ḏm combined with the A24 (𓆎) classifier does not make any sense here.

Table 6.312 Graphical forms of the stem of dbꜣ.

In this lemma, the form is relatively stable, and there does not seem to be any regional preference in the spelling or graphical form. Although the single attestation from Asyut suggest that there might be a preference for not excluding the D46 (𓄳) interpretant, outside the database the D46 interpretant is used in Asyut as well.<sup>1572</sup>

Appendix 6.354. dnd (to rage, to be angry)<sup>1573</sup>

This lemma is attested 24 times in the database.<sup>1574</sup> As table 6.313 shows, the majority of the variation is based on the classifier. However, there is an issue with the use of the F2 (𓄳) and F5 (𓄴) classifiers, as these are distinct in hieroglyphic script, but less so in near hieratic cursive script.<sup>1575</sup> Thus, it is possible that the separation between the two classifiers was a modern distinction.

Table 6.313 Graphical forms of the stem of ḏnd.

One remarkable feature is the use of the entire bull as classifier in Beni Hasan, as any other region only writes the head or the head and foreleg of the animal. However, as there are no other attestations from Beni Hasan in the Coffin Texts, it is difficult to say if this represents a regional preference, or if it is a peculiarity of the support (BH2C). The use of the A24 (𐛀) and D40 (𐛁) classifier seems to occur only in Deir el-Bersha and Asyut, while the use of the Y2 (𐛂) classifier seems to only occur in Deir el-Bersha and Meir, which is true outside the database as well.

Appendix 6.355. ḏndn (to chastise)<sup>1576</sup>

In the database, the lemma ḏndn is attested eight times.<sup>1577</sup> However, of these attestations only one did not originate from Deir el-Bersha, which makes the lemma less useful for discussions of regional conditioned variation. In table 6.314, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations	Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations

	3	Deir el-Bersha	3
---	---	----------------	---

Table 6.314 Graphical forms of the stem of dndn.

For this lemma, there is a distinct variation between Deir el-Bersha and the Theban area, due to the use of D46 (𓄳) instead of I10 (𓄲) in MC105. However, additional attestations from the Theban area seem to be lacking for this lemma. Thus, this might be unique to this witness, rather than a regional preference. Based on the attestations in the database, it would be possible to suggest that the use of A24 (𓄲) classifier only occurs in the earlier period of coffin decoration in Deir el-Bersha.<sup>1578</sup> However, outside the database, B10C, which belongs to the later period of coffin decoration, uses the A24 classifier as well.<sup>1579</sup> Therefore, it cannot be considered a preference depending on the period of coffin decoration.

Appendix 6.356. dr (to hinder, to put an end to, to remove)<sup>1580</sup>

This lemma is rare in the database, with a total of six attestations.<sup>1581</sup> In table 6.315, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Beni Hasan	1
		Theban area	1
	2	Meir	1
		Theban area	1
	3	Theban area	2

Table 6.315 Graphical forms of the stem of dr.

As table 6.315 shows, the Theban area uses all the forms of this lemma. In comparison to table 6.306 in dr (to expel; see appendix 6.345), the witness from Beni Hasan (BH1Br) did not use a classifier. However, as was shown with lemma dr, this is most likely a feature of the witness, rather than a regional preference. Meir uses a classifier, but as this represents one witness only, it is unlikely that the use of classifiers with this lemma is a regional preference.<sup>1582</sup> Although form 3 suggests a region specific pattern, both attestations come from the same witness (T2Be), and should be considered a feature of this witness, as form 2 occurs in this witness as well. Thus, it is unlikely that this lemma will provide a regional preference.

Appendix 6.357. ḏd (to say, to speak) and ḏd-mdw (to recite)<sup>1583</sup>

In the database, these lemmas were treated as separate entries, but as ḏd-mdw is technically a compound of ḏd and mdw, which does not show clear signs that it is a distinct unit in the Coffin Texts, they will be treated together. The lemma ḏd is attested 404 times<sup>1584</sup> in the database as a verb form,<sup>1585</sup> while ḏd-mdw was attested 37 times.<sup>1586</sup> In table 6.316, the attestations per region are set out for every graphical form:

For additional attestations outside the database, see Plas & Borghouts (1998), p. 330.

<sup>1588</sup> Buck (1935) CT I, p. 333,b, the I9 (𓏏) is assumed to be a corruption of a I10 (𓏏). However, as de Buck did not see the original himself, it cannot be said if the corruption was modern or ancient.

For these two lemmas, there are no real regional preferences, as the majority of the attestations are either form 4 or form 7. However, the use of form 1 only seems to occur in Beni Hasan and Deir el-Bersha, although in general the form without the D46 (𐎢) is rare.<sup>1592</sup> For dd-mdw, form 8 does not represent a meaningful variant, as it is simply a retrograde writing of form 7, and the witness (MC105) uses both forms.

Appendix 6.358. ddh (to shut up, to imprison)<sup>1593</sup>

In the database this lemma is rare, with a total of six attestations.<sup>1594</sup> Based on van der Plas & Borghouts,<sup>1595</sup> there are no additional attestations of this lemma in the Coffin Texts. Table 6.317 shows the attestations per region for every graphical form of the stem:

Graphical form stem	no.	Region	Attestations
	1	Deir el-Bersha	1
	2	Deir el-Bersha	1
	3	Deir el-Bersha Theban area	2 2

Table 6.317 Graphical forms of the stem of ddh.

As one can see in table 6.317, there are no clear regional preferences for this lemma, as the variation occurs only within Deir el-Bersha. Form one (B1P) is most likely a corruption, in which the D46 (𐎢) was lost, while form 2 represents change in position for the V28-A24 (𐎢) group in comparison to form 3. However, it is possible that the Theban area prefers the long format of form 3 for this lemma.

<sup>1592</sup> As it has three attestations, versus 396 attestations of form 4.

Appendix 7. Stemma graphs of the Coffin Texts

The following appendix provides the stemma graphs from Jürgens and Rößler-Köhler which were used in the discussion of the spells in chapter 3 and 4. Note that only the stemma graphs have been included in this appendix, and that this appendix only serves as a collected reference of these stemma graphs, not to provide any discussion or explanation regarding these stemma graphs.

For any additional information, see the original publications.
