

Using medium resolution spectra along with angular diversity in high contrast data increases the detection sensitivity to exoplanets by as much as 14 times as opposed to using just either one

Improving exoplanet detection sensitivity by combining high contrast imaging and medium resolution spectroscopy

